Eight Leaders Of Red Army To Be Shot As Traitors

All Confess They Aided 'Unfriendly' Nation's Military Forces.

Workers Demand Their Execution

Conviction Greeted as Proof of Russia's Invincibility.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow (Saturday), June 12.—The supreme court of the Soviet Union has decided to sentence eight of the highest officers of the red army to be shot for treason, the Tass (official Soviet) News Agency announced today.

All eight—one marshal and seven generals—were deprived of their military titles.

They were tried by the military tribunal of the supreme court on charges of aiding the military establishment of a foreign nation "unfriendly" to Russia. It was announced all had confessed their guilt.

Highest ranking of them was Michail N. Tukhachevsky, who was stripped of his rank, "marshal of the Soviet Union." He had been vice commissar of war until May 14, accounted one of the most brilliant military men in Europe.

Denied Right of Appeal.

The other men doomed to die before a firing squad were: Gen. Kazimirovitch V. Putna, former military attache in London, Berlin and Tokyo; Gen. A. I. Kork, former commandant of the Frunze Military Academy, the Soviet "West Point;" Gen. I. E. Yakir, former commander of the Leningrad district garrison; Gen. I. P. Uborevitch, former commander of the army in White Russia; Gen. Robert P. Eideman, former head of the army organ for training reservists and civilians in aviation and gas defense; Gen. B. M. Feldman, former chief of the personnel section of the general staff; Gen. V. M. Primakoff, of the Kharkoff military garrison.

The law under which they were tried provides they must be executed within 24 hours of conviction and denies them the right of appeal.

Third Treason Trial.

Factory workers through Russia began mass indignation meetings to demand death for all today, as the court-martial began.

Foreign observers felt the trial is perhaps the most eventful treason hearing in the history of the government—in that it involved disaffection within the army command itself.

Two previous trials in the last year had a marked difference—charges against defendants then primarily were that they were conspirators with the exiled Leon Trotsky, seeking to foster a counter-revolution.

Charging the accused generals worked for a foreign country, the government communique added that "the defendants systematically supplied secret information about the position of the red army to military circles of this country."

The press joined in condemning the accused, and the Communist Party paper Pravda held that their arrest attested the strength and invincibility of the Soviet regime by proving it could track down traitors even in high places.

The editorial did not specify to which foreign power the men were supposed to have offered military secrets, but it eliminated all but Germany and Japan, banded together in an anti-Communist accord.

Amelia Earhart Crosses Sahara In 1,000-Mile Hop

Fort Lamy, French Equatorial Africa, June 11 (AP).—Amelia Earhart sped over 1,000 miles of Sahara Desert today, completing the second hop across Africa in her round-the-world flight.

She took off from Gao, French West Africa, at 6:15 a. m. Greenwich Mean Time (1:15 a. m., E. S. T.) and arrived in the Lake Chad country here after a flight of 6 hours, 40 minutes.

Miss Earhart did not disclose when she planned to leave.

Her next and probably last trans-African hop will be to Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, 1,200 miles from here across desert and jungle.

Post Reviews PWA Projects

What have been the accomplishments of the Public Works Administration during its four years of operation?

The Sunday Post will answer in a review of four years of PWA operations by Gerald G. Gross, Post staff writer. The article will appear incident to the fourth anniversary of the PWA next Wednesday.

The article, one of many outstanding features of The Sunday Post, will be illustrated by striking photographs of major projects completed by the PWA.

Garner Forced To 'Adjourn' by Capital's Heat

'Boss' Says He Can Have First Vacation in 33 Years' Service.

Vice President John Nance Garner, of the beetling white eyebrows and wry Texas humor, will "adjourn" to his home in Uvalde tomorrow for a much-needed rest.

The Senate's presiding officer decided he couldn't stick it out through a Washington summer, and so told the President yesterday. And "the boss" said it was all right to leave.

The Texan's previous summer departures meant only one thing—an adjournment of Congress—but there is nothing prophetic about tomorrow's leave taking. Congress, some leaders say, "is going to be here from now on."

One of Garner's last acts before heading home was appointment of a committee of five Senators to investigate unemployment and relief, in line with a resolution adopted Thursday.

Byrnes Heads Committee.

His appointments brought an undercurrent of comment at the Capitol. At the head of the committee, Garner named Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, who has not been sympathetic to the Administration's relief policies.

Other members of the group have differed with the Administration on more than one issue—notably on the court plan.

They were Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, and Senator Carl A. Hatch, of New Mexico, author of the resolution (Democrats); Senator Lynn J. Frazier, of North Dakota, and Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania (Republicans).

Byrnes is the author of the Appropriations sub-committee plan to require local communities to bear 40 per cent of relief burden. He also tried to cut 1938 relief expenditures $500,000,000 over the strong opposition of the Administration.

Garner Emerges Smiling.

But if Garner was out of harmony with the Administration on any of its policies, he did not show it as he emerged smiling from yesterday's White House Cabinet meeting.

Friends said he was leaving now because he is "very tired and feels in need of a good rest." Garner himself said he "will be on call to return to Washington if needed."

Reports of his coming vacation—his first in more than 33 years at the Capitol—had been current in Washington for more than a month. He is expected to stay in and around his home in Uvalde for four or five weeks, always in readiness to return to Washington if called.

The Vice President told friends he expects to "spend most of my time fishing"—next to hunting, his favorite sport. Despite his weariness from the Congressional strain, Garner was said to be in good health, and looked it yesterday.

Would Raise $6,000,000 Instead of $3,000,000, D. C. Body Claims.

By James D. Secrest.

As members of the Kennedy sub-Committee of the House District Committee prepared yesterday to defend the omnibus District tax bill against expected assaults on the House floor Monday, the Washington Board of Trade predicted the business privilege levy alone would raise $6,000,000, almost double previous estimates.

Oblivious of the Board of Trade's forecast, the committee members suggested the data would have been more valuable had it been submitted while hearings were being held on the bill.

Representative Kennedy, chairman of the sub-committee that drafted the bill, probably will attempt to pilot the measure through the House, it developed yesterday, as Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the full committee, was called out of the city by a death in her family.

A report on the bill was filed in the House late yesterday just in time to permit its consideration Monday. The report summarized the various titles of the measures

Marie Gravely Ill Of Liver Disease, Eight Doctors Say

Sinaia, Rumania, June 11 (AP).—Eight prominent physicians who conducted a three-hour examination were reported today to have found Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania suffering from a serious disease of the liver.

Prof. Hans Eppinger, of Vienna, one of the specialists who took part in the conference, said the 61-year-old queen's condition "is held to be serious but not the occasion for immediate alarm."

Premier George Tatarescu, who came to Sinaia by special train, saw the queen while the physicians exchanged opinions. The Roumanian official news agency said the fact so many doctors were called in was not to be interpreted as indicating the queen's condition was more serious.

Mill Owner Upholds $11 Weekly Pay

Praying Textile Employer Shocks Joint Committee by Testimony.

Hired Grandmothers for $6 Per Week 'as a Humane Thing.'

By Sidney Olson.

A church-going textile manufacturer from Nashville, Tenn., whose factory work begins every day with prayer, told the joint Senate-House labor committees yesterday he thought $11 a week was a fair and reasonable minimum wage.

John E. Edgerton, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers and now president of the Southern States Industrial Council, was the witness at hearings on the Black-Connery wages-hours bill.

Baldish and grim-faced, his sandy eyebrows knitted in a scowl, Edgerton had told the committee that he had "allowed" a number of grandmothers and mothers to work for $6 a week during the depression "as a humane thing."

Snaps His Answer.

Representative Clyde Smith (Republican), of Maine, and Representative Reuben T. Wood (Democrat), of Missouri, asked him how a family could live on less than $16 a week. Edgerton, obviously irritated at the questioning and at the repeated laughter of spectators at his answers, snapped:

"I've never studied those social problems except in my church connections."

Smith asked: "Should all other employes in other plants suffer just because you pay less wages and work your plant 24 hours a day?" "No," mumbled Edgerton.

Wood took up the questioning. It went like this:

Q.—Sixteen dollars a week, with about 42 working weeks, amounts to $620 a year. Do you think $620 a year is sufficient to allow a family to live decently, with schooling for the children? A.—It all depends. Some people can't think of a living standard unless they have four glasses of beer a day, or some wine.

Q.—Of course, some of your men might drink champagne on that fabulous wage you pay them. Answer the question, do you think $620 a year is enough? A.—Enough for what? Oh, I won't answer that question. The amount of money I pay out—whether that's enough for ordinary comforts—that's not relevant to this bill. It's a different question.

Calls Bill Grotesque.

Representative Richard J. Welch (Republican), California, then asked about Edgerton's statement that "There are 1,000 things a man could do on $16 a week." Welch said: "What are some of these 1,000 things a man can do on $16 a week?"

Edgerton burst out: "Why, I've never thought of paying men on a basis of what they need. I don't inquire into what they want. I pay men for efficiency.

"Personally I attend to all those other things, social welfare stuff, in my church work." (Here the crowd in the hearing room roared with laughter.)

Edgerton, glaring at the spectators, sneered:

"Of course, some people don't know about that sort of thing, church work and so . . . But that's the feeling side of life, church contributions and church work. That's not business."

Welch inquired, dryly: "How much of a church contribution can a man make on $16 a week salary?" Edgerton, glowering, and twitching

Man Who Inspired 'Santa' Editorial Dies in New York

New York, June 11 (AP).—The man who was the cause of that famous editorial published in the old New York Sun in 1897 entitled "Is There a Santa Claus?" is dead.

He was Dr. Philip F. O. Hanlon, well known in New York as a diagnostician and nerve specialist, who died last night at his home. He was 74.

When Dr. O'Hanlon's daughter, Virginia, now Mrs. L. V. Douglas, asked her father the inevitable question, he evaded the issue by suggesting she write a letter to the Sun.

Bethlehem's Workers Strike; Senate Approves Mail Inquiry; Troops May Patrol C.I.O. Rally

Deputized civilians at Monroe, Mich., armed with shotguns, rifles and side arms, guarded the road leading to the Newton Steel mills, prepared to resist retaliation by union forces whose picket lines were routed Thursday night. Union leaders in adjacent towns called off a proposed march toward Monroe.

Postal Committee Seeks Investigation of Both Sides of Dispute.

Non-Delivery Pact Denied by Howes

On the Labor Front.

Thousands of workers at the huge Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation joined the seven-State steel walkout.

The Monroe, Mich., city commission asked Gov. Frank Murphy to declare martial law to prevent bloodshed when the Committee for Industrial Organization holds a mass meeting in Monroe tomorrow to protest breaking of a steel strike picket line by special police.

The Senate Postoffice Committee voted a broad inquiry on charges of mail interference in steel strikes in Ohio and of conduct of steel companies.

Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio opened a conference at Columbus seeking to "reconcile differences" between union and companies in the Great Lakes steel strike.

By Robert C. Albright.

Inquiry into activities on both sides of the Ohio steel strike, including an alleged "agreement" not to move mail to strike-breakers, yesterday was ordered by the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads.

It was an unusual investigation of a "preliminary" nature. Senators were given a free slate in calling witnesses on charges of interference with the mails in the strike area, and counter-charges of possible Wagner act violations and use of force by the companies.

Actually, the committee took no formal action on a resolution by Senator H. Styles Bridges, New Hampshire Republican, claiming "breakdown" of mail deliveries. Nor was there any vote on amendments by Senator Joseph F. Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, seeking information on company activities.

Bailey Hails Inquiry.

Chairman Kenneth McKellar, of the Postoffice Committee, said it was an investigation to lay a basis for action on both measures. But Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, said, "We've got the investigation without the resolution."

Before the committee when it acted was William W. Howes, First Assistant Postmaster General, who vigorously denied an agreement not to move mail, and announced the department had "no intention of calling on the Government to use force in maintaining deliveries under the present unsafe conditions."

Postoffice officials from Niles, Youngstown and Warren, Ohio, who allegedly rejected "abnormal" mail for strike-bound Republic Steel Corporation plants, as well as officials of the steel companies, C. I. O. officials, and possibly housewives who failed to get mail through to the plants, will be called this week.

Mail Package Opened.

As a sop to its curiosity, the committee yesterday opened a package of "evidence" brought in by Bridges—mail returned as "undeliverable" to Mrs. Hazel E. Finch, of Warren, who had addressed it to her steel worker husband. It contained clean undergarments and a bottle of medicine.

Bridges also produced a telegram from C. B. Galloway and Walter J. Payne, Niles union officials, in answer to Howes' denial of a mail agreement between postal authorities and labor representatives.

Although Galloway and Payne denied they had handled and inspected mail packages, they said in the wire: "We simply had an understanding with the postmaster, assistant postmaster and the postal inspector of Youngstown, Ohio, as to what kind of package would pass through the picket lines and what kind would not pass. It was agreed

Thousands Quit at Cambria As Last-Minute Parley Fails

Gov. Earle to Reinforce Police at Johnstown's Plea; Murphy Plans Peace Conference as Martin Calls Tri-State Mass Protest at Monroe.

By the Associated Press.

Johnstown, Pa. (Saturday), June 12.—The seven-State steel strike that has made 73,000 workers idle for three weeks spread to this industrial city tonight as workers walked from the sprawling Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, adding unestimated thousands to the idle.

The night shift stopped work promptly at midnight and the workmen filed silently from the mill through the seven gates.

Outside, they were greeted by cheers from pickets, who numbered from 200 to 300 around each gate. Some of the workers joined the pickets; others walked silently toward their homes or gathered in little groups at a distance to look on.

Some workers remained inside, but there were no estimates of how many. The company declined a statement; the union earlier had predicted 10,000 of the 12,000 to 15,000 employes would join the walkout.

There was no disorder.

Sheriff Michael J. Boyle, of Cambria County, announced he had appealed to the office of Gov. George H. Earle in Harrisburg for State

By Edward J. Neil,
Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

With Insurgents on the Bilbao Front, June 11.—Spanish insurgents drove a half-mile closer to Bilbao today in what may be the beginning of the long-awaited decisive phase of the siege of the Basque capital.

After a spectacular day of terrific artillery and air bombardment, the insurgent army tonight was entrenched along a 5-mile ridge of high hills overlooking the valley towns of Lezama and Laarrabezua with Bilbao a little over 4 miles due west.

With fine weather, which they had been awaiting for a week, the insurgents threw their entire weight against the Basque government defenders.

Artillery and air attacks at dawn were directed on a heavily entrenched ridge across the valley from their own positions.

I watched all morning from an artillery post on top of a hill as concentrations of dozens of batteries and as many as 20 planes at one time shattered government positions with a thousand or more shells and bombs.

The infantry moved forward on the end of the ridge an hour before noon. The government troops were battered from their first positions and retreated, leaving many dead.

Once they had a foothold along the edge of the ridge, the insurgent troops moved northward. By late afternoon the entire position plus the valley to the west of Mount Jata was in their possession.

There was some hand-to-hand fighting as the insurgents drove northward, but artillery fire and planes ahead of them for the most part cleared the way—except for dazed and shell-shocked victims who were taken prisoner.

Mrs. Parsons' Relatives Seek Kidnap Contact

By the Associated Press.

Stony Brook, N. Y., June 11.—Wealthy relatives of the missing Alice McDowell Parsons sought contact with the unknown author of a $25,000 ransom note tonight while Queens police questioned a 43-year-old Long Island City match factory worker in connection with the disappearance.

Detectives quoted the worker, Alex Kupinoff, as saying he was married in 1930 to Anna Kupryanova, mysterious White Russian refugee who lived with the missing society matron and her husband at their landscaped poultry farm here on Long Island.

Mrs. Parsons disappeared from the place Wednesday morning, driving away with an unidentified middle-aged couple.

Another supposed clew vanished tonight when Mrs. Ruth Burdin, of nearby Huntington, with whom police quoted Mrs. Kupryanova as saying Mrs. Parsons had an ap-

C.I.O. Planning Drive to Enroll U. S. Workers

Responsive Toward Units of A. F. G. E.; Will Include Others.

By William V. Nessly.

The John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization is actively planning a drive to bring within its fold hundreds of thousands of Government employes, but numerous questions and problems are delaying any final decision in the matter, it was learned yesterday.

The C. I. O. was represented as in a responsive mood toward the seven units of the American Federation of Government Employes who voted on Thursday night to seek affiliation with the C. I. O., and even in advance of the Thursday action was considering the question raised by applications of numerous other groups of Government workers to be taken into the organization.

C. I. O. officials would say yesterday only that they expected to be able to reach a decision in the reasonably near future. Meanwhile, conferences are being continued with representatives of a number of organizations and groups which had previously applied for recognition.

Whether there shall be separate organizations, one for Federal

By the Associated Press.

Clarence, N. Y., June 11.—A 34-year-old woman, mother of 10 children, was accused today of having abandoned her two youngest babes-in-arms, twins, in a rain-swept farmyard at night.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Regina Pfohl, of nearby Akron, pleaded innocent to an abandonment charge, although State Police Inspector Eugene F. Hoyt said she admitted having left her 2-week-old daughters in the yard.

There, carefully wrapped in blankets, but drenched by thundershowers, they were found at 4 a. m. yesterday by a housewife who had heard their cries.

"I left them where I thought they would be cared for because I didn't wish them to want for anything," Mrs. Pfohl told reporters at her arraignment before a rural judge.

"I am on the welfare and my husband is a sick man. I have had an awful time keeping the family together."

Two Foes of Mussolini Are Slain in France; Kin of Brothers Charge Political Execution

By the Associated Press.

Bagnoles, France, June 11.—Thirteen years to the day after the killing of the Italian Socialist and anti-Fascist Giacomo Matteoti, two Italian brothers who long had opposed the Fascist regime in their country, were found dead in a thick woods near here.

They were Carlo Roselli, former Socialist leader in Italy, and Nello Roselli, once professor of history at the University of Florence. Both were expatriates who had been newspapermen in Italy before and during the early days of Fascism.

Members of their family declared today their deaths were for "obviously political" reasons and that they often had received threatening letters because of their activities against the regime of Premier Mussolini.

Carlo belonged to a "secret society which had numerous ramifications in Italy," declared Joseph Nitti, son of Francesco Nitti, exiled former premier of Italy, and friend of the family.

"Murder of the Roselli brothers could have been only a premeditated execution committed by experts in political crime," he added. "Nello Roselli, famous savant in Italy, was killed only to wipe out an embarrassing witness to the death of Carlo."

A dagger engraved with the initial "R" lay near their bodies in a ravine. There were few other definite clews. The throats of both had been slashed.

(The Matteoti slaying in 1924 was attributed to overzealous Fascists who sought to please Mussolini by removing one of his enemies. The incident for many years was a point of dispute and the cause for much criticism of Il Duce.)

Jordon Saved by Roosevelt, Sentence Commuted to Life

For the first time in 14 months, Thomas Jordon slept last night elsewhere than in the death block of District Jail, his life spared by White House commutation of sentence.

The slightly built, 31-year-old man, who, on April 3, 1936, was sentenced to die for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes, tea shop cashier, was saved from the electric chair when President Roosevelt approved Attorney General Cummings' recommendation the prisoner serve a life term.

Jordon was to have been electrocuted Monday morning.

He was philosophically resigned to whatever might befall when Guard Captain Charles Lucker notified him of the President's action a few minutes past noon.

"Naturally, I'm mighty happy," he said shortly afterward, facing a corps of reporters and photographers. "While I'm not satisfied to be sent to prison for life, I realize that this must be the first step toward clearing me. Sooner or

Thousands Quit At Bethlehem Cambria Plant

He said the Governor's office had assured him the policemen would be sent.

Frank Springer, a company policemen, said "at least 300 men" were ready to patrol the plant to assure protection of company property.

The strike brought to four the major independents—producers independent of U. S. Steel Corporation—affected by walkouts called by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The others are Republic and Inland Steel Corporations and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

An eleventh-hour conference between company and union executives failed to prevent the Bethlehem walkout.

David Watkins, sub-regional director of the Committee for Industrial Organization, strode from the conference and announced:

"The company again refused to sign a contract."

Ralph E. Hough, assistant to the general manager of the plant, said:

"All we can say about the strike is that the mill will continue to run."

Evans Called Parley.

Watkins said he had agreed to the one-hour conference at the request of Sydney D. Evans, industrial relations head of the corporation which employs 80,000 workers and is the steel industry's second largest producer.

Watkins called the strike in support of a strike call by members of two brotherhoods employed on the company's subsidiary Conemaugh and Blacklick Railroad. But he declared:

"Our strike is more than a 'sympathy' strike. We have specific demands of our own to make. We want signed contracts with Bethlehem covering wages, hours, recognition and working conditions."

Monroe, Mich., June 11 (AP).—Gov. Frank Murphy announced tonight he will meet in Detroit tomorrow with Monroe city officials and Committee for Industrial Organization leaders to pave the way for a "peaceful" mass meeting here Sunday.

Michigan's Governor and mediator of labor disputes called the conference upon learning the Monroe city commission had adopted a resolution "demanding" he furnish National Guardsmen for the meeting.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, called upon C. I. O. unions in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio to assemble here at 2 p. m. Sunday for a "gigantic mass meeting" to protest the routing of a striking steel workers' picket line Thursday night.

"We will discuss plans," said Gov. Murphy, "to prevent trouble on any side during the meeting. I will see to it that there are sufficient police or military for whatever is necessary."

Asked if his statement meant troops would be stationed at Monroe Sunday, the Governor said "that will depend upon our conclusions at tomorrow's meeting."

As Martin announced the gathering, deputized civilians, armed with rifles and shotguns, guarded the reopened Newton Steel Co. plant and the principal entrances to the city.

At dawn, Martin had prevailed upon members of the U. A. W. A. local at Pontiac, Mich., to cancel plans for a "labor holiday" and a "march on Monroe" and called back 250 atuomobile workers who had assembled 10 miles north of here.

Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs and Police Chief Jesse Fisher were issuing rifles, shotguns and ammunition to the special police to repel the threatened invasion when word came of Martin's intervention.

The deputized civilians were armed only with clubs and tear gas when they dispersed 200 stubborn pickets late yesterday, convoyed several hundred non-striking steel workers to the Newton plant, set fire to the picket shanty and dumped seven pickets' automobiles into the River Raisin.

Davey Offers Compromise.

Columbus, Ohio, June 11 (AP).—Gov. Martin L. Davey announced tonight a seven-point formula which he offered to conferees seeking to end the worst steel strike since 1919.

The proposal would provide that the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. and the Republic Steel Corporation sign an agreement with the Steel Workers Organizing Committee by which the S. W. O. C. would represent its own members only, and there would be no discrimination against other employes.

Gov. Davey said "no agreement has been reached and we are not near enough to an agreement to make any reliable predictions."

He remarked that "the discussions for the most part have been friendly in spite of the vigorous expressions of opposing opinions."

Film Craft Strike Ends.

Hollywood, June 11 (AP).—The 42-day strike of major film studio craftsmen, which impeded production and nearly led to a walkout of the Screen Actors Guild, ended today in a "satisfactory agreement." Union painters, makeup artists, hairdressers and scenic artists voted to go back to work this morning.

U. A. W. Pledges G. M. Faith.

Detroit, June 11 (AP).—Leaders of the United Automobile Workers, in asking General Motors Corporation today for a revision of their present agreement, pledged informally to "live up to our contracts."

Providence Strike Called.

Providence, R. I., June 11 (AP).—A general strike of 1,200 employes of all city departments was called for 8 o'clock tomorrow morning at a mass meeting of approximately 1,000 city workers here tonight, William Kane, chairman of the executive committee of the workers, said.

The strike is a protest against the mass layoff of 250 men from the highway department and the reforestation work at Scituate, officials of the workers' organization said.

Congressional Inquiries Frequently Vehicles for Witch-Hunting, Committee Glorification.

By Franklyn Waltman

WALTMAN.

THEORETICALLY the purpose of Congressional investigations and hearings is to ascertain the facts and truth regarding a given situation or piece of legislation in order to enable Congress to take remedial or corrective legislative steps. When confined to that purpose such Capitol Hill inquiries are healthy and desirable.

But actually few major Congressional investigations hew to such a purpose or achieve such an end. Instead of being truth and fact-finding bodies, Congressional committees frequently become vehicles for witch-hunting, or for the glorification of committee members through publicity channels, or to create a record to sustain preconceived conclusions and opinions. Frequently members of Congress use such inquiries to get publicity for themselves.

The truth of these contentions is aptly illustrated by a Senate inquiry which has been completed, by another now in progress and by a joint House and Senate investigation which will get under way within a few days. Other inquiries could be cited, but these occurring in the present session of Congress are fresh in everyone's mind.

Taking up these inquiries seriatim, let us first look at the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on the President's judiciary reorganization bill. These hearings lasted for six weeks. Several score witnesses appeared to testify on both sides of the question. A great deal of valuable information was elicited during these hearings—much more than is usual in such proceedings. Also a great deal of piffle was taken down by the stenographers and published at the Government's expense.

But it is doubtful whether a single mind among the committeemen or in the Senate was changed by the testimony given to this committee. Indeed, there were several members of the committee—those most interested—who clearly indicated their minds had been made up even before the hearings started and that their chief concern was to get contentions and opinions favorable to their side into the record.

The amazing aspect of this inquiry, however, was that the committee refrained from calling before it two or three men whose opinions would have had authoritative weight—men who were far more familiar with the work of the Supreme Court than any of those called to appear.

For instance, Solicitor General Stanley Reed, the Federal Government's representative in the Supreme Court, did not appear before the committee. Later he submitted a letter on invitation of Chairman Henry F. Ashurst, but this was hardly adequate, since you cannot cross-examine a letter. You must take it or leave it.

Why the Administration did not send its Supreme Court representative to testify regarding legislation to make vital changes in the Supreme Court remains a mystery. Perhaps it was not thought Mr. Reed would be such a good witness for the Administration due to his last annual report clearing the court of charges of delay and congestion. Such a suggestion is beside the point. Senate hearings are not trials. If the Senate wanted to get down to the truth of the situation it would seem Mr. Reed would be an indispensable witness.

Nor did Prof. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard Law School appear before the committee. Few are more learned in constitutional law than he. For the last decade he has devoted himself to a special study of "the business of the Supreme Court," the results of of which he, along with S. E. C. Chairman James M. Landis, revealed in 1927 in a book and thereafter kept current in annual articles in the Harvard Law Review.

At the time of the hearings it was reported that no one could find out in advance Prof. Frankfurter's attitude on the court bill. Consequently, the advocates of that measure failed to call him because they feared he would be hostile to the plan. The opponents of the measure feared he might be in favor of the plan and thus they did not call him. In other words, each side was seeking to build a record to sustain preconceived judgments.

The current hearings on the so-called Black-Connery wages and hours bill indicate the same tendency to sustain one side or the other. There have been several very informative witnesses before the committee, such as Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, Commissioner of Labor Statistics Isador Lubin and Leon Henderson. There also have been several witnesses who apparently knew little about the bill or the subject it was designed to cover.

But absent from the list of witnesses have been the names of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, the two men who directed the NRA. Both have had more practical experience as a result of that connection in seeking to regulate hours and wages than anyone else in the country. Both are lawyers. Both have a working knowledge of economics and each knows something about the way legislation should be drafted. They are able to spot legislative snakes six pages away.

Yet, it is not the purpose of the committee to call them. Chairman Hugo Black, of the investigating committee, explains that neither has asked to be heard. Such an attitude is ridiculous. It means that any Tom, Dick or Harry with an ax to grind can get the committee's ear, while men who could contribute something remain unheard because they do not interject themselves into the hearings. Perhaps the real reason for their absence from the list of witnesses is a suspicion that they do not fully approve of the pending measure. But what happens to the guest after truth?

It would be a little rash to be too positive about the nature of the forthcoming Congressional investigation of tax dodgers and evaders. But it has all the earmarks of a witch-hunt. It is highly doubtful whether the investigating committee can learn anything more about loopholes in the law or the tactics of tax dodgers and evaders than the Treasury now knows.

The latter's agents have access to the books and papers of taxpayers and those it can not reach in a preliminary investigation easily can be opened by placing the taxpayer on the defensive by assessing a tax deficiency on him.

Such a procedure, however, lacks the colorful and dramatic background which the Administration seems to want at this time. So we are going to have another Roman circus on Capitol Hill, with a sweating, cowering economic royalist in the witness chair, trying to explain why he did this or that, as he is badgered by a group of Senators and Representatives. All those who remember the sufferings of J. P. Morgan before the Pecora Committee in 1933 know it will be a gaudy show and already are applying for ringside seats.

But what will come out of it, except headlines? Nothing. There was much excitement about the fact that J. P. Morgan and many of his partners had avoided all income taxes for several years by pursuing a method of accounting for their partnership which, in the depression years, put them in the red. The Bureau of Internal Revenue knew of and had approved the method of accounting and by reason of it had extracted many millions in taxes from the Morgan group in the fat years before 1930 which, perhaps, they otherwise would not have had to pay.

After the Pecora revelations the new Roosevelt Administration went through the Morgan accounts with a fine-tooth comb and finally reached the conclusion he had done no wrong and had paid the Government all he should. But as a result of the Senate hearings the label of tax dodger stuck to him.

Meanwhile, the Treasury experts reached the conclusion after an investigation that Andrew Mellon had not paid all the taxes he rightfully owed and they brought action before the Board of Tax Appeals. But one never hears Mr. Mellon referred to as a tax dodger. He was fortunate enough to escape a Senatorial inquisition.

Would Raise $6,000,000 Instead of $3,000,000, D. C. Body Claims.

and explained the need for the legislation.

The Board of Trade's estimate the revenue that may be derived from a three-fifths of 1 per cent tax on gross receipts of all business and professional men and concerns is almost double that of the rough calculation of District officials.

$3,000,000 Estimated.

The Commissioners' special tax committee estimated the tax would raise approximately $3,000,000, although Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal emphasized that it was impossible to forecast the revenue accurately.

Previously, the District heads had suggested a 1 per cent gross receipts tax, but later they substituted a 2 per cent sales tax. While the business privilege tax was frowned upon by the Board of Trade, the sales levy was indorsed.

The Board of Trade based its prediction as to $6,000,000 revenue on an estimate that gross receipts that would be affected by the tax would exceed $1,000,000,000.

Used Same Data.

This figure was arrived at by taking the same data available to the District Commissioners concerning retail, wholesale, and other businesses and adding manufacturing establishments and financial institutions other than those exempt from the tax.

Under the first classification, the board calculated $648,020,000. This included the following: Retail, $330,813,000; wholesale, $242,729,000; service establishments, $19,363,000; amusement places, $7,915,000; hotels, $15,544,000; public warehousing, $1,405,000; construction, $28,127,000; radio broadcasting time sales, $740,000.

The board then added $73,948,052 for manufacturing establishments, bringing the total to $721,968,052. The difference between that and the billion-dollar total was arrived at thus, according to the board's explanation:

"There are a number of classifications which have not been included, such as the various financial institutions operating in the city which are not banks. There are approximately 95 such institutions, excluding building and loan associations, which employ over 800 persons.

"There are also six advertising agencies. We do not have figures for such fields as real estate, newspapers, magazines, and a number of others.

"We, therefore, believe we are correct in saying that the gross receipts of the business houses * * * are now approximately $1,000,000,000 per annum."

The board further complained that the flat rate of three-fifths of 1 per cent on all types of business would prove inequitable and unworkable and confiscatory in the cases of some small trades.

Wife's Kin Help Parsons Raise Cash

pointment about the time the disappearance, denied it.

"I had no appointment with her. In fact, I was in New York that day. I never had met Mrs. Parsons," Mrs. Burdin said.

Automobiles whipped in and out of the Parsons estate several times during the day, bent on mysterious errands.

Awaiting the outcome of family efforts, a squad of Federal agents stood on the sidelines, ready to take active charge of what Rhea Whitley, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's New York office, definitely termed "a kidnaping."

Haggard and red-eyed from a night of sleepless pacing, William H. Parsons announced he was "willing and anxious" to comply with any instructions from the abductors of his wife, who disappeared Wednesday noon.

In deference to his wishes, all police investigators withdrew from the 11-acre estate in order that any emissaries from the kidnapers might have free access. Parsons, asserting that the safe return of his wife was his first and foremost concern, promised to treat all communications "in the strictest confidence."

Parsons, tanned, well-built Yale graduate and retired business man, at first had told investigators at a conference at his home last night that he would be unable to raise the $25,000 demanded.

He was called aside by a brother-in-law, Richardson Pratt, and after a brief whispered conference Parsons announced the money would be available. Pratt is an executive of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and a member of a family whose country estate adjoins that of J. P. Morgan at Glen Cove.

Rumors a contact had been established with the kidnapers sprang up today with every show of activity at the farm, which lies in a verdant expanse of rolling countryside on the north shore of Long Island, 56 miles from Times Square.

Nightfall came without any confirmation the ransom had been paid or arrangements made for its delivery.

The original ransom note, a crudely printed scrawl, was found in the Parson's automobile, parked outside the house, late Wednesday night.

'Preliminary' Study to Include Both Sides of Strike; Howes Denies Postoffice Department Agreement With Union Leaders.

that all regular mail would go through but packages containing clothes and foodstuffs would not, as they were irregular. The action taken during the situation was to maintain peace and order, and that we have accomplished."

Bridges said that proved "conclusively" Washington postal authorities had been "misinformed" about agreements on mail dellveries.

Jesse M. Donaldson, deputy to Howes, declared he had talked by telephone to the postmaster and assistant postmaster at Niles.

No Union Agreement.

"They stated positively that there was no agreement with Galloway and Payne," said Donaldson. "They did talk to them and told them they were going to carry normal mail, not provisions for the company, and they would stand for no interference."

Howes said Ohio postmasters had denied permitting union men to inspect and pass upon what kind of mail should be delivered to the plants.

"The postal service is neither a law-enforcement agency nor a strike-breaker," said Howes.

"We are complying with the law in refusing to risk the lives of our employes by asking them to carry food into these plants."

Not Covered in Budget.

Howes said if the department tried "to serve as a commissary delivery department for these plants, we would have to put on new equipment and personnel and incur added expenses which were not contemplated in our budget."

Howes cited sections 369 and 22 of title 5 of the U. S. code, which authorizes the Postmaster General to suspend mail service under hazardous conditions.

Bridges asked if he meant "law and order have broken down to such an extent that the postoffice is afraid to make deliveries," and Bailey asked if "where violence is threatened, the mails will not be carried."

Dog Can Suspend Service.

Howes repeated the department was "complying with the law;" that it was unwilling to subject employes to danger, and frequently suspended services to homes having a vicious dog. Bailey asked if employes could not be supplied with "protection."

"We are not the police power of the Government," said Howes. "This department is not going to ask the Government to step in with its military forces in this situation."

Howes, in his turn, had "evidence" to lay before the committee. He read from a letter from the Republic Steel Corporation saying private means of getting supplies into the plants had failed and that channels were closed "unless we meet force with force." He said the corporation offered to supply necessary equipment, and even personnel, to aid postal authorities in making deliveries.

Cites "Partnership."

McKellar said if the department accepted the offer the Government would be forming a "partnership" with companies in the strike.

Later he said he was going to ask his committee "to look particularly into this proposition," adding: "Of course the Postoffice Department has no authority to make a deal of that kind."

Senator Bailey said conditions as represented justified use of all force at disposal of the Government. He suggested the department invoke aid of "the United States marshal, the Justice Department and the head of the Government."

Senators became curious when Bridges produced the bulky brown package he said had been returned as "undeliverable" to Mrs. Finch, wife of a steelworker. Bridges said he didn't know what was in it. Bailey handed it to Howes and asked if it was "abnormal." Howes handled it gingerly, was noncomittal about its contents, but said "some of them have been opened and found to contain bottles of whisky."

Package of Nuts.

Solemnly, the committee authorized examination of the parcel. It was opened and found to contain four handkerchiefs, three pairs of socks, washed and mended, one undershirt, one pair of shorts, one necktie, two shirts and a package of salted nuts. The last item removed was a suspicious looking bottle, wrapped in red tissue paper.

There was a titter and an exclamation: "There's the bottle!"

The bottle was hastily unwrapped and found to contain apparently a white mineral oil.

Letter Tells of Refusal.

Bailey again asked what was "abnormal" about the package?

"Well," said Donaldson, "the address calls for delivery over a route where it is unsafe for this particular mail to go through."

Bridges read a letter from Mrs. Frank T. Irwin, of Warren, who said postal authorities had refused to accept a package for her steelworker husband May 29, and her neighbors have had similar experiences. She said her husband was still in the plant—"there was work for him and he needed it, so he just stayed, and I am proud of him for being loyal to his employer, who has been fair."

Bridges also read a statement from Lewis J. Guernieri, Republic Steel representative, who said he had vainly attempted to mail four packages of nonperishable food to Sam Brown, at the Niles plant. He said Assistant Postmaster Bert Flaherty told him: "You see, we cannot take these packages because they will not allow it."

Girdler Defends Position.

In an answer to Senator Guffey's Senate attack on the Republic Steel Corporation for not signing a C. I. O. contract, T. M. Girdler, chairman of the corporation, said in a statement last night that Guffey "not only condones the reign of lawlessness now being carried on by the Lewis union in many communities throughout the country, but he brushes aside as of no consequence the many thousands of our employes who are opposed to such a contract."

Girdler said 23,000 Republic workers did not go out on strike and are working today, and "many thousands more want to return to work." He said many of the men "are in besieged plants surrounded by mobs of armed and menacing pickets, most of whom have never worked for Republic."

Simpson Denies Divorce Payment

By the Associated Press.

London, June 11.—Ernest Aldrich Simpson swore under voluntary oath in King's Court today that he was paid neither by money nor other consideration to permit the former Wallis Warfield to divorce him without contest.

The ship's broker acted to spike gossip to that effect, accepted apology through her attorney by a British society woman who had discussed the divorce at a luncheon party, and thereupon withdrew a slander action against her.

Mrs. Joan Sutherland, Simpson's attorney told the court, had repeated "irresponsible gossip" to the effect that "a sum of money had been accepted by Simpson as price for his silence."

Congress Is Given Flood Control Bill

By the Associated Press.

A $194,328,000 appropriation for flood control, river and harbor improvements and related public works started yesterday on its way through Congress.

The House Appropriations Committee recommended that the sum be made available to the War Department for authorized flood-control projects in the Mississippi and Ohio river valleys as well as for other nonmilitary activities.

Although the total was $47,181 below the Budget Bureau's estimates, it exceeded the current year's appropriation by $3,736,378 and would bring the War Department's total appropriation for the next fiscal year to $610,079,894.

Roosevelt Sails From Annapolis For Bay Cruise

Annapolis, June 11 (AP).—The U. S. S. Potomac, with President Roosevelt and guests aboard, sailed away from a Naval Academy dock at 5:30 p. m. today on an overnight cruise down Chesapeake Bay.

At the same time the President's elder son, James, sailed on the two-masted schooner Sewanna, intending to join the President tomorrow.

The President made the trip from Washington to Annapolis by motor. His guests aboard the Potomac were Attorney General Cummings, Secretary and Mrs. Wallace and Miss Marguerite LeHand, his personal secretary. After cruising in the bay he will sail up the Potomac and dock at Washington tomorrow evening.

Body of Jean Harlow To Lie in Mausoleum

Hollywood, June 11 (AP).—Jean Harlow's body will be interred in the mausoleum at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, a spokesman for her family said today. The decision was reached after the film star's mother, Mrs Marino Bello; her father, Dr. Mont Clair Carpenter; her aunt, Miss Jettie Chadsey, and William Powell conferred yesterday. They paid a last visit to Miss Harlow's coffin last night.

Fish Suggests Congress Study President's Tax

Hints at Deductions on Palatial Hyde Park Home as Farm.

By the Associated Press.

The House heard Representative Fish (Republican), New York, suggest yesterday that congressional investigators of alleged tax dodgers scrutinize President Roosevelt's income tax return.

He said he had information from a "reliable authority," that Mr. Roosevelt had deducted losses on his "so-called farm at Hyde Park," N. Y. In reality, he said, it "is not a farm, but a palatial residence."

Fish represents the district in which the President lives.

His assertion virtually coincided with the President's signing of a measure creating a Senate-House committee to inquire into tax dodging by the wealthy and methods of stopping up revenue loopholes. The House, meanwhile, plunged into strenuous debate on a resolution to continue "nuisance" taxes and 3-cent postage for two more years.

Late in the day the House adopted the measure by a vote announced as 229 to 95.

By a three-vote margin, 155 to 152, it rejected an amendment by Representative Flannery (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, to raise the tax on imported coal from 10 to 25 cents a hundred pounds.

After criticizing some of the levies—which apply to gasoline, automobiles, cosmetics, furs, electricity and a wide variety of products—Fish suddenly reverted to the question of tax evasion.

Urges "Look" at Returns.

"Let me say to members of the Ways and Means Committee—Democrats and Republicans alike," he said, "that if they propose to plug up these holes and stop tax evasions and tax avoidance, that there are other income tax payers whose income you should also look into.

"I have not myself seen the income tax returns of the President of the United States and I do not believe I would be permitted to see them, but I suggest the committee look at the tax returns of the President."

An undertone of asides ran through the big chamber when he continued:

"I am informed on reliable authority he had deducted from his income tax the losses on his so-called farm at Hyde Park in my district in New York which, after all, is not a farm but a palatial residence.

"If he has done that, why should not others under the law deduct their taxes in the same manner? If you are going to investigate anyone, I suggest you investigate these taxes as well. What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

He sat down in a burst of noise, but his words brought little verbal reaction.

Representative Fuller (Democrat), Arkansas, passed the matter off with a statement that Fish was making a play for headlines that might read: "Fish jumps on President, says loopholes in law."

The nuisance levies drew stinging criticism from both Republicans and Democrats and only a smattering of praise during House debate.

Including some $80,000,000 that would be obtained by retaining 3-cent postage, the extension resolution is intended to keep about $625,000,000 in revenue dropping into Treasury coffers in the next fiscal year.

Robber Snatches Wrong Envelope

A robber who had a 50-50 chanbe of making the most of his job, failed to do so yesterday and as a result chose the wrong envelope of two and escaped with the one containing the smallest amount of cash.

A colored man with a knife stopped Ferris A. Taylor, 26, 642 Milwaukee place southeast, an employe of a chain grocery company, on the corner of Fourteenth and Corcoran streets northwest, grabbed for his loot and ran. He took one envelope which Taylor reported to police contained $46. The other, retained by Taylor, contained more than $150.

Letter to Roosevelt Sends Man to Jail

Albany, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—James C. Smith, 40, of Albany, was held in jail today in lieu of $5,000 bail after pleading innocent before United States Commissioner Lester T. Hubbard to a charge of sending threatening letters to President Roosevelt.

Hubbard said Smith was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out by Treasury Department Operatives James F. Johnson. The letter, the commissioner said, was a "ten-page burst of religious enthusiasm." He declined to reveal its contents.

25 More Are Indicted For Election Fraud

Kansas City, June 11 (AP).—A Federal grand jury late today indicted 25 election officials and party workers with conspiracy to deprive voters of their franchise in the November 3 election.

The indictments increase the total number so charged to 151, of whom 41 have been convicted. The jurors charged ballots marked for Alfred M. Landon for President had been altered and recorded for President Roosevelt.

W.C.T.U. Chiefs Assail Brewers In Resolution

Also Condemn U. S. Rum Distillery Financed With Taxes.

The national executive committee of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the United States, consisting of official representatives from every State, at its concluding session at the Washington Hotel, yesterday adopted a resolution pledging the W. C. T. U. to challenge the "present super sales promotion and propaganda of the beer interests."

The following action was taken in other resolutions:

The committee arraigned the Federal Administration for investing "more than a million dollars of the taxpayers' money" in the "Government House Rum" distillery in the Virgin Islands, and registering a sweeping protest against the project which is "making all citizens partners in the business," for the first time in American history.

Another resolution called for Federal and State legislation against the cultivation and sale of marihuana and for united action against the many-sided increase in gambling and concluded with the request that the United States and the State departments of public health include in their educational program for the prevention of social diseases a warning against even a moderate use of alcohol.

With Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president in the chair, the executive committee adopted plans for aggressively pushing the five-year program of alcohol education now in progress which is being underwritten by a $1,000,000 fund, and which is to culminate on September 28, 1939, the birthday anniversary of Frances E. Willard.

The committee also approved the project of a country-wide series of State rallies on behalf of this program to be held under the joint direction of national and State organizations to embrace every State in the Union during the coming months and approved preliminary plans for the next national convention to be held in San Francisco in July or August, 1939.

President Approves Cummings Plea; Prisoner Is 'Mighty Happy,' Still Expects to Be Cleared; Jaynes Refuses Comment.

later this thing is going to be finished and run to the ground."

Meanwhile, William B. Jaynes, 72-year-old widower, of the Garden T-Shoppe cashier shot in a hold-up Good Friday night of 1931, withheld comment on the commutation. Last Thursday he said would "blow the lid off" the case if Jordon received executive clemency.

Jaynes, who lives at 1316 New Hampshire avenue northwest, said he might issue a statement in the next few days.

Harry T. Whelan, attorney for the convicted slayer, conferred with his client at the jail late yesterday.

"I am very grateful for what has happened," Whelan declared afterward, "and I have high hopes that Jordon will be completely exonerated eventually. I also am confident that Attorney General Cummings will make favorable recommendations on my proposal to amend the 60-day law."

The statute in question, under its interpretation by the Supreme Court, provides that new evidence in a case which has been disposed of by the trial court must be presented within 60 days after judgment. In this instance, therefore, an act of Congress liberalizing the law will be necessary before Jordon can receive the opportunity of a new trial.

The last judgment was handed down November 9, 1936, when the District Court of Appeals denied his plea for another trial, and no new evidence was introduced in the ensuing 60 days. Only within the last two months has evidence been produced, principally a police incidental describing the gunman as being 6 feet tall, to support Jordon's plea of innocence. He is 5 feet 6 inches tall.

Attorney General Cummings' 31-page typewritten report was rushed to the White House by special messenger shortly before noon yesterday, and the President, already familiar with the background of the case, wasted no time in approving it.

"I sincerely appreciate the attitude of the President," Jordon said at his "press conference" in Jailer Thomas M. Rives' offices a short time later. "He did what I thought he would do. What I'm looking forward to now is a brand new trial, a fresh airing of the facts.

"As for what Mr. Jaynes said, that I should either be acquitted or killed, I fully agree with him. I don't fear another trial.—I want it."

He already had received seven reprieves, six by the courts and the seventh by President Roosevelt, when word of the commutation reached him yesterday. Since entering District Jail 25 months ago, following his arrest in Mount Vernon, N. Y., Jordon has gained 10 pounds, he said yesterday.

Neither he nor Whelan has learned yet where Jordon will be imprisoned or when the transfer will be made, they asserted. Charles Harris, the last white prisoner in District Jail to be saved from the electric chair by commutation to life, is now in the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

Yesterday's development in the attenuated Jaynes-Jordon case, incidentally, keeps intact the record of the local death chair in not having executed a white man since 1928. Eighteen colored persons have received capital punishment since the triple execution of Nicholas Eagles, Samuel Mareno and John Proctor on June 22, 1928, for the slaying of Policeman Leo K. Bush.

Previously the only white person to be electrocuted was Philip Jackson, who died less than a month earlier in expiation of a criminal-attack charge.

An odd chain of circumstances—the importance of Friday in Jordon's life—also was preserved when President Roosevelt chose that day to save his life. It was on a Friday he was released from the Moundsville (W. Va.) Penitentiary in February, 1931; that Mrs. Jaynes was slain and that Jordon was found guilty.

He was sentenced to die Friday, May 14, only to receive a last-minute reprieve from the President.

"Commuting Jordon's death sentence to life imprisonment will not be a just disposal of the case," commented John M. Holzworth, whom the prisoner has repudiated as his attorney.

"As Mr. Jaynes, the murdered woman's husband, said in his press interview yesterday, he should be either executed or freed. The Attorney General now has all the necessary evidenec to establish Jordon's innocence or guilt, and his pardon attorney, in a way, sat as a one-man jury.

"He had before him and questioned a half-dozen eyewitnesses to the murder, whose testimony unqualifiedly cleared Jordon as either the actual murderer or as either of the two bandits."

Holzworth last April discovered the important police incidental which described the killer as a 6-footer, which led to the commutation.

C.I.O. Planning Drive to Enroll U. S. Workers

Responsive Toward Units of A. F. G. E.; Will Include Others.

workers and another for State, county and municipal employes, or both classifications shall be included in a single Nation-wide body is one of the questions facing officials here.

There are few exceptions in the types of workers which the powerful young Lewis organization expects ultimately to include within its ranks. Railroad workers, building tradesmen and trucking employes are the only ones definitely eliminated thus far.

However, it is emphasized that an entirely new and different field from those already organized is offered by Government workers. Distinct problems and a different type of worker, with an equally different type of employer are encountered. All questions raised by these departures from usual conditions are being attacked in conferences now under way at C. I. O. headquarters.

Two methods of organization followed in other C. I. O. campaigns are both under consideration.

Industry Criticized.

Meanwhile, the C. I. O. won a ruling yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board which ordered the Mooresville Cotton Mills, of Mooresville, N. C., to cease discouraging membership by its employes in the United Textile Workers, and to reinstate eight employes discharged at the time of a strike in the plant in September, 1935. The employes are to receive pay for the time lost, minus any sums they have earned from other occupation in the meanwhile.

The board's decision was highly critical of labor relations in the textile industry, saying:

"The cotton textile industry is one which is singularly characterized by constantly recurring labor strife. Vicious competition has brought low wages and long working hours to the workers employed in that industry. To improve their wages and working conditions employes have attempted to organize, but their efforts have frequently proved unsuccessful. Interference with organization activities by employers and the failure of employers to recognize the organizations of employes have been a constant source of unrest."

Coalition Split as Van Zeeland Goes to Paris, Talks With Blum.

By the Associated Press.

Brussels, June 11.—Premier Paul van Zeeland left a badly clouded political situation at home today as he departed for Paris en route to the United States, where he will confer with President Roosevelt on trade problems.

The premier's own coalition government was faced by serious disagreement among its members over an amnesty bill for World War political offenders, passed with government support despite bitter opposition of war veterans.

(The Belgian premier stopped in Paris to confer with French foreign office officials. Diplomatic sources said he discussed new Locarno and Spanish war negotiations with French Premier Blum and Foreign Minister Yvon Delboa. He will sail for New York from Cherbourg tomorrow.)

Van Zeeland, visibly fatigued, showed the strain of the political situation in Belgium as he shook hands with a delegation that cheered him off at the station.

The amnesty bill, granting a pardon to those convicted of treason during the war, caused bitter strife within the parties that make up the government coalition. The premier lost much of the personal political ground he had gained in the past few weeks.

The bill, which he had hoped would foster national unity, proved a boomerang. The solidarity of Socialists helped pass the measure, but Liberals deserted en masse. They were angered also because they believed the premier was conspiring against the parties that stuck by him for a victory over Leon Degrelle, Rexist leader, because he wants to create a new "National Party." Degrelle, quasi-Fascist, challenged Van Zeeland in an April by-election.

Ostensibly the premier is going to America to receive an honorary degree from Princeton University, his alma mater.

He was delegated by France and Great Britain to make an international economic survey as a possible basis for negotiations for world reductions in trade tariffs, and his prospective talks with President Roosevelt are regarded as highly important, possibly to pave the way for an international conference.

Two Foes of Duce Mysteriously Slain which he had been banished by Il Duce.

Nello had gone to Paris when he likewise could not get along with the Fascists.

Mrs. Carlo Roselli declared that a "young Italian" had been arrested for questioning, that he had presented himself as a former student in her husband's classes at the University of Genoa, and that he twice had visited the brothers at Bagnoles.

Police would not comment. They were known, however, to be searching for two beautiful women who had been seen in the company of the Roselli brothers and who police thought might have lured them into a trap.

Rattler Bites Convict.

Huntsville, Tex., June 11 (AP).—Capt. J. P. Hamilton, of Eastham Prison Farm, said tonight a convict assigned to field work had forced a rattlesnake to bite him "to get out of the sun." Physicians said the convict, Ernie Brock, 35, was critically poisoned but would recover.

Tenant Dying, Landlord Shot In Row Over $5 Rent Boost

Boulevard Heights, Md., Man Barricades Home, Tries Suicide.

A landlord was shot and his tenant was dying after an argument over rent yesterday.

As police reconstructed the tragedy, John W. Moore, 37, a carpenter, apparently angered because his rent was to be raised from $20 to $25 a month, wounded the owner of his house, then turned a 12-gauge shotgun on himself after he had barricaded his home in Boulevard Heights, Md., to keep police from arresting him.

Charles Cornwell, 58, of 713 G street southeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital for minor gunshot wounds in the scalp and released. His assailant was at the point of death at the same hospital last night, suffering from a wound close to the heart.

Policeman Threatened.

When Officer Elon A. Turner, of the Prince Georges County police, arrived on the scene, he said Moore had taken refuge in his home and locked the doors. Gaining entrance through a window, Turner said he searched through several rooms and, unable to find the man, opened the front door from the inside and let Mrs. Moore, the man's wife, in the house.

Also in the party was Richard A. Pearson, of Colmar Manor, a candidate for the county police force, who had accompanied Turner "to see how the police department worked."

The three walked to the door of the kitchen, where they were confronted with a shotgun held by Moore. They dodged for cover and Turner instructed Pearson to call Acting Superintendent Arthur W. Hepburn, who was to bring tear-gas bombs.

Mumbles Love for Wife.

Before Hepburn arrived, however, Moore turned the gun on himself. He was found by the officers lying on the threshold between the kitchen and the dining room.

Still conscious, despite a gaping wound in his chest, police said he mumbled:

"Tell my wife I love her. I did this for her."

Cornwell had come to visit his sister, Mrs. Claude Edwards, who lives two doors from Moore's home, when, according to police, Moore approached and fired as the landlord stooped over. The slugs grazed Cornwell's head. While friends rushed the injured man to the hospital, Moore, police said, fled to his home.

Justice of the Peace Thomas Griffith, of Forestville, who is agent for Cornwell, said he had left a note under Moore's door yesterday notifying him that beginning July 1 the rent would be increased from $20 to $25 a month.

Mrs. Moore told police her husband had been angered over the increase in rent.

Filipino Scientist Dies.

Manila, P. I., June 11 (AP).—Francisco D. Reyes, 53, leading Filipino scientist and graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died today of a heart attack.

Yale and Johns Hopkins Graduate Shoots Self

Stamford, Conn., June 11 (AP).—Frederick C. Rawolle, jr., brilliant young Yale graduate who received his medical degree from Johns Hopkins University Monday, was found dead today in woods here, the victim of a bullet wound which a medical examiner said was self-inflicted.

Rawolle, 27-year-old son of a retired paint manufacturer, had been missing since Wednesday from his home. Dr. Calph G. Crane, Stamford medical examiner, said the young man had been in a "disturbed frame of mind" for the past few days.

Christian Science Topic Announced

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Psalms 62:7. "In God is my salvation and my glory; the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O love the Lord, all ye his saints: for the Lord preserveth the faithful, and plentifully rewardeth the proud doer." (Psalms 31:23).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Practice, not profession, understanding not belief, gain the ear and right hand of omnipotence and they assuredly call down infinite blessings."

Chicago University Honors Dr. Moulton

Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the University of Chicago convocation exercises yesterday. Dr. Moulton was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1907, received his Ph. D. degree in 1914, and was a member of the faculty until coming to Washington in 1922.

At the same exercises his daughter, Barbara, received her bachelor's degree. Miss Moulton, a graduate of the Madeira School in Washington, attended Smith College two years and the University of Vienna two years before transferring to Chicago for the completion of her work.

Today's Sermon

By the Rev. Harry V. Porter.

Pastor, Westminster Presbyterian Church.

How much like a letter one's spiritual life is. There is the letterhead of heredity signifying our background and origin. There is the date as it were the day on which we started on our journey from the hand of our Maker. Our destination, as the address on a letter is known to the Writer from the beginning. The salutation of childhood is short and cheerful. Then, there follow those long paragraphs of youth finding and clarifying its purpose; manhood and womanhood working out its plans and designs; of age closing hopefully and trustingly in the deep sincerity of faith. Finally, at the end one sees the signature of the Author whose "moving finger writes and having writ moves on." Is not the comparison surprisingly real and actual? As the great Apostle Paul once said, "Ye are our epistle, written in our hearts, known and read of all men." Some may seem like business letters, others more romantic; some may remind us of home and loved ones, others like the Apostle's epistle will speak to us of our Lord and Redeemer. But every life has its message, and if we but read between the lines we shall find that the deepest longings of mankind are being expressed in living letters all about us.

Evangelistic and Prophetic Bible Conference

Are we headed for the black midnight of the middle ages? Will frenzied Communism, Fascism, Nazism and Paganism plunge civilization into destruction?

Or is the world facing the imminent sunrise of Christ's Second Advent and the Golden Age for mankind?

Everyone in Washington should not fail to hear the inspiring, encouraging, hopeful message of

who has just returned from a two-year preaching tour of Europe, the Near East and the Holy Land, traveling 30,000 miles. He will describe the great spiritual Christian revivals that are occurring in the European hotbeds of Communism and Fascism. He will convince you that the greatest force in the world today is not human nor political but spiritual—the Holy Spirit of God at work in the Church of Jesus Christ, the world over.

CHRISTIAN AMERICANS AWAKE! The God of Finney and Moody still lives. Let us pray for a nation-wide revival.

Meetings begin Sunday morning, June 6, and continue for three weeks. Evangelist Nagel speaks each night except Mondays and Saturdays at 8 P. M. The character of these meetings will be undenominational so that all will feel welcome.

284 Graduates GivenDiplomas At National U.

Sen. Thomas, Speaker, Is Awarded Honorary Degree.

Governments in Germany, Italy and Russia are as much a reversion to the past as the execution of prisoners by stoning them to death would be in this country, Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah, told the National University Graduating classes last night.

Senator Thomas spoke at commencement exercises in Memorial Continental Hall, when diplomas were awarded 284 graduates. After his address he was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of letters "in recognition of valuable contributions to political thought and eminent services in the field of statesmanship."

Declaring the basic philosophy of totalitarian states tends to reduce men to the efficiency of the ant hill, or the beaver colony, Senator Thomas added:

"I do not say this in depreciation of the three systems I have mentioned, and the law which is the result of that philosophy in those lands, for ant governments are efficient and beaver communities produce great engineers.

"Perhaps man can fulfill his purpose by submitting completely to the will of the leader. But for me that philosophy does not satisfy my political ideals, my moral responsibilities or my theories of man and his worth."

Fallon Is Speaker.

Degrees were conferred by Chancellor Charles S. Hatfield, candidates being presented by Dean Charles Pergler, of the Law School, and Dean Eugene Carusi, of the School of Economics and Government. Competition Urged By Sen. Wheeler

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, tonight urged industrialists to foster true competition to avoid Government control.

He mentioned "signs of prosperity" in the railroad field in an address before the American Retail Coal Association and added:

"The competition of the bus and truck and private automobiles accomplished in a few years what the Interstate Commerce Commission, 25 successive Congresses and over half a dozen Chief Executives struggled vainly to accomplish for 50 years."

Russia Gets Permission To Fly Plane Over U. S.

By the Associated Press.

The State Department announced yesterday it has granted a request of the Russian Embassy for a Soviet aviator to fly over United States territory.

This indicated the Moscow government expected soon to try another flight from the Soviet capital to San Francisco via the North Pole—a venture which failed in 1935 because of mechanical difficulties encountered by Pilot Sigsmund Levanevesky.

There Is No Substitute For Custom Tailoring

We gladly admit all of the admirable qualities found in a number of ready-made suits for men. The fabric quite often is really excellent and the styling is good for a large number of people. That is the point—the same suit is seen and worn by so many men that it quickly loses whatever identity it may have one time had. Custom tailoring assures you that you will not meet yourself on every street corner—you know that your clothes, if they are custom-tailored, have individuality. When custom-tailored by Woodward and Lothrop, you have the additional satisfaction of fine fabrics, fine workmanship, the best in fit and form and style. The additional value of custom-tailored suits more than pays for the additional price.

Now featuring all popular Summer fabrics . . . . . $60 to $95

Senator Byrnes' Relief Plan.

Following defeat of a proposal to cut $500,000,000 from the relief bill, a Senate sub-committee has accepted Senator Byrnes' amendment requiring local governments to bear 40 per cent of the cost of WPA projects. Exceptions to this rule of "matching" contributions would be permitted if a community certified its inability to comply with the requirements. In that case, an investigation would be made to determine the maximum amount that could be paid.

Hitherto the proportion of local to Federal funds expended upon WPA projects has been left to the discretion of Administrator Hopkins. As a result, the contributions of the States and their local subdivisions have been very low, amounting on the average to only 13.1 per cent of the approved cost of all WPA projects through December 31, 1936. The range by States, however, has varied from less than 8 per cent to more than 28 per cent.

Mr. Hopkins admits that his organization has been unable to find any criterion by which to determine accurately and scientifically what a community can or cannot afford to pay. Indeed, an emergency relief organization like the WPA is not in a position to gauge the financial capacity and the credit status of 48 States and innumerable municipalities. Hence, dollars have been expended where relief rolls are heaviest and the pressure for Federal funds greatest.

That policy does not work well in practice because it encourages an irresponsible attitude on the part of local governments. A system requiring these local units to make large contributions to the cost of supporting the unemployed would impress upon them the necessity of cutting relief rolls as fast as possible. By setting a standard rate of contribution the WPA would be relieved, too, of an impossible task.

Of course, so long as the Federal Government clings to the WPA system, the States and local governments will not obtain the same amount of effective assistance that might be secured under a system of grants-in-aid for purposes of direct relief. No doubt Senator Byrnes' proposal for increased "matching" appropriations would result in a heavy decline in Federal relief outlays. But abolition of the WPA would be better still, since that would make possible a sharp reduction in costs without danger of denying relief to any who are still in actual need of it. In other words, the country needs not only economy in relief spending, but also more economical ways of administering relief.

Wages And Tariff Rates.

The Black-Connery bill aims not only to prevent exploitation of labor in the lowest-paid, unskilled groups, but also to raise wages and elevate labor standards for workers above the margin. Section 5 of the bill, which has been a target of attack by labor leaders as well as industrialists, authorizes the proposed Labor Standards Board to set minimum fair rates of pay for certain classes of workers up to a maximum of $1,200 per year or 80 cents per hour, exclusive of overtime.

That hourly rate is double the minimum tentatively suggested for the protection of exploited labor and more than twice the hourly earnings of many women workers at the present time. Hence, if section 5 should be accepted, the board would have far-reaching discretionary power to raise wages above existing levels and thereby add to industrial production costs.

Under these circumstances it is natural that industry should demand protection against increased foreign competition resulting from wage decrees. It has been suggested, therefore, that the proposed Labor Standards Board be given power to raise import duties along with wage scales. A spokesman for a well-known trade association, testifying before the joint Congressional committee, went so far as to urge mandatory increases in tariff rates to offset increased costs due to wage edicts. In its present form, moreover, the bill apparently empowers the Labor Board to prevent shipment into a State of foreign goods made under conditions regarded as unfair.

No matter where the power to alter tariff rates might be lodged, it is evident that adjustments to a new legislatively defined scale of wages would have to be made by some agency to prevent serious dislocations of our industrial structure. The extent of those adjustments would, of course, depend upon the way in which the wage-fixing Federal board might exercise its vast powers of control. But all changes, large or small, would be in one direction—upward. That is, they would run counter to the efforts of the State Department to expand trade by lowering tariff barriers. They would tend to isolate us more and more, economically speaking, from the rest of the world.

Not only would imports be cut down by the raising of tariff barriers, but exports also would be reduced by higher production costs which would decrease foreign purchases. The net result would be costly dislocations of industry, higher domestic prices, reduced output and, in the end, less work and lower real wages for labor itself.

Recruits For The C. I. O.

The suspension of seven lodges belonging to the American Federation of Government Employes followed their refusal to obey an order of the executive council forbidding mass meetings and demonstrations against the economy drive in Congress. The rebellious lodges contend that the heads of the A. F. G. E. have not been active in protecting them against pay cuts and dismissals.

To these charges President Stengle has replied by a recital of his work in behalf of Government employes. He properly objects, however, to mass meetings as a means of enlisting support for an anti-economy drive on the ground that they create a false impression that Government workers are opposed to any form of economy. "My experience," he says, "covering a period of over 15 years on the Hill strongly convinces me that these mass meetings serve no useful purpose and very frequently because of wild statements made from the platform create real danger to the cause which they represent."

Obviously, such judicious utterances will not make an appeal to temporary employes who constitute a large proportion of the membership of some suspended unions. A very real problem is created by these temporary workers who bring pressure to bear upon the A. F. G. E. to protect them against dismissal.

However, the rift over the economy mass meeting is not the only cause of dissension. Differences of opinion exist as to the proper function of a union of Government employes. Some of the more radical elements think that the methods suitable to unions in private industry should be brought into the Government field. Others realize that tactics which might be permissible in the one case would amount to an intolerable interference with the orderly functioning of the Government if practiced by Government employes.

Then, as in every organization, a minority group resents the disciplinary efforts of those in control. The fact that those in power hold office by vote of the majority does not silence criticism or prevent revolt any more than it did in the famous struggle which caused the C. I. O. to separate from the A. F. of L. The latest dispute over the economy issue is merely another incident in the stormy history of the A. F. G. E.

Amidst the welter of charges and counter-charges, all that an outsider can safely venture to say is that a substantial minority of the A. F. G. E. membership is thoroughly out of sympathy with the aims of the majority and inclined to question the representative character of those in control of the organization.

The latter meet charges of high-handed arbitrary tactics by citing the authority given them under the constitution of the A. F. G. E. to discipline recalcitrant groups. Apparently the breach has at last become too wide to be bridged and the result is that seven suspended lodges and probably a number of other dissatisfied groups have decided to enroll with the C. I. O. This secession may prove to be significant judged in the light of later events. At present, however, it appears to be due to internal disputes resulting from personal misunderstandings over organization methods and general aims.

Two Aids To Traffic.

District residents who waste several hours per week in traffic jams, as well as those whose lives are endangered by reckless driving, will find interest in the survey being conducted by Traffic Director Van Duzer, Capt. Whitehurst and their associates. The local experts are giving special attention to New York's elevated roads and speedways. Since New York has been comparatively more successful than Washington in relieving congestion and promoting safety, this study of its technique should prove fruitful.

No doubt Washington will ultimately have to resort to elevated speedways in some of its more congested sections. The need for some special arrangement to facilitate the traffic through Georgetown is already well recognized. At best, however, several years will be required to plan and construct expensive speedways. In the meantime the traffic problem will remain acute.

In line with what other large cities have done, several improvements could be made immediately. First, sharp corners could be eliminated from many streets, especially at the intersections of main thoroughfares with congested circles. At present only the inner traffic lanes surrounding the circles are customarily in use. Motorists avoid the outer lanes because of the sharp turns required. Scott circle serves as a perpetual example of the congestion resulting from this source.

Second, some of Washington's broad streets already in use might well be converted into speedways. The city has made too little use of its wide avenues as traffic boulevards. With a few underpasses beneath circles and greater restrictions against cross traffic, such streets as Massachusetts and Connecticut avenues could be made to carry much larger volumes of traffic, with a smoother, safer and more rapid flow.

While traffic authorities are planning a long-time program of improvements, therefore, attention may well be given also to immediate changes that would relieve congestion with a minimum of cost and effort.

Sanity In The Strike Zone.

What would have been one of the most dangerous incidents of the current strike epidemic has been averted by the courageous leadership of Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America. If plans of a local U. A. W. A. union to march on Monroe, Mich., had been carried out, the entire country might have been saddened by a disastrous industrial battle. Instead, Mr. Martin's intervention, together with his rebuke to the "outlaw" power strikers of Flint, has introduced a note of sanity that should aid in the final adjustment of this and other disputes.

The strikers at Monroe had taken an utterly unreasonable position. In spite of a poll showing that an overwhelming majority of the employes in the Newton Steel Co.'s plant wished to return to work, pickets maintained their siege. The principle of majority rule established by the Wagner labor relations act was thus replaced by dictatorship on the part of a minority. That attitude seems to have produced an unfavorable reaction through most of the town. At any rate, 10,000 residents are reported to have cheered lustily when the strikers were dislodged by a force of special deputy sheriffs.

No doubt Mr. Martin realized the weakness of the Monroe strikers' case. To have sanctioned a march on Monroe under these circumstances would have been a severe blow to the prestige of the C. I. O. It would have put that agency in the position of encouraging violent resistance to public authority to support mob rule. When passions are aroused in the midst of a fight, however, both reason and self-interest sometimes fail to restrain rash action. The U. A. W. A. leader is entitled to a large measure of credit for his good judgment and resolute action while a crisis was pending.

Danger of violence, open clashes and even small-scale warfare would soon pass if this example of responsible leadership were carried to its logical conclusion. Members of the C. I. O. unions have a real grievance against the independent steel companies whose plants have been closed by strikes. The companies have declined to sign any contract with the C. I. O. On the other hand, that organization has not yet established its right to speak for the majority of the employes in these plants.

It is utterly unreasonable for unions that will not trust their case to an impartial election among employes to besiege company plants and thus deprive nonunion men of their means of livelihood. Leaders of the C. I. O. ought to realize that these tactics will not long be tolerated, despite the arbitrary conduct of employers against whom the fight is directed. Labor will have a poor case before Congress, the courts and public opinion so long as it ignores the law enacted for its benefit and employs strategy that leads directly to violence.

The Senate Postoffice Committee has quite properly decided to investigate interference with the mails in strike areas and the activities of the steel companies. That should be a signal for abandonment of illegal sieges and resort to peaceful picketing until the points of disagreement can be adjusted. If this probe is properly conducted it should throw a good deal of light upon the alleged inadequacies of the Wagner act as well as the respective delinquencies of the parties to the dispute. But in any event it can only result in more emphatic demands for an end of lawlessness and violence wherever they may arise.

Local Book Makes Good.

Objectivity in writing, according to reviewers, is definitely in again. The writer who dabbles in streams of consciousness these days is apt to make only a very small literary splash. The realistic reportorial style is what readers are looking for now. Perhaps that explains, in part, the great interest shown by Washingtonians in a 1,376-page tome which appeared this week.

Though anything but a mystery book, its very first page is packed with suspense. Opening with the tense words, "I want the police," it ends dramatically with a few short paragraphs laid in a funeral home. Even Hemingway could not have written a more logical conclusion to a book on urban and suburban life than that. A stream finds its way into this otherwise compact piece of writing on page 578, but it is not a stream of consciousness.

The story which the book unfolds is as old as life and death, making it an almost universal treatise on life in the average American city. It contains seven references to Babbitts, but without the caustic inferences of Sinclair Lewis. Sixteen O'Haras have their brief moment also, but there is only one Scarlett. This, in the best Mitchellese, is the way it should be. A true picture of the time, it incorporates a bit of Americana in the mention of four blacksmiths and one livery stable.

The book, indeed, is one that will probably be found in the home of every up-to-date Washingtonian. Soon dogs-eared pages and penciled passages will distinguish it as the sort of book which may be referred to again and again. It is, in short, the summer-fall edition of the Washington Telephone Directory.

Reply By Father Kelly.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Congress repealed the red rider, a safety measure designed to prevent the advocacy of the Russian brand of "democracy" in the Washington public schools, I decided to wait and observe how the friends of communism among our educators would act, and what liberties they might take. For it was admitted that, in spite of their protest of not favoring communism, the action of our legislators in repealing the law could put no restraint on teachers disposed to advocate communism.

After an absence from the city, my attention was called to a letter of L. L. Bell, published in The Post, June 2, which took issue with some "theories" which he said were expressed in my letter of May 15 to The Post. What they were I cannot guess. When he praised the Bolsheviks of Russia for throwing off the yoke of the czar, did he mean to compare them with the American patriots who threw off the tyranny of George III? Does he, deceived by the lying propaganda that is coming out of Russia, prefer the tyranny of the Soviets to that of the czars? Does he mean to insinuate that we, too, are due for a radical change in our system of government?

He says that our students who are to be our future citizens should be taught to know the systems and plans of government that have been tried and have failed, so as to avoid similar mistakes when their turn comes to take part in our Government. That has been our contention in upholding the red rider, not, indeed, that students be kept in ignorance of communism (as our opponents have persistently and unfairly represented us as wishing), but that they be taught the evils of communism as seen both in Spain and in Russia, and its failure, as in the successive "plans" of Stalin government, and so our young people will be prepared to combat a system so radically un-American.

One word more—to teach communism is to advocate it. When I teach mathemati , I expect my pupils to accept my teaching and assimilate it as truth, so for grammar, geography and the sciences. To teach communism is to indoctrinate the pupils in the tenets and practices of that treasonable system. Let us have books on the subject that will expose communism; not those with a Russian taint that favor and promote it. And let us be on guard so that no teacher may presume to controvert and contradict the patriotic doctrine contained in the right kind of books if and when the school board supplies them. (REV.) L. J. KELLY, S. J.

Anti-Noise.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with great interest a contribution by one "Fides" in yesterday's paper. He is a gentleman I would be glad to call friend. Up to reading his little message I thought I was the only fellow in town that objected to unseemly noises.

What with loud talking across the court, blaring radios late at night and first thing in the morning, barking dogs and squawking auto horns, I find the evenings almost a nightmare. On top of all that, the last few nights, I have had my ears regaled with that most fiendish of human inventions, the toy cap pistol. The sharp, tearing sound of a cap exploding at irregular intervals is my idea of the ultimate in torture.

Oh, for a chance to line up all drivers who bear down on their horns and give them a dose of their own medicine; that is, make them listen to their own horns a foot from their heads! How I would relish that performance! What a job with a little authority does to most people, a car and a loud horn does for a great many others. It gives them that much needed feeling of superiority. How their tiny souls rejoice in announcing to the world at large by constant pounding on their horns that they, the mighty ones, are here to be noticed. SANE LIVING.

Call In Prof. Fordney.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Where is the calm and self-possessed sleuth of your Sunday rotogravure supplement, Prof. Fordney, while all these tidewater high-diving mysteries are transpiring? The Keene case would be a set-up for him—he would solve it in about two pipefuls while the candid cameras clicked.

And wouldn't our faces be red at the simplicity of the thing! It wouldn't be at all F. Marion Crawfordish to the professor.

The Press And Spain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our hearts go out to the Basque children, torn from their families and homeland and forced to find refuge in foreign lands. In the appeals made to our sympathy for these refugees, why is no mention made of the fact that this tragic situation could have been avoided had the Bilbao government accepted the offer of Generals Franco and Mola to afford the Basque women and children a place of sanctuary 40 miles from Bilbao, free from attack and the horrors of war?

This is just another instance where the press has failed to present facts that redound to the credit of the nationalist forces in the tragic conflict going on in Spain. Let us hope that Sir Walter Maxwell-Scott's statement in his recent interview with a reporter of the New York Times will help to give to the world a fairer picture of the nationalist cause than the press has offered heretofore.

Would Reorganize Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is doubtless much guessing on what the President will propose for the reorganization of the legislative branch of the Government, which, it is understood, is in course of study under surroundings of the most unusual secrecy.

Of course the most common guess is that such a proposal will indicate the influence of Senator Norris, who can qualify as an expert through his accomplishing such a wonderful feat as changing the Legislature of Nebraska to a unicameral body of small membership.

No private citizen who attends the sessions of the House and Senate and studies the weaknesses of Congress as at present constituted can question the desirability of some form of constitutional amendment that would make the Congress a more efficient branch of the Government. Such a proposal would undoubtedly be given great impetus by success of the President in reorganizing the Supreme Court.

CHAS. P. GRIFFIN.
Clarendon, Va., June 10.

False Economy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The introduction in Congress of measures proposing reductions in governmental appropriations is a source of serious anxiety to all Government employes.

People who were in the Government service at the time of the 1932 economy drive, recall what happened then—thousands of dismissals, a 15 per cent cut in all salaries, reduction of annual leave. And the resulting lowering of governmental efficiency and morale, and the elimination of numerous vital governmental functions, ultimately proved far more wasteful than economical.

Personnel expenditures are only a very small part of the cost of running the United States Government. Yet these are always the first affected during an economy drive. In the long run, the Government saves nothing—but thousands are left unemployed, and hundreds of thousands find that their incomes have been reduced, their vacations cut, and their hours of work lengthened by regular overtime.

Thirteenth Street Race Track.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: What a pleasure it is to have these new type cars that touch the 40 and 50-mile speed without effort! You can visualize a racetrack without visiting Indianapolis and without waiting for the annual races.

One might feel safe enough in turret top speed cars but what happens to the poor pedestrian who has to cross the street sometime in the morning about 7:45. The steady stream of racing cars, unobstructed by traffic lights, proves an enormous hardship for those who happen to live on Thirteenth street above Monroe.

So much has been done for improving the comforts of the driver that one is beginning to wonder if the pedestrian has been forgotten when considering the use of the streets.

In Defense of Realtors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The complaint of Constance Southworth that real estate men are despoiling the natural beauty of Washington published in "Letters to the Editor" of June 10 was today called to the attention of the writer by a realtor of northern Virginia who feels that the large circulation of your paper in Virginia requires that the Virginia Real Estate Association take cognizance of the statements and point out the necessity that arises, forcing the subdivision of "charming spots."

At the moment I cannot orient the scheduled spot referred to as being vandalized. It has been my observation, however, that the forces causing subdivision of any area are approximately the same and therefore I shall proceed on the theory that the area under discussion is similar in most respects to other sections that have been placed on the market for home seekers.

There is prevalent today and has been for many, many years a system of taxing real estate that, insofar as it affects unimproved realty in particular, amounts to a confiscatory capital tax. The merits or shortcomings of the realty tax system are so great that space will not permit discussion here at this time. Until unimproved realty, however, is relieved of this burden we must expect the heavily burdened owners of real estate to subdivide their holdings whenever the market affords an opportunity.

All of us, and particularly realtors, if I may say so, dislike intensely to see any spot of beauty yield to any necessity. Our citizens, however, must have homes and the homes must be located within reach of transportion to and from their jobs. In this category many barren spots have been developed into beautiful subdivisions with attractive homes and wide spacious lawns.

If it is any consolation to those who are distressed at the passing of a spot of natural beauty to the ever forward movement of progress may I suggest it would have been impossible for the people of Washington to preserve this beauty for themselves through the medium of purchase by the District Commissioners?

No thinking person should contend that private owners of real estate should maintain parks or "secluded" areas for the benefit of the general public, and we do not feel that persons in possession of facts would even give second thought to such proposals.

With this brief outline of the major factors entering subdividing real estate it will appear rational we hope, that real estate men rather than being despoilers of natural beauty are really the visionaries through whom many of our most beautiful residential sections have been built.

If the nature lovers of Washington are tired of writing and talking about the march of progress and its effects upon natural beauty, the writer suggests that they make a survey of the natural beauty spots in and around Washington and prevail upon the District Commissioners to preserve them for future generations. Who knows but that nature lovers may find that realtors are more than anxious to help them preserve intact many of the delightful and charming spots that surround Washington.

Hotel Verandah.

A NUMBER of the ladies had fallen into the habit of gathering together around 10 in the morning on the verandah overlooking the golf course. There they rocked and talked, absently watching the honey bees that hummed around the cannas beyond the porch railing, avidly speculating upon the life habits of all newcomers. The lady from Richmond, the lady from Charleston (South Ca'lina, to be sure) and the lady from Atlanta, bound together by ties no Northerner could ever quite comprehend, formed a particularly close group. One day the lady from Richmond introduced a stranger to her friends.

The stranger took her rocker and picked up her fan with the air of a veteran.

"It's lovely out here," she said. "So nice and shady. So peaceful."

The lady from Charleston leaned forward in her chair.

"And where are you from?" she asked.

"I'm from Washington," the newcomer answered. There was a silence. The lady looked around her. "I'm sure all of you know Washington."

"Yes," said the lady from Atlanta. "It's a lovely city," said the lady whose home it was. "Right now it offers more advantages than at any time in history, and more, I daresay, than any other city in America."

• • • •

"Just what kind of advantages?" the lady from Charleston forced herself to ask.

"Oh, cultural, of course. Why, look at all the things we have there, open to the public. There are the National Museum, the Smithsonian, the Corcoran Gallery of Art—to name a few. Then there will be the new gallery given by Mr. Mellon. Of course, it may not be as large of the Louvre, but it is a marvelous addition, just the same. Why, in art alone Washington is fast becoming a world capital.

"Then look at our colleges and universities. They're splendid. Really splendid. You know the names of the larger ones, of course, but in addition to those we have kindergartens, finishing schools for girls, business schools, law schools, religious schools—all kinds. Yes, Washington is truly an educational center.

"Think of our public buildings. Some just for beauty, designed to please the eye; others for utility and public advancement. And our lecture courses are as fine as any in America. Lectures on law, on diplomacy, on government, on the various branches of our national armed services. I'm a pacifist at heart, but I consider it only wise that our men should know what to do in case of war. Don't you agree, ladies?

"And I'm sure that all of you, on your own trips to Washington, have observed our beautiful parks, our landscaped squares and circles. Most of them have fine old trees; of course, the streets of Washington are simply lined with trees, and they do so contribute to beauty. Then we have the National Symphony and the other symphonic and single-artist concerts that are brought us each winter. We have the theater. Each season numbers of plays open in Washington before they are taken to New York. Really, I can hardly enumerate all the advantages of just living in Washington."

• • • •

"But what of the spirit of Washington?" asked the lady from Charleston. "It's neither North nor South, you know."

"That may be true," said the champion of the Capital, "and yet Baltimore, which has always considered itself a Southern city, is farther North. As I recall, it was more or less planned, almost 150 years ago, that Washington should occupy the place it does. Our Capital belongs to our Nation. And yet I think that those of us who are the old residents of the city agree that there is a very definite Southern flavor about it. I think that anyone who has ever visited in Washington will agree with that.

"We show visitors, whether they are native Americans or foreigners, our points of public interest; we introduce them to our friends. We motor them into the adjacent countrysides of Virginia and Maryland, which are so near as to keep us constantly aware of the attractions of the country in contrast with the attractions of the city. Washington is certainly not like a metropolis so vast as to require hours to get out of town. Yes, I think the spirit of Washington is quite cordial; I think it even radiates a certain friendliness, and I think very positively that our ideas of appreciation and hospitality and all that are quite definitely molded along the Southern tradition."

• • • •

Then something happened among the ladies on the porch. Afterward they were never quite clear as to actually which one of them had spoken. But no one denied that a voice among them said quite distinctly:

"Washington is a mongrel city!"

It was still shady on the verandah, but the peacefulness spoken of by the lady from Washington was gone.

The lady from Richmond, who had presented the lady from Washington, felt her responsibility keenly. And she arose to the occasion.

"Girls!" she said. "Girls! What do you say to a hand of bridge?"

Autos.

EXCEPT IN THE matter of beauty, which is debatable, anyway, the American automobile of the present day is a marvel of reliability. So I propose that recognition be given at the next round of automobile shows to the people whose optimism and patience in suffering and disappointment made possible this achievement. That would not be the inventors, the factory talent, the designers or engineers, nor yet the money operators in the street who promoted the manufacturing companies.

It wouldn't be Ford, Hudson, Knudsen, Nash, Graham or Louis Chevrolet, and it wouldn't be Durant or any duPont, either. It would be Mr. and Mrs. George Spelvin, the average Americans, and the great, reliable suckers who saved a little money and bought a family car and later on another, notwithstanding mechanical and moral failures of the industry which threw on them the financial burden of the experiments leading to perfection.

Starting with their first jaloppy about 25 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Spelvin have ridden in some terrible junks at great expense, but I think they are reaping their reward now, either in heaven or in the current models which slide along like the shadow of a bird on slick water, and with scarcely ever a moment's misbehavior under the hood.

These cars are the best dollar's worth that money ever could buy, and that is only fair, because there have been times when a happy family party on a Sunday outing on suburban roads could figure on $5 worth of horn trouble alone.

• • • •

NOT ONLY were the cars no good in those days but the dealers' and manufacturers' guarantee was even worse—a foul and cynical snare which promised to make good defects in material and workmanship, and never, to my considerable personal knowledge of such failures, replace so much as a two-bit bolt or a dime-a-dozen washer.

If the engine fell out in the middle of the road, that was no fault of the engine itself or the genius who forgot to wire it down, but an act of God, the devil or a bad driver.

Wheels came off and rolled gaily away through daisy fields or delicatessen windows, the lamps wouldn't light, the brakes wouldn't hold, the gears wouldn't shift, the engines wouldn't run, and ever and anon Mr. Spelvin, tooling along with the kiddies and the little woman in his costly can, would feel an ominous vibration in his highly sensitized toes and know that $60 worth of rear-end gears had failed to mesh and were grinding themselves to shrapnel in the housing.

He then paid $10 to be towed to the lair of a roadside brigand who charged him $80 more to repair the damage, and, like as not, a dollar a day to store the barouche until he could borrow the money from the loan shark to bail it out.

They made their brake rods of wire cable which stretched like rubber bands—a noble experiment, to be sure, though expensive to Mr. Spelvin. They misjudged the heat of the exhaust lines, with the result that Mr. Spelvin often paid specialists' rates to solemn consultants at the roadside clinics, who put in new gadgets but warned him frankly, and with truth, that this model was just another turkey in the long and painful process of improving the breed of the motor car.

HIS TIRES BLEW out or just sighed quietly and died softly and sometimes his steering wheel or his gearshift lever came off in his hands as he pointed out the beauties of the hot-dog and souvenir stands along the lovely open road.

Twenty years ago Mr. Spelvin paid for a four-cylinder bone-breaker more than he pays today for an eight-cylinder car that rarely seems to take a deep breath, even in heavy traffic or going up the hills. He paid extra for the little 10-cent mirror that gave him a third eye for cops behind, extra for the spare tire, tube and rim, extra for the frames to hold his license and extra for the nickeled Kewpie, Brownie or other esthetic dingbat on the radiator cap.

For a long time he paid extra for the lighting equipment and the self-starter, and I am not sure but that the manufacturer's label was a little something extra, too.

Honor, of course, to the horny-handed, square-cap heroes of labor who put these traps together, and honor to the inventor, the financier and the man who drew the pretty pictures of the ads. But honor first, and in greatest measure, to Mr. and Mrs. George Spelvin, the game, indomitable guinea pigs of the automotive industry, whose woes, optimism and humble earnings are built into the car that rolls along serene, comfortable and almost infallible today.

What! No Midway?

There will be 280 acres devoted to amusement at the New York World's Fair, and not an inch of it used by bubble dancers, hip-twisters, muscle dancers, strip-teasers, dancers or squirming of the loftier or baser types, proclaims Mr. Grover Whalen.

• • • •

This will make it the only 280 acres in all America where something of that sort is not going on.

• • • •

The Little Egypt, Fatima and Sally Rand influence will be positively out, insists Mr. Whalen, but you can get better than even money that it is overoptimistic. A world's fair without squirm appeal is like a Mardi Gras without a beauty queen, a circus without a sideshow or an art gallery with nothing but botanical prints.

• • • •

Many an exposition had tried to make a go of it merely as a world's fair, only to discover that the cash customers would have nothing to do with it unless they could enter via a midway.

• • • •

The folks will express amazement at the Plaza of International Industries, say "Ah-h-hl" in front of the Tower of Continental Art and stop munching all-hots for a moment as they stand in awe at the entrance to the Seven Temples of Scientific Progress, but they will go away knocking the show if they can't have their Men's Smoker influence.

• • • •

Maybe Grover will be the man to give the world a fleshless world's fair. He may be right. There are indications that nudity has been boring the public for the last couple of years and that a sensation of the era would be a tent containing a little lady with all her clothes on.

• • • •

If this is to be a world's fair of novelty, Mr. Whalen might advertise Mlle. Olgo-Olgo, the 18-year-old high school girl who never cut classes to get into a newsreel photo of the crowd at the gangster's funeral.

I know who'll seek my job, the snake!

Wage And Hour Legislation

Black-Connery Bill Called New Deal Milepost.

By Herbert M. Bratter.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE WORKERS of this country are convinced that political strength is necessary so that industrial planning under the Federal auspices may be made possible, John L. Lewis this week told the Black-Connery congressional committee and the world at large. What does this statement imply? To some it may sound like an ominous portent of a drift toward state socialism. Others may be intrigued by the more immediate political significance of Mr. Lewis' remarks. For, he said further, "American working men are convinced that they must have both political and economic organization and power," which perhaps means a Labor party. Is it, indeed, a clarion call for 1940? Just what is at stake in this Black-Connery bill?

The administration's plan for wages and hours regulation by the Federal Government is in reality a major feature of the New Deal program of social reform and improvement of the welfare of the masses. It will constitute another important step "on our way," although not the final step. In view of the recent series of Supreme Court decisions favorable to the Administration, notably the Wagner act decision, governing collective bargaining, enactment by Congress of wage and hour standards for business in or affecting interstate commerce during the present session seems assured.

In his message to Congress President Roosevelt expressed the hope that, by minimizing overwork and underpay, unemployment can be decreased in those groups where it principally exists today. The Nation-wide significance of national legislation on conditions of employment needs no demonstration. Nearly 80 per cent of the country's breadwinners obtain their livelihood as employes. Over 60 per cent of the national income is distributed in the form of wages and salaries. The gross labor force today, including the unemployed, approximates 53,000,000 persons, with over 41,000,000 of these gainfully employed.

The significance of this bill to industry is equally apparent. Not only fair labor standards, but fair trade standards on a Nation-wide scale are objects of the New Deal, and separate legislation on this latter subject may be looked for next year in accordance with the recommendations of the President's committee of industrial analysis.

Black-Connery Bill Reminiscent Of NRA.

THE BLACK-CONNERY bill authorizing a Government commission to fix minimum wages and maximum hours of labor at "fair" levels has a number of points suggestive of the NRA. It avoids price fixing and trade practice, however, and—unlike the NRA—is not conceived as an emergency measure. True, there are still millions of jobless and the President, for one, thinks this legislation will help reduce their numbers.

The present program, however, is intended to be enduring. Its object is much more than to spread work; it aims to give labor permanently more leisure and a larger share of the national income. If it succeeds, employers and other non-beneficiaries of the program will naturally receive a smaller share of the national income. The effect of the proposed plan on the total volume of our national income is a separate question.

The program now proposed is one which has been advocated a long time. It is in precise agreement with the recommendations of organized labor as published by Maj. Berry's Council for Industrial Progress in March, 1936. It is indorsed substantially by the C. I. O. It is approved by a large part, but not all, of the A. F. of L. In this view, the payment of low wages and the exaction of long hours of work constitutes "unfair competition," contrary to the general welfare.

The philosophy of a living wage, so vital a part of the bill under discussion, although greatly advanced by the New Deal, did not originate with it. It was clearly expounded by Pope Pius XI in 1931 in his encyclical Quadragesimo Anno, and, of course, by Pope Leo XIII 40 years earlier in his encyclical Rerum Novarum. The latter document maintained that "remuneration must be enough to support the wage earner in reasonable and frugal comfort." More than 30 years ago the doctrine of legislation to establish the family living wage for all employes was set forth at length by Mgr. John A. Ryan in his dissertation, "A Living Wage."

State Laws Relate Generally To Women

NUMEROUS STATE LAWS dealing with the subject of wages and hours of adults have been enacted, but with few exceptions, they relate exclusively to women. Although the idea is thus not new, the present bill—apart from the NRA—is the first important national measure seeking to regulate the wages and hours of men in the United States.

There are now 20 States with minimum wage laws. The first to pass such a law was Massachusetts (1912). Only one, Oklahoma, includes men in its attempt to "establish standards of wages and conditions of labor," its law having been passed only about a month ago.

The first State to pass a maximum hours law for women was New Hampshire (1847). Twenty others enacted similar laws before 1900, and many more thereafter, but not all of these remained on the statutes. In 1934, 38 States and 2 territories had laws restricting the working hours of men in some occupations in private employment. Moreover, an eight-hour day in public works is widely observed in State laws.

Abroad, hour legislation applying to both men and women, in some cases dating back to the early part of the nineteenth century, is to be found in 30 foreign countries, including Canada, Great Britain, France, Holland, and U. S. S. R. Twenty foreign countries have minimum wage laws, the pioneer in this respect being New Zealand, which passed the first such legislation in 1894.

In this country between the enthusiastic and more numerous supporters of the bill and the determined opponents, stand those who fully agree as to the social purpose, but disagree as to the best method. These fear the difficulty of the administrative problems involved in determining wages and hours under the wide diversity of conditions governing business in our complex economic system; or who have particular misgivings about the precedent of entrusting to the central government powers which under different circumstances might lead us far along the path to dictatorship. The National Catholic Welfare Conference, for example, favors wage-and-hour Federally-sponsored regulation, but, self-regulation by industry and labor, wherever possible, and Government intervention only where unavoidable.

Bill Would Establish "Floor" And "Ceiling."

THE BILL now under consideration is a complicated and lengthy document. Although long under consideration, it was introduced precipitately, and the hearings on it are being hurried along. Essentially, it would establish a "floor" below which wages in a wide range of industries (manufacturing, mining, transportation, and public utilities) could not legally be paid, and a "ceiling" of maximum hours of labor, beyond which no one could work without receiving overtime pay. It would eliminate child labor, strikebreaking and labor espionage.

The bill would set up a powerful Labor Standards Board of five, with authority to permit individual industries to deviate from the standards which, although not specified in the bill as it was presented, will probably call for 40 cents an hour and a maximum work week of not more than 40 hours.

There is considerable disagreement even within the ranks of the bill's supporters, as to just what standards should be set. Whether there should be allowance for differentials as between different regions and localities, different skills, etc.; whether the powers of the board should be broad or narrow, etc. There is also a lack of agreement as to whether the bill can accomplish its objects. And, finally, there is doubt as to whether the courts would uphold the measure.

What are the aims of the Black-Connery bill? Some say, to make jobs and absorb unemployment. Others say, to strengthen labor's hand in industrial democracy. Still others think this bill aims to increase the weekly pay envelope of all industrial workers, and indeed of others as well. Still others emphasize as the bill's outstanding object the elimination of sweatshops, of unfair labor practices, inhumanly long hours, less than "living" wages, child labor, etc.

In other words, these supporters of the bill see as its chief object an improvement in the national standard of living through elimination of the "chiseling fringe" of employers, who, as defined, are rightly viewed as a charge upon society.

Labor Groups Hope For Better Pay Scales.

AN OBVIOUS FACT is that organized labor would not support this bill as heartily as it does if it did not regard it as a step in the direction of more pay; more pay, that is, for thoses who are at present employed. It is also obvious that more pay in the pay envelope means more cost to the operation of business.

There is the strong probability that higher costs will be reflected in higher prices. If prices rise, not only will the fatter weekly pay envelope soon commence to lose what advantage it temporarily bestowed, but consumers whose pay envelope was not fattened by law (i. e., farmers, Government workers professional people and those in purely intrastate business who do not come within the scope of the Black-Connery bill) will not be able at increasing prices to buy all the industrial goods they now buy. Demand will tend to decline, production of industrial goods will tend to diminish, and perhaps industrial workers will be laid off.

Certainly over the long run, NRA and other experience shows, higher costs stimulate the installation of labor-saving machinery, which makes for less jobs.

Whether or not the above results follow the enactment of a wage and hour law depends on how much of a change in present wages and hours the new law introduces. A radical change is likely to have radical and unlooked for results.

An important point to be weighed before making a marked change in present conditions is this: will not a shortening of the work week diminish the national production of wealth and thereby really lower our national standard of living?

The Brookings Institution recently studied the suggestion to cut the work week drastically. Pointing to the large growth of our population of working age during recent years and the decline in manufacturing, mining, etc., it came to a rather astonishing conclusion. This was that all those able to work, including all the unemployed, could not, even if they worked 43 hours a week, within five years produce enough goods to restore the per capita standard of living which prevailed here in 1929.

Obviously, if they worked only 40 hours, or as Mr. Lewis has suggested, 35 hours, the amount of goods or real wealth produced would be smaller, assuming no counterbalancing increase in the efficiency of machines. (At present, the average hours of industrial labor in this country are around 41 per week.)

Thus, with regard to the possible effects of a radical change by legislation in hours and pay, it is important to make a clear distinction between "a large pay envelope" and "large purchasing power" in the long run, and not to use the two synonymously as Mr. Lewis apparently does.

"Unfair" Employers Will Not Add To Pay.

THIS DOES NOT MEAN that we should pay attention to the problem of the underpaid worker. As stated by Dr. Lubin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the course of his testimony Monday, we cannot depend on the "unfair employer" to remedy the matter himself. Quite conceivably, he is in many instances economically unable to do so.

As for the sweatshop, some feel that the act should not attempt to regulate working conditions in plants employing less than 8 or 10 persons. But, others assert, if you do not, many sweatshops will escape the law's net; while, if you do, you create an enormous problem of administration.

As for regional differentials, which at present are very prevalent, the Black-Connery bill would recognize them. The C. I. O. is opposed to this. "It would pay the same rates in the South as in the North. But to this the South objects strenuously. Says Mr. Lewis: "Living standards are lower in the South because wages are lower." Says the Southern States Industrial Council: "Wages in the South are lower because living requirements are less." We should get at the roots of the matter before legislating a uniform wage.

Is the new bill constitutional? Here, too, there is a big question. Assistant Attorney General Jackson says yes. In the bill, he states, are incorporated six different concepts of the Federal Government's interstate commerce power, all of which have passed the Supreme Court. The court, even if not reorganized, will never surround them all.

How will the courts interpret the bill? Will they make the minimum wage a maximum one? Mr. Lewis tells us he isn't sure. And because he isn't sure, he would strike out an important section of the bill dealing with wage fixing. He fears this section would empower the Government to override collective bargaining agreements between organized labor and industry, in which respect he agrees substantially with Mr. Green of the A. F. of L.

In other words, what organized labor apparently fears is that the Government, in delimiting the rights of the employers as to minimum wages they may pay, will also infringe upon the privileges of the employes.

Can we legislate wages and hours for all industry at once? In testifying on the Ellenbogen textile labor bill, Secretary Perkins indicated she favored an industry-by-industry approach. In other words, she recognizes that different industries have different factors to consider. Should a man on an automobile assembly line work as many hours as a man in some other industry where pressure is much less? Should skill not have a premium, as it does even in Communist Russia.

Thus, we could go on inspecting this far-reaching measure clause by clause and point by point, and discovering important questions of cause and effect, and differences of opinion, all pointing to the urgent desirability of avoiding haste in its consideration and passage, and of obtaining the considered opinion of all concerned.

Col. House Denies Roosevelt Seeks Four More Years

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., June 11 (AP).—An assertion that President Roosevelt would not be a candidate for a third term came tonight from Col. Edward Mandell House, Woodrow Wilson's personal envoy in the World War days.

The diminutive, white-haired Texan suggested the President "will probably do some writing after he retires."

"President Roosevelt is my friend," Col. House said.

Reich Jobless Reduced.

Berlin, June 11 (AP).—Germany's unemployment dropped to an official new low total of 776,000 today, leading to discussion by economists of a possible labor shortage by the fall.

Pyrrhic Victory

By Barnet Nover

Great Britain Gains Its Point.

THE IMPENDING return of Germany and Italy to the international naval patrol around Spain must be marked down as a victory for Downing Street. The British have played their cards well. They have prevented a very dangerous situation from getting worse. They may soon be able to congratulate themselves on restoring the status quo that obtained before the Deutschland was attacked and before the Nazis retaliated by bombarding Almeria and killing an unknown number of innocent men, women and children.

All the indications now are that the nonintervention agreement is to be given a new lease on life. Between them, as before, Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy are again to undertake the task of patroling Spanish waters to see that no outside aid is given to the opposing sides in Spain. Thus another effort to confine the civil war to the Iberian peninsula shall have succeeded and the threat of a world war again postponed.

• • • •

THIS IS all to the good. Even an uncertain peace is better than war. And it may be that with the non-intervention front re-established a new effort can be made truly to localize the Spanish conflict.

Already the French government is reported to have drafted a constructive program of action whose point of departure is the re-establishment of the international patrol. First of all, France would strengthen the control scheme. Then it would seek international agreement for the withdrawal of all foreign volunteers now in Spain. And with these laudable objectives achieved it would seek an end of the civil war through mediation between the Spanish government and the insurgents.

The real test of the efficacy of Britain's diplomatic efforts during the past fortnight will come when the attempt is made to put this French plan or some similar scheme into force. For unless the objectives now set forth by the Paris government, in particular the first and second of the three points, Britain's diplomatic victory will be shown up as of the Pyrrhic variety. Without a tightening of the control scheme, so as effectively to prevent war supplies from getting into Spain, and without the withdrawal of the non-Spanish combatants from the battle areas the Spanish problem will continue to be a fruitful cause of international tensions.

• • • •

IN FACT, unless these things are done the re-establishment of the status quo as it existed before the Ibiza incident would mark a real setback for peace, instead of a gain.

It is clear that Great Britain did not secure German and Italian consent to the restoration of the control scheme without paying a price. That price was acquiescence in the Almeria bombardment as a legitimate form of reprisal.

Now, it is hardly in the interests of Great Britain, or of any other peace-loving nation, to let what happened at Almeria stand as a precedent. Following similar provocation, real or manufactured for the occasion, the Nazi government may sooner or later duplicate the attack on the Spanish port somewhere in Lithuania, Czechoslovakia or Austria. The appetite, as the French say, grows with the eating.

To be sure, Britian and France have held out against the German-Italian contention that in the event of further attacks on their ships they must be permitted the right to take any reprisals they see fit. But it is not yet clear that the Fascist powers are prepared to foreswear such action whatever the outside world may think about it. To win back Germany and Italy to the sea patrol, Great Britain has been forced to ignore Almeria. This is a clear victory for the Fuehrer.

ACTUALLY, of course, British diplomatic pressure alone would hardly have sufficed to bring about a more moderate spirit in Berlin and Rome were the Fascist powers determined to wage open war on the Valencia government. It was British diplomacy plus the feeling in the Fascist capitals that the time for open war on the Spanish government was not yet ripe. But it is far from certain that the German and Italian governments are prepared to abandon the covert war which they have been waging on the loyalists since the beginning of the struggle.

The present indications are that they are not. It is just as clear in Berlin and Rome as it is elsewhere that without further outside support Gen. Franco can get nowhere; that the withdrawal of the non-Spanish combatants on both sides will weaken the insurgents far more than it would the loyalists. The possibility remains, therefore, that regardless of their apparently conciliatory action in rejoining the international sea patrol the Fascist powers may continue their interventionist activities in Spain.

Under the circumstances, the outlook for a truly constructive solution of the Spanish problem remains anything but bright regardless of Britain's diplomatic victory. The real task remains, for nothing is settled that isn't settled right.

A Best Seller

By William Lyon Phelps

The Bible.

It is an encouraging sign not only that the Bible remains the best-seller among all books printed in the English language, but that there are constantly appearing new and attractive editions of it. Doctor Ernest Sutherland Bates' edition, which appeared some months ago, is enjoying a steady sale, and will doubtless add to the number of Bible readers. That edition has the King James Version, with the Revised Version for the Apocrypha, and omits many less interesting parts of the Bible, so that the book can be printed in large type.

• • • •

Now appears an entirely new edition from the Cambridge University Press, issued in New York by The Macmillan Co. I have a copy before me as I write. The features of this Cambridge Bible are as follows. Its small and handy shape, no bigger than the ordinary novel means that they have compressed three-quarters of a million words in one smallish volume. The type, exclusively the property of the Cambridge Press, has been specially designed for this new edition. Necessarily it is not large, but it is black and heavy, and easy to read.

Another feature, entirely new, is the omission of all italic words and phrases, which have been included hitherto in King James Versions. They were in italics, not for emphasis, but because, while they made the meaning clear, they were not word for word in the original languages. Their omission adds to the interest for the general reader; for the old italics were an interruption.

The long Preface, "The Translators to the Reader," which appeared in the first edition of the King James Version in 1611, is here once more given complete. It is quaint. This will please Prof. Goodspeed of Chicago, who has often pleaded for its inclusion.

• • • •

Thus we have in theis new Cambridge Bible, the complete King James Version, with the Introduction, in one volume of 896 pages. And finally, it is cheap.

The features that are not so good and yet perhaps were unavoidable, are, that like the Oxford Bible and most other Bibles, the Apocrypha is omitted. Second, the volume, while not a dead weight, is too heavy for its size. Third, the type is not good for old people, or for those whose sight is in any way defective.

But remember, that by paying exactly eight times as much, you can get an Oxford Bible, fatter but not taller, in enormous type.

Remember too, that by reading three chapters every weekday and five every Sunday, you can read the entime Bible through in one year, and still have two or three days for the flu.

Secret Files Reveal Hoover Urged a Dictator for Russia

Letter to Wilson in 1919 Disclosed by State Department; Fall of Bolsheviki or Swing to Right Was Predicted.

By the Associated Press.

Confidential documents in the State Department files, made public yesterday, disclosed that in 1919 Herbert Hoover proposed to President Wilson that a one-man "economic dictatorship" be set up to save Russia.

The proposal was made in a letter from Hoover, then director general of relief on the Supreme Economic Council, in Paris, to President Wilson, dated June 21, 1919.

State Department officials said they had no knowledge of its previous publication and included it in a volume of diplomatic correspondence concerning American relations with Russia in 1919.

Hoover predicted the eventual downfall of the Bolshevik government, or its swing to the right, and declared no government in that vast, disorganized country could become established without economic reorganization.

He also emphasized that it was vitally necessary to set up one country as the economic mandatory and give one man the power to administer the gigantic task of putting Russia back on its feet.

Hoover's letter said he wished to lay before President Wilson "what appears to me (after peace) the greatest outstanding situation in the world insistent for solution, and that is Russia." He emphasized that he did not wish to approach the possible solution "from any point of view other than purely its economic phases."

Predicted Fall of Reds.

"Sooner or later," Hoover wrote, the bolshevik government will fall of its own weight, or it will have swung sufficiently right to be absorbed in a properly representative government. Already about one-half of the area of the old Russian empire is under non-bolshevik influence. • • •

"The re-establishment of currency, transportation, the stimulation of production and the normal flow of distribution is sheerly a matter of some sort of economic dictatorship, backed by sufficiently large financial and moral support of the allied governments. • • •

"Furthermore, it appears to me that some such an economic commission, if placed upon an economic and not political basis, could if conducted with wisdom, keep itself free from conflicting political currents and allow a rational development of self-government in Russia. • • •

Opposed Allied Action.

"I wish to add one suggestion to you in organization of such a commission. It is utterly impossible that it could be organized on the basis of any inter-allied commission with all the conflicting financial and trade interest that lies therein. It is necessary to set up one government as the economic mandatory, with the support of the other governments, and to set up some one man as the head of the commission, who should choose his own staff for the great administration that will be involved. • • •"

The records also showed instances of widespread disaffection among certain allied troops occupying Archangel, Russia, in 1919. Unwillingness of American, British, Canadian and French troops to fight the Bolsheviki was cited.

Minutes of secret Paris discussions of the Russian problem, in which only the peace conference "big five"—Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau, Orlando and Viscount Chinda—participated, are among the documents.

$11-Per-Week Pay Upheld by Textile Boss

his freckled fists nervously, had no answer.

The last afternoon witness, Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, representing 70 per cent of the active industry, gave the Black-Connery bill one of the most vigorous tongue-lashings it has yet received.

Reporting the industry as "in substantial agreement with all important points of the measure except one," Murchison then launched into a frank and lusty attack on the contemplated delegation of power to an administrative board to fix various wages for different industries, and to adjust the work-week up or down.

He said: "The bill is administratively impossible to the point of grotesqueness. • • • As the governmentally determined wage-hour program is applied to industry after industry, region after region, the incentive and goals of collective bargaining will be correspondingly reduced and the death knell of organized labor will be sounded concurrently with the death knell of freedom in industrial enterprise.

"The bill at present threatens to destroy utterly the present foreign policy of the United States. • • • To my mind it is the epitome of legislative tragedy. • • • It is sheer fantasy for those who would be eralistic, and yet within its broad, monstrous, lugubrious form it holds the germ of economic sanity and progress.

"It is my hope and prayer that this germ may be segregated from its cancerous surroundings • • •"

Murchison asked for a separate child labor law, favored the 40-hour week, asked that a flat blanket minimum wage be established at a low level—$12 to $13 a week in his industry—and requested that any board set up be given fixed criteria on which to base judgments, instead of uncontrolled power.

At the morning session witnesses included Guy L. Harrington, of the National Publishers Association, New York City; Charles Warner, of the National Sand and Gravel Association; John W. O'Leary, of the Machine and Allied Products Institute, and J. N. Beall, of the American Trucking Association.

Harrington opposed the measure as too great a delegation of power to a board, and quoted "Why burn the barn in order to kill a few rats?" Warner said a short work week was "entirely impractical;" O'Leary held the bill to be based on "economic principles proved false by experience," and said it would make high prices necessary. Beall asked specific exemption for the trucking industry.

"Bah Jove—T'will be good to get back to earth and a cup of Wilkins iced Tea"

Gay Comedy Is Rampant on the Earle's Screen

Claudette Colbert Is Star With Clyde Lucas Stage Star With His Band.

"I MET HIM IN PARIS." Paramount picturization of a story by Helen Meinardi, adapted to the screen by Claude Binyon, starring Claudette Colbert, with Melvyn Douglas, Robert Young, Mona Barrie, George Davis, Alexander Cross, Lee Bowman and Fritz Feld. Directed by Wesley Ruggles. Reviewed Friday afternoon at the Earle Theater by Mary Harris.

The excellent Earle Theater cooling system is more necessary than ever this week—just to keep folks from laughing themselves into a perspiration over the doings of "I Met Him in Paris."

For this Parisian-Alpine concoction is the gayest, shiniest comedy that has hit the screen for too long—say, since the debut of "The Thin Man." It should boost the stock of Claudette Colbert, who needs no boost, and also do a lot for Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young.

A vacation in Paree has long been the dream of the American business girl, played by Claudette Colbert. At first it looks as though her solo vacation will be a floppo interlude. But making an incursion into the American bar, she encounters those debonair but ininhibited young fellows, Young and Douglas. After Martinis all around, they are wonderful pals. The next time you see them, Robert (whose dark secret is that he is married) is telling Claudette that he loves her and suggesting that they "go away together" to Switzerland. Melvyn horns in on this unconventional excursion by naming himself chaperon.

Fun in Switzerland.

The fun the trio have in Switzerland is enough to sell anyone permanently on the idea of an Alpine holiday. They go skiing behind horses and the nags run away, dumping all parties head over heels into snowdrifts. They coast like lunatics, and without benefit of the brakeman, who accidentally fails to hop on the sled. The ski and skate and make love and fight, and all is merry as an illegal marriage bell—until Robert's wife appears, suavely but so importantly. Claudette, all a-dudgeon, takes a couple of double-Scotches and the train back to Paris. From there on it's strictly every fellow for himself, with an added hazard thrown in by the appearance of Claudette's home-town boy friend. The ending has a triple snap with a question mark appended.

Claudette Colbert is cuter than ever. And cute is the word. Like Janet Gaynor the years seem to bring her added poise and smartness. As for the pair of leading men, it's rather a toss-up, with Robert Young perhaps scoring a bit over Douglas in resiliency. All of the character and minor parts are well done, but the picture belongs to its stars and director and dialogue writers.

Celluloid fare at the Earle also includes a Charley Chase short that makes you laugh, whether you want to or not, the newsreel and a novelty factual feature full of interesting what-zisses.

More "Swing" Music.

Clyde Lucas and his orchestra again live up to the skyscraper standard that audiences expect from them. Their numbers are the newest and swingiest, their orchestrations superb.

Sharing the spot with Clyde and the lads is Melissa Mason, a rubber-limbed young dancer with a naive comedy sense.

Spanish and American swing receive almost equal attention from Lucas, with the semi-immortal "Peanut Vender" all heated up by Latin xylophones and those gourd-shaker contraptions favored in Habana. Also in untempered swing are "Big Boy Blues" and your pet tunes from "Waikiki Wedding" and "Shall We Dance."

Just to show that they can do anything and everything well, musically speaking, the Lucas clan also presents MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," with seven violins. To many people, this was undoubtedly the beauty spot of the program.

Pansy, the "wonder horse" is such an equine as you've never seen before, snow white, but no Arabian, neither any floral prodigy as indicated by his name.

Metropolitan

Paul Muni this week returns to the screen of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater in "The Story of Louis Pasteur." This is the picture and the performance that won him the Academy award for the best acting of the year of the film's original release.

There is high drama in this biographical sketch of the career of the noted bacteriologist who waged such a bitter fight against the unbelievers who thought him a charlatan and a deluded impostor. From meager beginnings, without financial backing, Louis Pasteur emerged the savior of humanity from many of the ills that had ravaged it for years. He persisted in his contention that surgical instruments should be sterilized; that certain serums which he had developed in his modest laboratory would prevent loss of livestock by unnecessary death. In more than one instance he was challenged by a skeptical medical profession that viewed his claims as mere drivel.

Eventually the efficacy of the Pasteur treatments for both man and beast began to gain attention. They were applauded as panaceas for which mankind long had been waiting. Honors finally came to him from the highest sources of his country and the dreams of his life were realized.

Romance Enters Story.

There is a romantic vein threading the story, too, but it never dominates the supreme figure of Pasteur battling for principles which since have been recognized as of utmost value to the human race.

Paul Muni, in the role of Pasteur, contributes one of his finest character delineations to the screen. Playing with repression, he gives reality and force to a character that has come down through the years as one of the great benefactors of the world. In the role of his wife, Josephine Hutchinson does ably the little that is allotted her to do, but this is Muni's picture. There are many others in the cast who contribute to the uniform excellence of a film that takes high rank among the cinema's adventures in the realm of biographical drama.

The bill is completed by the usual short subjects and a full 15-minute newsreel.

There is here unfolded a film play that combines incidents of a political nature and personal romance to form a comprehensive character study of one of Ireland's famous figures.

BELL.

"Parnell," at times, moves slowly, but in the end leaves the impression of a well-rounded survey of the salient events in the life of the man who did more for Irish home rule than any other single individual in the history of Erin. There are occasions when it seems to me the dialogue recedes a little from the high level it should maintain, but, in the large view, the picture paints a true and believable canvas of a statesman in the turmoil of political warfare and the throes of an unconquerable love.

Charles Stewart Parnell returned to his home land from a visit to America with a fund of $200,000 which he had raised on this side for the amelioration of the suffering and penury of the tenant farmers of Ireland. He was hailed as "the uncrowned king of Ireland." As a member from Cork in the British Parliament, he waged a vigorous battle for Irish independence and the establishment of a parliament of its own. His chief antagonist was Gladstone, the aged and wily premier of Victorian England.

"Love at First Sight."

It was not the habit of Parnell to accept social invitations. So when the wife of a foppish young political nonentity wrote him twice inviting him to dine at her home—for her husband's strategic purposes—he ignored the letters. Then she called at his office. Having seen her a few nights previously at the opera, Parnell realized upon their meeting that here was the one insatiable love of his life. From this situation sprang the conniving of William O'Shea, his divorce suit against his wife, Katie, and the naming of Parnell as corespondent.

With this scandal occupying the headlines in all of the English and Irish papers, Gladstone craftily withdrew his support of the Irish home rule bill, and the career of the Celtic patriot seemed to have come to an ignominious end. But Parnell was a fighter. After the accomplishment of his aims he died in the arms of his beloved Katie.

Such is the framework of the drama now on the screen at Loew's Capitol. The action is bulwarked by many scenes of large proportions—the English House of Parliament. Parliament in session, political rallies, many speeches and much lusty cheering on the part of the gentry. It has all been treated intelligently and respectfully by the producers and director and is photographed with characteristic excellence. It also is competently acted by a cast that is alive with important names in the theater. They will be found in the small-type paragraph preceding these remarks.

Clark Gable gives a stalwart and straightforward interpretation of the pivotal character and Myrna Loy, as Katie, is perhaps a more ingenuous and sympathetic Mrs. O'Shea than actually was the case. Montagu Love appears as Gladstone and Edna May Oliver does one of her best bits of work as Aunt Ben, with Billie Burke running a very close second as her annoying and inquisitive niece, Clara. Alan Marshall is the "menace," O'Shea, and other important masculine characters are played by Edmund Gwenn, as Parnell's secretary; Donald Crisp, Donald Meek, Berton Churchill, Brandon Tynan and Byron Russell.

Herman Bing a Hit.

That eminent mutilator of the king's English, Herman Bing, familiar from his appearance in many films—most recently "Maytime"—proves himself a stage personality worthy of his hire as headliner of the stage bill at the Capitol this week. Mr. Bing still garbles his words almost to the point of unintelligibility, but puts over a monologue that had yesterday afternoon's audience in stiches, as the saying is. But there is more to the man than that. Herman Bing, it turns out, is a singer with a tenor-barytone voice of unusual quality, which he even can wangle into the tricky business of yodeling. Here is one artist who has come out of Hollywood with material that is worth booking and listening to.

The bill is opened by Earl, Jack and Betty, roller skaters, who have a great deal of hilarious fun with recruits from the audience. They are followed by Ray Campbell's Eight Ambassadors, a double male quartet of robust voices heard to advantage in a considerable program of familiar numbers culled from the operettas that have made extensive use of male ensembles. Buster West and Lucille Page, assisted by an unnamed stooge, close the program with their distinctive dances and utterly silly fol-de-rol.

The Fox Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's orchestral contributions complete an entertainment that can be recommended for solid purpose and worth.

Brotherhood Group Will Dance Tomorrow

The Barmitzvah Brotherhood of the Tifereth Israel Congregation will hold the annual dance tomorrow, from 9 to 12 p. m., at the Stansbury Lodge Hall, Georgia and Concord avenues.

Leon Brusiloff will furnish the entertainment and music. The following committee is in charge of arrangements: Isadora Widry, chairman; Morris Gruber, Herman Fisher, Bernard Shankman, Louis Lopatus and Elliot Milner.

Plays Ingenue Role in "Parnell"

Billie Burke, wife of the late Florenz Ziegfeld and one of the veteran stars of the stage, whose likeness appears above, harks back to the days of her performances in such plays as "My Wife," with John Drew, "Jerry" and others of the sort in the role of Clara in the screen version of "Parnell," at Loew's Capitol. Miss Burke has not aged a minute and can give many of Hollywood's young actresses cards and spades in the depiction of youthful roles.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, June 11.—Today I met a young girl who came here from the Middle West about a year ago and won a trial contract with a major studio. She's going home now, a complete washout from Hollywood's point of view. But not from her own. She thinks it has been one of the best years of her life. And instead of being downhearted, the girl is actually grateful to Hollywood.

LORETTA YOUNG

"They tried hard to make an actress of me," she said, "and I'm sorry they lost on their investment." Then she listed a number of things Hollywood has done for her, proving that even though she will never be a famous star, the studios gave her more than a square deal. Dramatic coaches have taught her to speak correctly, to walk gracefully and to sit and stand with good posture. The finest designers in the world have taught her how to choose and wear clothes. Makeup experts have given her the secrets of their art and she has learned how to dress her hair. Singing lessons, dancing lessons, the studio training school and her practice before the camera have given her poise and self-assurance.

"I wouldn't trade the practical knowledge I've gained for a college diploma," she told me. Somehow I had never thought of it just that way. Perhaps because I've heard so many girls bewail their luck and lash out against Hollywood. The next time some struggling extra asks my advice, I'm going to tell her about this girl who failed . . . the washout who was grateful to Hollywood.

The other day I heard an amusing anecdote about Constance Bennet, who has established some sort of record for never being on time for an appointment. A certain magazine writer went to her home for luncheon and was asked to wait for Connie in the library. 'Madame is still asleep," explained the maid.

The writer waited for nearly an hour. Then he dashed off a very caustic note, propped it up on the library desk and stalked from the house. Later that afternoon, Connie telephoned her publicity agent and instructed her to arrange another appointment. "That man must be a good writer," she said, "he has temperament."

Speaking of temperament reminds me of Loretta Young. I overheard an official pan her unmercifully because she had demanded a studio limousine to convey her back and forth between set and dressing room—one short block.

Somehow, the tirade did not sound like Loretta, so I asked her for an explanation. Actually she had staged the temperamental display for a worthy purpose. By demanding a car, she had saved the job of a studio chauffeur who would otherwise have been laid off. "And he has three kids to support," Loretta told me gravely.

Shortly after his first success on the screen, Don Ameche brought his mother and father to Hollywood. He bought a ranch for them in the San Fernando Valley and Papa Ameche promptly planted a vegetable garden. Yesterday, Don took me out to meet his father.

"I guess you're pretty proud of your son," I suggested. Papa Ameche shrugged. "Don's a good boy," he said. Then he beamed; positively beamed, and added, "But let me show you my rutabagas . . ."

Trans-Lux

Pitted against the world of sports and Billy Rose's Aquacade in Cleveland, the Dionne quintuplets win in a walk at the Trans-Lux this week in a special two-reeler that is all theirs, with Dr. Allan Dafoe getting a look in as a nursery caller. "A Day With the Dionnes" is an excellent novelty-in-the-news short subject. Everything the youngsters have ever been reported as doing is done in this film and the celebrated five are a show in themselves—they talk, sing, draw, take baths, say their prayers and comb Dr. Dafoe's hair.

From the cauldron of news rise some excellent shots of finding the plane that crashed last winter in the Utah Mountains, Spanish child refugees arriving in Mexico, the W. C. T. U.-ers battling Old Man Alcohol, the Georgetown lads getting degrees, the canary who whistles "Yankee Doodle," the inventor's convention, the Epsom Downs Derby and the debs' fashion show at Philadelphia.

"Swiss on White" is superb. Excellent shots of the skaters, skiiers, ice enthusiasts at St. Moritz, Switzerland, cutting up with rhythm and precision that charms, but baffles the eyes.

"The Foxy Pup," a color cartoon, adds the comedy touch to a Trans-Lux program that is outstanding for variety.

Legislator to Speak.

Representative Henry G. Teigan will be the principal speaker at a protest mass meeting to be held tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. on the lawn of the Frederick Douglass Memorial Home in Anacostia, under the joint auspices of the American Friends of Spanish Democracy, the Afro-American newspaper and the Friends of the Abraham Lincoln Battalion. James W. Ford, Spanish correspondent for the Afro-American, will speak on "What I Saw in Loyalist Spain."

Columbia

The sinister effect upon a weakling taught to use a gun in the war is made the basis of "They Gave Him a Gun," which this week is playing a repeat engagement on F street at Loew's Columbia Theater.

A young fellow is schooled in the art of shooting and, coming through the horrors of No Man's Land unscathed, realizes that in side arms he can find "strength."

He becomes a gangster and, after marrying the girl that his steadier pal of the days at the front also loves, becomes the object of a quest of the law. His old sidekick "turns him in" to the girl and she persuades him to surrender to the authorities. But prison life irks him and he stages a jail-break. He finally is run down and shot dead by a band of officers commanded by the sergeant who had taught him to wield a lethal weapon.

The story is a morbid one, but is played with fine skill by an especially well selected cast, led by Spencer Tracy, as the well-balanced young soldier; Gladys George, as the nurse loved by both men, and Franchot Tone, as the craven. They are supported by players who never let the play down.

Short sound subjects and a new issue of the "Events of the Day" round out the program.

Young Raskob Married.

Reno, Nev., June 11 (AP).—Robert Pierre Raskob, 25-year-old son of John J. Raskob, the New York financier and one-time chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Miss Dolores Hartor, 25, of Reno, were married here today.

Germany Swelters.

Berlin, June 11 (AP).—All Germany sweltered today in the hottest weather in 60 years. The temperature in Berlin was 97 degrees, the hottest June day since 1857.

Play of Pathos Wins Plaudits At the Palace

'Make Way for Tomorrow' Is Domestic Drama of Intense Heartbreak.

"MAKE WAY FOR TOMORROW." Paramount picturization of the novel by Josephine Lawrence, and the play by Helen and Nolan Leary, adapted to the screen by Vina Delmar, starring Beulah Bondi and Victor Moore, supported by Fay Bainter, Minna Gombell, Barbara Read, Thomas Mitchell and Louise Beavers. Directed by Leo McCarey. Reviewed Friday evening by Dorothea Lewis.

Here is heartbreak, the way it happens. So real, so pitiful, so hopeless that it hurts.

The fact that it hurts so much is our only possible complaint against a very sincere, ebautifully acted, compelling story. If you are seeking gay entertainment, this isn't it.

This story is as simple and as horribly complicated as life. Its tragedy is as inevitable as the aging years of its two sad people. It is not a romanticized tragedy of another age that has nothing to do with everyday problems, and so lifts us out of ourselves while we see it and is forgotten when we leave the theater. These are everyday problems for you or your next door neighbor and you'll take them home with you, along with red eyes and wet handkerchiefs.

Beulah Bondi Triumphs.

But you will also take home the memory of Beulah Bondi in one of the best performances of the year and of her most distinguished career—a delicate, difficult, perfect picture of an old woman, whose separation from her husband when she is 70 is so much more poignant than it would have been 50 years before.

Victor Moore is only a step behind, surprisingly fine in a serious role totally divorced from his usual broad comedy. The pathos which is so important to his comedy technique is given full sway, but he adds dignity to it, and is lovable and completely in character. He does not prompt even an anticipatory giggle and when he does have his lighter moments, they are handled as the jokes of "Mr. Cooper" not Victor Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, Louise and Bart, married for 50 years, lose their home and find that their five children don't want them. They are separated, mother going for "a visit" to one son, father to a daughter, but always they hope to get back together. At last they do, for one day, before father goes to his daughter in California and mother goes to "a home" in New York.

It could have been spoiled by sentimentality. It has honest sentiment instead. The children could have been made hateful monsters. They are understandable, normal people with "their side," instead.

Has Moments of Comedy.

And the playing of Miss Bondi and Mr. Moore is a delight. The excellent cast supporting them includes such stellar lights as Fay Bainter and Thomas Mitchell, who are particularly good, Minna Gombell, Barbara Read and Louise Beavers.

The picture is not unrelieved tragedy. There are some chuckling laughs and those few lovely last hours, but the tears come pretty steadily throughout.

Director McCarey deserves high praise for keeping it as simple and honest as it should be.

Subsidiaries include the newsreel, Senor Donald Duck turned Spanish or Mexicano and proud possessor of a fetching little burro, and a short entitled "Some Time Soon," identified as a miniature musical comedy and featuring the attractive Gregory Gaye.

2 Are Recovering From Auto Injury

Two Washington women, both employes of chain drug stores in the 1100 block of Connecticut avenue northwest, were recovering yesterday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Thursday night near Annapolis.

Three other employes of the store, all men, escaped without injury when their car, said by police to have been driven by Robert J. Olson, of 412 Evarts street northeast, crashed into a tree. The injured were Miss Audrey E. Sadler, of 1814 North Capitol street, and Mrs. Harriet Henderson.

Three Brothers To Occupy Pulpit

Three brothers, all members of the Presbyterian clergy, will occupy the pulpit at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning.

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor of the church, will be assisted by Dr. John Robertson McCartney, of Palm Springs, Calif., who will deliver the sermon, subject of which will be "Fill the Water Pots," and Dr. Ernest L. McCartney, of Upland, Calif.

These three, together with a fourth brother, the Rev. Clarence McCartney, of Pittsburgh, Pa., former moderator of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A., have just attended sessions of the General Assembly of the denomination at Columbus, Ohio.

The quartet of ministers are sons of another clergyman, the late Dr. John Longfellow McCartney, who occupied the chair of science at Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, June 1.

HARRY RICHMAN: Dick Merrill is completing arrangements for another ocean hop next month. Emil Hurja, his business adviser, has three offers—a good-will flight from New York to Rome, backed by a group interested in promoting better feeling between America and Italy; a flight to Moscow, and one from Dallas to Paris . . . John Steinbeck: Sam Harris told me he doesn't mind if you fulfill your desire to go to Madrid and fight for the loyalists. But he says please don't do it until you've finished the adaptation of "Of Mice and Men" for him.

• • • •

JUDGE K. M. LANDIS: An American sailor stationed aboard the warship which had been ordered to England for the coronation met a British tar in a London pub immediately after the ceremonies and both got lit up. The Britisher proposed a toast: "To the new King," to which the Yank replied: "Oh, t'hell with him" . . . The other repeated, belligerently: "To the new King," and again came the reply: "Oh, t'hell with him" . . . "Is that so?" the enraged Britisher returned. "Well, then t'hell with Babe Ruth!"

• • • •

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.: One of your father's grandsons was in the Stork Club Tuesday night—the first time he's been seen in any cafe . . . Ben Marden: Cross & Dunn, who headline your new revue at the Riviera, merit the acclaim accorded their new routine. And your new half-million-dollar Riviera is truly magnificent. It's the most beautiful night club in New Jersey . . . Mrs. Jack Dempsey: No, those weren't black-and-white shoes your husband wore at the Riviera premiere. Originally they were white—until Joe Lewis gave him 18 hot-foots within an hour . . . Tammany Hall: A survey soon to be published by the New York Legislative Service will reveal details about every bill introduced by the legislature during the last session, tracking down the persons, organizations and pressure groups which instigated each bill.

• • • •

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT: You proved yourself a real trouper by doing your last two broadcasts from your bedside at Doctors' Hospital. Only one person knew the difference. He's the occupant of the next room, who made no squawks—except at your midnight rebroadcast. He complains that your damn ringing at the Town Crier's Bell at that hour doesn't help his heart trouble!

• • • •

COL. LINDBERGH: The French are sorely grieved because—not only did you spurn their invitation to come to Paris and attend the dinner commemorating the tenth anniversary of your flight—you didn't even send the committee a message . . . Gen. Franco: Ernest Hemingway last week completed arrangements here whereby, after sufficient money is deposited here, a Ford chassis can be shipped to France, converted into an ambulance there and be hauling loyalist wounded—all with 14 days . . . United Press: Jack Diamond, who quit his columning job with you last fall to cruise the world via freighter, has become associated with the publicity office of Monte Proser . . . C. B. S.: Ted Husing will be sponsored by Auto-Lite, doing two 15-minute broadcasts weekly with a novel idea in sports commentation.

• • • •

TOMMY MANVILLE: Meet your newest competitor—Henry Huddleston Rogers, jr. Rogers, who merely has $23,000,000, invited a party of friends to visit his estate in Pennsylvania last week-end. When he discovered that his guests had missed the train he calmly hired three taxis to take them to their destination—almost 100 miles away.

• • • •

MAURICE EVANS: Joe Frisco heard of your ambitions to bring a Shakespearean repertory group to New York next season, and of your avowal to "Bring Avon to Broadway." "Avon?" said Frisco, "Wh-which one—Smith or D-d-dale?" . . . Sec. of War Patrick Hurley: "Waletka," the Cherokee baby to whom you were godfather out in Oklahoma 23 years ago, will appear in Walter Wanger's "52nd Street." Her name is now Marla Shelton.

• • • •

WILL HAYS: Exactly 24 hours after Jean Harlow's death the Times Square pitch-men who have been peddling the Lord's Prayer stamped on a penny, placed their orders for the casting of a die of Miss Harlow's head. Within the next few days they'll be peddling these new tokens.

• • • •

LICENSE COM. PAUL MOSS: There's a screwy rumor now that your ban on burlesque houses will be lifted before Tuesday with the proviso that no strip-teasing will be permitted . . . Columbia Pictures: Hannen Swaffer, the British critic and leader of the Spiritualist movement there, attacked the London Era for alleging that Hollywood is veering left, politically. The Era's editors offered "Lost Horizons" as evidence . . . In replying to the attack the editors said: "While we would not discourage Swaffer from writing on films, we must say that we prefer to read him on Spiritualism. His information there is more accurate!"

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Taking No Risks.

South properly decided against bidding seven in today's hand. His partner's double raise did not assure the solidity of the suit and the negative response to the asking bid of four spades indicated another weak point. South could have found out about the trump suit by using the five notrump bid (grand slam force) but then might find no discard for his losing spade. Since, therefore, he could not be sure that a grand slam was an odds-on chance, he contented himself with a small slam. But even that he had to play carefully to make.

Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ J 10 7 ♡ Q 9 8 4 ◇ A K 6 ♣ K 9 8
♠ Q 8 6 3 2 ♡ — ◇ J 9 5 4 ♣ 10 6 4 3	North W E South	♠ K 5 4 ♡ K J 6 ◇ Q 10 7 3 2 ♣ J 2
	♠ A 9 ♡ A 10 7 5 3 2 ◇ 8 ♣ A Q 7 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened a low spade and East's King forced out the Ace. Declarer led a diamond to the dummy and discarded his losing spade on the second high diamond. There remained only the question of playing the trump suit to avoid the loss of more than one trick.

If was easy for South to see that any 2-1 split could cause him no worry. The only danger was that one opponent held all three of the outstanding trumps. To lead the Queen from dummy would be fatal in the event that West had all the trumps. To lead a small one to the Ace would be equally bad if East had all the trumps. After some thought South discovered a means of safeguarding the slam against either bad break.

A low heart was led from dummy and, when East played low, South finessed the ten. As it happened, West discarded and South promptly cashed the Ace of trumps and conceded a trump trick.

But South's plan was proof against any bad break. Had East shown out, South would have played the ace and led toward the Queen; had East played an honor, South would have won with the Ace and knocked out the remaining honor. Even had the ten-spot been won by an honor from the West hand, South could have lost nothing, since his Ace would then have dropped the only remaining trump.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, June 11.

WELL, Libby Holman has come back to town after singing a few songs for the coronation crowds in Lunnon, and is again illuminating the better grade of evening cafe as our leading Glamour Girl of the hour.

ALICE HUGHES.

Libby is an interesting figure in the life of this town. When she was newly come from Cincinnati, with her way to make on the stage, she was not considered an especially hot number by the local blades. Even when she became famous by moaning "Moaning Low," some years back, she was not the most courted girl in the village by a very long shot.

Then came her marriage to the young tobacco Reynolds which ended so tragically, her lengthy retirement from the public orb after his death, and her reappearance on the local horizon. And lo—she's the pet of the curbstone crowds which afflict every Broadway first-night and night-club opening! Swathed in the richest of ermine coats, often with a red flower in her raven hair, La Holman gets more autograph requests than such golden gals as Marlene Dietrich and Joan Crawford. Perhaps it's her romantic life of the past few years; perhaps it's just her gobs of money—but there it is. Libby done got glamour!

Now she says she wants to be a dramatic actress rather than a she-crooner, and she also is toying with the notion of producing a play next fall. Whatever the Cincy sweetie decides to do, she'll remain a splash of bright color on this occasionally drab hamlet—until a newer glamour baby turns up!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The merrier section of the city is fairly agog over the opening of another place to go on muggy summer nights. It's called Surfside, and is located on the stormswept seashore of Long Island. All Broadway dared fresh-air poisoning by turning up for its opening—and perhaps you'd better place it on your list of spots to check with when you come to The World's Greatest Summer Resort (laughter and groans). . . .

June Bride's Best Culinary Bet Is Simple, Daintily Served Meal

Should Learn Above All to Make Coffee Expertly; Meat Dishes May Be Varied by Judicious Buying of Small Quantities.

By Rebekah Blake.

"WHY DO we always have so much left over?"

"The same old foods get so monotonous. How can I think of something else to cook?"

These two questions are uttered by nearly every new housekeeper and are of major importance now that June brides will soon be back from their honeymoons.

After a new bride has learned to make coffee according to her husband's taste—for of course this is her first job in the kitchen and it is often as difficult as any other—she starts on her first meals for two. These should be simple, as far as cooking is concerned, but they should be carefully planned and balanced for flavor, texture and color and must be beautifully served. She should get into the habit of doing this properly from the start.

When marketing, the meat counter is the new housewife's greatest Waterloo. There is a trick to buying for two. It is easy to buy chops and steaks and ground meat but these get tiresome. There are several small cuts of roasts weighing three or three and one-half pounds; just enough for a couple, with perhaps a little left over to be served cold later in the week. These small cuts include loin end of lamb, rack of veal, two-rib roast of beef, a thick slice of ham or breast of lamb, picketed and stuffed. You can save time and fuel money if you let your vegetables brown in the roasting pan with the meat. Of the smaller cuts, lamb, veal or pork chops from rib, loin or shoulder can be bought by the piece. You may also purchase one-inch-thick pieces of porterhouse for two or three-fourths pound of ground lamb or beef makes patties for two. One-half pound of bacon or sausage is adequate, as is one veal heart or one pair of sweetbreads. In addition, there are small chickens and fowl, small whole fish, fish fillets and steaks, scallops and clams and such delicacies as liver, oxtail, tongues, and kidneys.

Vegetables also present a problem but not such a large one because vegetables are sold in small enough units to be suitable for families of two. Small cabbages, cauliflowers and eggplants can be selected. Asparagus may be bought by the pound or bunch. Left-over beets may be pickled and odd carrots may be used in salads, soups or stews.

There is no excuse for tiresome meals. Even breakfast, which has fewer alternatives than other meals, may be attractive. If you will keep your eyes and mind open when reading, wandering through the markets, looking at restaurant menus or chatting with friends, you will conceive an endless number of new dishes as surprises for your new husband.

When you start to make your first pot of coffee, there are certain fundamentals to be remembered. The first essential is a good brand of coffee that is fresh. To keep coffee fresh while being used, store it in a glass container that has a tight fitting screw cap. Second, be sure your coffee pot is clean. Wash it after every meal. Don't use the old method of one heaping tablespoonful of coffee for each cup and one heaping tablespoonful for the pot. There is a great difference in the size of these spoons. And don't use a teacup to measure the water to be used. These also vary. Use only standard measuring cups and spoons in order to insure consistently accurate amounts of both coffee and water. And, finally, make your coffee in an approved coffee-making device.

Perhaps you haven't had your first guests in for dinner yet but the time will soon come. Don't try to make this meal too fancy or complicated but make it complete and well cooked and served. Here is a simple suggestion for the first company dinner:

Tomato juice cocktail
Stuffed celery
Broiled beefsteak Baked potatoes
Buttered green peas
Radishes and olives
Heated rolls Butter
Fruit cup Brownies
Coffee

Although this meal is a simple one, start on it early to avoid confusion. Do your marketing right after breakfast and get as much done in the morning as possible. It is much easier if you wash the celery and radishes and put them in a covered pan in the refrigerator, then shell the peas and scrub the potatoes. Next, make the cheese stuffing and the tomato juice cocktails and get them into the refrigerator. Start the brownies and while they are baking prepare the fruits for the fruit cup. Set the table in the morning or while the oven is being heated in the afternoon, so that is out of the way.

It will take an hour and fifteen minutes for actual cooking and dishing up. Pre-heat the oven to very hot before the potatots are put in—they will take about 50 minutes to bake.

Twenty-five minutes after the potatoes have been put into the oven, cover the peas with boiling water; they will require about 20 minutes to cook.

Claire Tilden Dress Pattern

A brilliant sports frock that gives your neckline a "square deal," and adds dash to your entire wardrobe—is Pattern 364! Don't you admire the way Claire Tilden has placed a row of snappy buttons down the front for an "off-side" closing? Other saucy touches that make this perky style "one in a million" are its brief sleevelets, handy patch pocket, and interesting back neckline that may button up high, or be cut down in a grand "V" that welcomes a golden sun-tan! "Beginners" will welcome the accompanying detailed sewing guide that helps make this frock one of the easiest to cut and stitch. A perfect sport in linen, cotton, or shantung!

Pattern 364 is cut in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents(15c) in coins or stamps (preferably coins) for this pattern. Write clearly size, name, address and style number.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Some time ago a friend of mine was married to a young lieutenant. The best man was another lieutenant whose name, let us say, was Jones. Recently I learned that a Lieut. Jones is stationed at a fort near Washington. I am almost sure he is the same man who was a member of my friend's wedding party. If so, it would be pleasant to see him again. I have thought of telephoning and asking him. But should I? And if so, how should I go about it and what should I say? Please answer as soon as possible as I shall be leaving Washington within a few days. Thanking you, I am, sincreely, PEGGY.

• • • •

DEAR PEGGY: Since you are almost—but not quite—positive that the lieutenant stationed near Washington is the man who acted as best man at your friend's wedding you are justified in making direct inquiries to satisfy your very natural curiosity. At an hour when you believe it might be convenient for him to be summoned to the telephone, put through a call and ask for "Lieut. Jones." When he answers, simply say: "Lieut. Jones? This is Peggy Doe speaking—a friend of Lieut. and Mrs. John Smith, of such-and-such a place. Are you, by any chance, the same Lieut. Jones who was best man at their wedding last February? I have been told he is stationed here at Fort Myer." If he confesses he is the same man, say whatever one naturally would say to a person who had been a fellow guest at a recent wedding party.

• • • •

You might ask him when and what he has heard of the Smiths of late, and, if you like, invite him to call some afternoon or evening before you leave town. If it should develop that he is not the same man, you might say: "Oh, isn't that too bad! I'm so sorry to have bothered you, etc., etc." Don't prolong the conversation unduly, but, on the other hand, don't break off too curtly. Say a friendly good-by and let that be the end of it. M. H.

• • • •

'Lorraine' Is Rebuked.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am writing in reply to "Lorraine's" letter which appeared in your column of June 9. First, I'd like to say that I approve of her standards and admire her for being able to stick to them. And, secondly, that I have always thought when a boy makes bold advances usually it is the girl's fault. By this I do not mean to say that she has deliberately led him on, but that she does not know how to inspire real respect.

• • • •

Any girl who is insulted in this manner can consider that there is something lacking in herself. Though she may not have done anything really wrong, somehow she has just failed to measure up to certain indefinable standards, which any man almost intuitively recognizes though he may not be able to describe them. I think "Lorraine's" unfortunate experiences may be considered her own fault; and that before she can expect to be treated with utmost respect she must be very sure she deserves such treatment. Sincerely,

DEAR G. W. B. A.: Thank you for these words to the wise. Though a bit on the high-handed side, the fact that they are advanced by a member of "Lorraine's" own generation should invest them with real authority. M. H.

• • • •

How to Meet Men?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: After reading "Lorraine's" letter, I thought I would write my little piece. It's true there are many fine young men in Washington, but how and where can a girl meet them? Being a Catholic, I go to church every Sunday, and there is no way of meeting young men there. I am a native Washingtonian, living at home and have little occasion to meet new persons. Holding a secretarial job keeps me busy all day, hence I make no social contacts from 9 to 5.

• • • •

I am considered attractive, a very good dancer, like to read, play tennis, laugh and talk, and love to listen. The kind of chap I would like is rather tall, not necessarily good-looking; clean-cut, serious-minded, with a sense of humor, college bred, and with a definite purpose in life. I don't expect to find all of these qualities in one man, but there are plenty of desirable young men bordering on this description—only they are terribly hard to meet! . . . There's only one type I'm interested in knowing—and that's the highest. I'll be eagerly awaiting your comment in The Post. Sincerely,

A Baffling Question.

DEAR HELEN: If I were able to tell every young girl who asks me the question, just where to look for, and how to meet, her heart's desire in the way of men friends, beaux or matrimonially-minded suitors, my fortune undoubtedly would be made and my fame would be heralded to the ends of the earth. However, it seems to me that you have already gone a considerable way toward solving your problem. You know what you want; you know it exists (for you say "it's true there are many fine young men in Washington"); and, according to your description of yourself, you are a more than ordinarily attractive young woman.

• • • •

The girl who wants social popularity and lots of nice men friends has got to work to that end as diligently as she strives for a cultivated mind, a pleasing appearance, or professional success. She must constantly broaden her list of acquaintances. This means she must broaden her field of interests, to include sports, cultural pursuits and purely social activities. She has got to go where she will both see and be seen by the type of person she wishes to know.

If her family doesn't happen to posses social distinction and place, she must fashion, out of her own abilities, her own passport into discriminating social circles. For tall, clean-cut, serious-minded, college educated, purposefully ambitious and nicely humorous though not necessarily good-looking young men are at such a premium in metropolitan society today that it's only an occasional and very remarkable secretary who can hope to capture—during working hours—one such for her very own. M. H.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Too bashful to promote acquaintanceship with young woman he met once, four years ago, and cannot forget, young man now thinks of writing her. But he doesn't know what to say or how to say it. He asks suggestions. They will be given in Sunday's column.

Ways to Serve Cold Meats May Win 5 Prizes

COLD MEAT DISHES are at their best during the hot summer months and are attractive and interesting because they furnish the main course of a meal in an appetizing way.

Because these are so popular now and are first in the minds of menu makers, The Post features cold meat dishes in this week's recipe contest. The cash prizes are $3 for first prize, $2 for second prize and $1 for each of the three additional cash prizes.

You may consider chicken salad or tuna fish salad or corned beef loaf a favorite with your family. Or you may have a recipe for salmon loaf, jellied tongue or cold meat loaf or some other jellied meat loaf that you think is worthy of a cash prize.

Whatever your recipe for a cold meat dish may be, copy it neatly and send it to Rebekah Blake, The Post food editor, so she will receive it not later than next Saturday morning. Copy your name and address clearly on your recipe.

Only one recipe will be accepted from each contestant.

Umbrellas to Match Chairs Are Popular

High Heels Increase Burden of Small Feet

The pained expression so many women have doesn't necessarily mean they're suffering from a secret sorrow, according to a well-known orthopedic surgeon. The chances are they're wearing high-heeled shoes. Every inch added to heels is equivalent to a burden of 42 pounds bearing down on the wearer's shoulders, he declared.

Upperville Horse Show Draws D. C. Sportsmen

Many Luncheons and Other Entertainments Mark Two-Day Function at Grafton Farm; Dance Set for Tonight.

Horse show enthusiasts from Washington, Baltimore and the entire Virginia countryside took chances on the weather yesterday to attend the Upperville Colt and Horse Show, which will continue through this afternoon.

It turned out to be a perfect day; and by noon, as the sun shone brightly, one of the largest crowds ever to gather at Grafton Farm was waiting eagerly for the featured events to get under way. By 2 o'clock virtually every box in the grandstand was filled and "rail-birds" pressed for elbow room at the fence.

Among the early arrivals from Washington were Dr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Bayne, Mrs. Bayne's son, Mr. James Ellwood Jones, and Miss Lucy Proctor, who was the guests in their box; Mrs. George Garrett and her daughter, Miss Elaine Darlington, and Mr. William H. Lipscomb and his daughter, Miss Rebecca Ross Lipscomb, and his small son, Samuel Ross Lipscomb. They also occupied a box.

Miss Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor, who has just been graduated from the Foxcroft School and is a house guest of Miss Nancy Iselin, at Middleburg, was also among those to arrive at the show early. Other house guests of Miss Iselin included Miss Alice Whitney, Miss Josephine Winmill and Miss Jane Pillsbury, all classmates of Miss Iselin's at Foxcroft, and this year's graduates.

Capital's Younger Set Represented at Show

Miss Betty Couzens, daughter of the late Senator Couzens, and Miss Margaret Cotter were among Washington's younger set attending the show. With them were Miss Ellie Wood Keith, of Charlottesville, and Mr. Bob Riticor, of Leesburg. Others to drive down to spend the day were Mrs. Ernest L. Smith, Miss Freda Kent and Mrs. L. Gade.

Many guests were in the community for the event and luncheons on the grounds and in the large colonial mansions nearby were given for visitors. One of the largest of these luncheons was that given by Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Randolph, at Grafton, their estate where the show ring is located. Dr. Randolph is the M. F. H. of the Piedmont Hunt.

Among the Randolphs' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Mason, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Lloyd, of Millwood; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Watkins, of Clarke County; Mr. Frank Bowditch, of Massachusetts; Mr. James Butler, of New York, the latter two being judges of the hunter classes; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Langley, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White, Mr. and Mrs. Holland Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver D. Filley and many others.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fletcher, the former president of the association, entertained at luncheon at their home, Green Gardens. Mr. and Mrs. H. Rozier Dulany entertained at luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Peach and their mother, Mrs. C. M. Peach, spread their luncheon under a large oak tree on the grounds, and had as their guests Mrs. A. F. Johnson, of Millboro, Va., mother of Mrs. R. S. Peach; Miss Julia Gatewood, Miss Peggy Spavin, Mr. Thomas I. Marshall, of Woodstock, and Mr. Harry K. Russell, of Winchester, judges of the heavy drafts, and Mr. Jack Russell.

Mrs. Nina Carter Tabb entertained at a picnic luncheon for about 100 guests under a large chestnut tree near the ring. She has as her house guest her sister, Mrs. Paul Whitten, of Whittinsville, Mass. Mrs. Whittin is the former Miss Becky Delaney Carter.

Mrs. Joshua Fletcher, jr., had as her guest at the show her sister, Miss Sally Norris, of Fredericksburg. Mrs. George Robert Slater had with her Miss Margaret Green, of Richmond. Guests of Mrs. Tacie Slater were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walton, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Henry Fairfax had with her her daughter, Mrs. Edwin Conquest, of Richmond.

Others seen at the show were Misses Sarah and Janet Harrison, of Leesburg; Mr. Frank C. Littleton, jr., Mr. Fred Malone, Misses Mary and Jane Moller, twin daughters of Mrs. Nichols, of Middleburg; Mrs. G. P. Greenhalgh, of Clarke County, who eagerly watched the performances of her hunters; Miss Charlotte H. Noland, headmistress of Foxcroft School; Mrs. T. B. Davis.

Larger Crowd Expected At Final Events Today

An important class of the afternoon was the half-bred 3-year-olds, in which the Peach brothers won a leg on the Challenge Bowl trophy with their mare, Ann Duvall. They retired a cup in this class three years ago.

Today will see many entertainments and a large crowd. One of the largest luncheons will be that of Baron and Baroness d'Epremesill, which will be given at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Henry T. Oxnard.

The horse show dance in Buchanan Hall, under the direction of Mr. R. S. Peach and Mr. George Robert Slater, will be the closing feature of the sporting event.

Ariel McNinch Married Here

Of interest to society in Washington, Atlanta and the Carolinas was the wedding yesterday at noon of Miss Ariel McNinch, daughter of Judge Frank Ramsay McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, and Mrs. McNinch, to Mr. Stephen van Rensselaer Spitler. Only members of the two families attended the ceremony, which took place in the Lincoln Chapel of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, former pastor, and now rector of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, in New York City, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Albert Evans.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Huldah McNinch. Mr. McNinch gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a redingote of ashes of roses wool over a navy sheer with navy accessories and a single orchid. Her sister wore a jacket suit in a lilac shade and carried an arm bouquet of delphinium.

Mrs. Spitler attended Queens College and was graduated from Chevy Chase Seminary and also from American University. She is a member of Chi Omega National Fraternity.

Mr. Spitler attended Ohio Northern University and is a graduate of the Georgia School of Technology. He is a member of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity and of Tau Beta Pi Honorary Engineering Fraternity.

Miss Corning To Wed Today

Of interest to Capital society is the wedding at noon today of Miss Harriet Corning, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Corning, of Kenwood, N. Y., and niece of former United States Representative Corning, to Mr. Wharton Sinkler, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wharton Sinkler, of Elkins Park, Pa. The bride's father was the late Lieut. Gov. Corning, of New York.

The ceremony will take place at All Saints Cathedral in Albany, the Rev. Charles S. Lewis, former dean of the cathedral, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Edward R. Wells, the present dean. Later there will be a reception at the Corning estate.

Miss Corning will wear a white satin frock, fashioned princess style, with a long tulle veil fastened with strands of pearls. She will carry a spray of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bridegroom's father is to be best man. The couple will live at Elkins Park, Pa.

Dorothy Fell Weds Today At Her Home

Simple Rites to Be Held at Long Island Estate.

Although the bride's family is socially prominent and among the wealthiest in the country, the wedding today of Miss Dorothy Fell to Mr. Howell Van Gerbig will be the ultimate in simplicity.

The ceremony will take place at 11:45 in Westbury, Long Island, at the beautiful estate of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ogden Mills, and will be attended only by members of the two families. Miss Fell resided in Washington several years ago when her stepfather, Ogden Mills, was Secretary of the Treasury.

Mrs. Mills' home is decorated with a profusion of white flowers in preparation for the wedding. The bride, who is noted for her chic as well as her beauty, will wear a simple white frock, street length, with a dainty band of flowers attached to a wisp of tulle in her curly hair.

Neither Bride Nor Groom Will Have Attendants

Neither Miss Fell nor Mr. Van Gerbig will have attendants. They will approach the altar together. After a wedding breakfast for the guests, the couple will sail from New York for a wedding trip to Bermuda. The bride will wear a black taffeta coat over a salmon-colored frock and a black hat trimmed with two salmon-colored feathers.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Van Gerbig will make their home in Roslyn, Long Island. The former is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barend van Gerbig of New York. The bride-to-be was presented to society in New York several years ago.

Wedding Guests Will Be Relatives, Close Friends

A limited number of persons has been invited to the wedding. The only out-of-town guests will be aunts and uncles of the bride —including Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cassatt, Mr. and Mrs. Radcliffe Chester, Mr. and Mrs. Wister Randolph, Mr. Emelen Randolph, Mr. Philip Randolph, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. P. Randolph, all of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Clifton Phillips, the former Natalie Keeney, left Thursday for Rehoboth Beach, where she has taken a cottage for the summer. Mr. Phillips will spend week-ends at Rehoboth.

Colemans Attend Wedding of Son In Santa Barbara

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frederick W. Coleman are in Los Angeles for the wedding of their son, Lieut. Frederick W. Coleman 3d, to Miss Peggy Pillsbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Davis Pillsbury, of San Francisco and Santa Barbara. The ceremony will take place today at the home of the bride's parents in Santa Barbara, and the couple will return to Honolulu to live.

The bridegroom was an aid to the President at the White House for three years after his graduation from West Point. Miss Pillsbury is a graduate of Miss Hamlin's School and a member of the Junior League of Santa Barbara. Lieut. Coleman is now aid to Maj. Gen. Andrew Moses, commanding officer of Schofield Barracks, Territory of Hawaii.

Mr. and Mrs. Parks C. Steed, of Battery Park, Md., will have as their guests next week Mr. and Mrs. Wallace S. Howes, of Boston, former residents of Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. William M. Ballinger will entertain at supper in their home in Spring Valley this evening.

Maj., Mrs. Leonard Are Hosts at Dance For the Thorons

Maj. and Mrs. Henry Leonard entertained at a small dance last evening in honor of the latter's son and daugher-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thoron. The party was held at Grasslands, a Washington club with beautiful grounds and fine old trees, which were at their best last evening.

Maj. and Mrs. Leonard will close their home on N street in Georgetown shortly and go to their ranch in Colorado for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Thoron, who live within a few blocks of the former's mother, are also spending the summer away from Washington.

Mrs. Lewis E. Ryan Hostess to Group at Estate in Bethesda.

17 Tables of Bridge in Play; Membership Now Totals 99.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

A GARDEN PARTY moved into the house without the slightest trouble yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Lewis E. Ryan entertained members of the Sunshine and Community Society of the District at a benefit bridge at her home, Edgemoor Lane, Bethesda.

Tables were to have been placed on the terrace back of the house, where there is a lily pond under spreading trees, and on the front lawn.

When the weather threatened, the hostess decided to take no chances and had the tables placed in the house, both downstairs and on the second floor. After the party started, and the sun began to shine, one was also set up outside for a foursome willing to risk a possible shower. Later in the afternoon, as it continued fair, the guests strolled outside when they had finished playing bridge.

Arrange 17 Tables For Bridge Players

There was a profusion of flowers decorating the house, daisies predominating. The large rooms and sun porch comfortably accommodated the 17 tables arranged for the bridge players.

The hostess, who wore a frock of flowered chiffon, was assisted by the club president, Mrs. Charles H. Blair, wearing a tailored dress of pink crepe with blue accessories and a matching pink straw hat, trimmed with a braided band in which there was a touch of the same blue.

Other assistant hostesses were Mrs. Claude Wright, Mrs. W. H. Whaley and Mrs. W. W. Taylor, who had with her her sister, Mrs. William A. Smith.

Mrs. Ella Knight, founder of the club, was among the guests, as was Mrs. Eugene E. Thompson, past president. Mrs. Knight was honored last month at the club's twenty-fifth anniversary party, when she was presented with a pin as the gift of the members to the founder. It has grown from the original ten charter members to a membership of 99, and is active in philanthropic work. The party yesterday was to raise funds for milk which it supplies to children of needy families during the summer months.

Officers Are Among Guests Attending

Among other guests present were Mrs. Stuart Boyer, a vice president; Mrs. T. R. Powers, the director; Mrs. H. A. Matson, secretary; Mrs. Harry Huntsberry, Mrs. J. E. Reid, Mrs. Elizabeth Kerry, Mrs. Leon Standish, Mrs. Arja Morgan, Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. Maurice Emerson, Mrs. George Cook, Mrs. Alexander Heron and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Julian Heron, the former Miss Louise Strange, of North Carolina, whose marriage took place in May.

Mrs. Henry L. Breuninger, who entertained the club a few weeks ago and will be hostess at another party July 16 at her summer home, was there with Mrs. H. E. Brockson. Among others present were Mrs. Samuel McDevitt, Mrs. Worthington Bean, Mrs. Paul Christian, Mrs. H. W. Fellows, Mrs. Harvey Hutchings, Mrs. Edward Godfrey, Mrs. Raymond Taylor, Mrs. W. Leroy Saunders, Mrs. William Molster and Mrs. Charles Molster.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

NOT UNTIL FALL will the Entre Nous Club have its "spring breakfast." The party had been planned for yesterday, in honor of Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, president during the past season and for the coming year. The date had been chosen because it was her birthday. Then, about two weeks ago, Mrs. Keyser had a fall in which she suffered a fractured arm and an injury to one of her ankles. The club decided it would be a much jollier party when their president was entirely well and able to enjoy it, so they put it off until they reconvene in the autumn. The Entre Nous Club was formed 12 years ago and has 35 members.

THREE RECITALS in one week would be enough for many professional musicians. Glenna Irene Potts, young daughter of Mrs. Roy C. Potts, president of Chapter A. of the P. E. O., has not yet embarked on concert tours, but nevertheless she is "booked up" for programs tomorrow, Monday and Wednesday.

Glenna Irene has been taking piano lessons ever since she was in the second grade, and what's more she's been working at her music because she likes it and has had her mother's interest and encouragement. She played with the junior high school orchestra and now is pianist with the orchestra at Montgomery Blair High School, where she is a sophomore.

A few weeks ago she won the State contest of the Federation of Music Clubs, with a grade of 97, which entitled her also to a national certificate. She will present her two contest numbers Wednesday evening at an ensemble piano program by students of the Washington Children's Music Studio School. Monday night she will play in a program by a group of students from there also, and on Sunday will contribute special numbers in a recital in which the others will be the younger students from the suburban studios of the school.

Sorority Honors New Members

NEW CHAPTER MEMBERS of Theta Sigma Pi Sorority were guests of honor last night at a dinner given at the Wardman Park Hotel. A feature of the occasion was the installation of the new Gamma Chapter, which preceded the dinner.

The ritual for the new chapter was conducted by Miss Audry Sullivan, president; Miss Audry Sisson, secretary; Miss Evelyn Lapham, treasurer; Miss Catherine Sullivan and Miss Marie Hetherington, of the sorority's grand council.

Miss Elizabeth Holcer is president of the new Gamma Chapter. Other officers and members are Miss Daisy Bianchi, vice president and secretary. Miss Helen Scott, treasurer; Miss Lucille Leibin, corresponding secretary and chaplain; Miss Margaret Louise Trilling, historian and goat mistress, and the Misses Katherine Anne Frick, Alma Hargraves and Genevieve Handley.

Unitarian Alliance Honors 2

Mrs. E. F. Mueller and Mrs. E. H. Horton Guests at Tea.

Latter Is New Director of Women's Group in Capital.

TWO members of the General Alliance of Unitarian Women were honored yesterday afternoon at an informal tea given by Mrs. Harold D.King, at her home in Wesley Heights. They were Mrs. Eugene F. Mueller, former president of the local alliance, recently elected regional vice president, and Mrs. Edward H. Horton, new director of the Washington group.

The affair was entirely informal and, although it was arranged indoors, many guests went into the garden during the afternoon. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. U. G. B. Pierce, wife of the minister of the Unitarian Church; Miss Elizabeth Bingham, president of the alliance; Mrs. John L. Hyde, Mrs. Stephen Olop, and Mrs. Fred Harden, who poured. The table was decorated with a center bouquet of talismen roses and lighted with pink candles in silver candlesticks.

Among the guests were Mrs. Gersham Bredford, Mrs. Caleb Miller, Mrs. James M. Doran, Mrs. J. E. Jones, Mrs. William Trauty, Mrs. Charles B. Watts, Mrs. Arthur Sturgis, Mrs. Clyde Wendelken, Mrs. Laurence Staples, Mrs. Percy Balch, and Mrs. John Adams, some of whom are chairmen of the 16 neighborhood groups into which the alliance is divided.

The organization is more than 50 years old and has been active in aiding civic and philanthropic projects, usually extending its assistance through established agencies. It has the distinction of having supported the first instructive visiting nurse in the District.

Lodge Honors Mrs. Baldwin

COLUMBIA CHAPTER, Women of the Moose, bestowed upon Mrs. Frances Baldwin the highest honor in its power last night, electing her senior regent for the year beginning July 1. Her installation will be June 25 with Past Regent Mrs. Frances Mitchell chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Baldwin also has been honored by appointment as conference leader by Past Grand Regent Mrs. Jane Debus, who has charge of the program for the meeting of Women of the Moose in connection with the annual conclave of the Maryland and Border States Moose Association at Lebanon, Pa., July 3, which will be attended by delegations from all lodges and chapters in Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The retiring senior regent, Mrs. Susie Sorenson, has been appointed chairman of the child care and training committee session, and Mrs. Mitchell will have charge of the publicity for this conference. The Moosehaven chairman of the local chapter, Past Regent Mrs. Margaret Deegan, as a result of the outstanding work she has done this year for Moosehaven, the home for the aged of the order, has been chosen to preside at the session of Moosehaven committee chairmen at the Lebanon conference. The president of the Maryland and Border States Moose Association visited the chapter at its meeting last night to tell of the program for the conclave.

Mrs. Faulkner Bridge Hostess

MRS. WALDRON FAULKNER entertained yesterday afternoon at a bridge party for the benefit of Kamp Kahlert, of the Y. W. C. A. She gave the party at the home of her mother, Mrs. Avery Coonley, who is now abroad to be gone until August, but who, because of her interest in the camp, desired to be an "absentee hostess." Mrs. Faulkner will give a second bridge to aid the camp next Friday afternoon.

The tables were to have been arranged out-of-doors, but the uncertain weather caused a change of plans, and the players stayed inside. The two parties given by Mrs. Faulkner will close a series sponsored by members of the Kamp Kahlert committee to provide funds for building a new caretaker's cabin.

The committee, of which Mrs. Montague Ferry is chairman, will have its next monthly meeting on June 23 at the camp, going out in time for luncheon. Other members of the group include Mrs. Harold Doyle, Mrs. H. DeCorsey Adams, Mrs. Louis Dellwig, Miss Emma Heck, Mrs. Shepard Bartlett, Mrs. Howard Hatkins, Dr. Anne Kent, Mrs. L. J. Jones, Mrs. Charles Morgan and Mrs. Faulkner.

The camp, which is a vacation spot for several hundred girls each summer, is located 38 miles from Washington, on West River, Md. It is open from July to September and includes educational features in its summer program.

There's a lot of men travelin' around the country today givin' lectures to businessmen on how to run their business, but it would be surprisin' to know how few of them lecturers have got a business of their own.

A lady came through Van Buren one time, lecturin' on "Economy in the Home." My stingy uncle, Uncle Skinny Flint, started courtin' her because he figgered if he got a woman that understood economy like that he could save money.

At their first meal he pointed to the table and he said "You got twice as much food on the table as we can possibly eat." His wife says "Yes, I always do that so I can economize on the left-over dishes."

Classification Up

Reclassification has become the spearhead of talk among some of the lower-paid employes in the Social Security Board. Among these are persons doing work one or two grades higher than is indicated by their salaries and those employes officially on the clerical staff, but who are performing the work of professionals.

The S. S. B. Union Review says that "the civil service classification act was written to make effective the principle of equal pay for equal work. However, throughout the Government service and unfortunately in the board as well, this principle is consistently ignored," the review states.

The union now announces a four-point reclassification program which will soon be presented to the Administration. These points are:

1. When a new job description is prepared, either as the result of a classification survey, or for purposes of reclassification, the employe shall approve the new job description before it becomes effective.

2. Periodic reclassification surveys shall be made. These should take place no less frequently than once a year, and preferably twice a year.

3. Each employe shall have the right to appeal for a higher classification directly to the classification section.

4. To furnish the basis for an appeal for a higher grade if warranted, each employe shall be permitted to see his present official job description.

"All the above points are intended to make it more likely that the official description of a person's job shall agree with what he is actually doing," says the Review.

Dr. Herbert Grove Dorsey, chief of the electrical department of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, left Thursday for Denison University at Granville, Ohio, where, June 13, he will be awarded the honorary degree of doctor of science. On June 12 Dr. Dorsey will deliver the principal address at the fiftieth annual meeting of the Denison Scientific Society.

The Women's Union of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, N. F. F. E., has elected delegates to the twentieth jubilee convention of the N. F. F. E., to be held in Springfield, Ill., beginning September 6, as follows: Gertrude M. McNally, Belle A. Trouland, Mignon G. Miller, Minnie D. Stevens, and Nora James. Alternates are Ollie, Fannie Harper, and Margaret Garry.

This is the day upon which the seven suspended lodges of the A. F. G. E. walk upon the carpet. At 10 a. m. the lodges—Resettlement, 206; Labor, 12; Agriculture, 31; G. A. O., 8; I. C. C., 58; WPA, 139, and Beltsville, 125—face the A. F. G. E.'s special investigating committee in the Hamilton Hotel, where, it is recalled, the five lodges ousted by the Detroit convention once faced the A. F. G. E. Executive Council in a fruitless bid for reinstatement. The seven lodges—banded as the committee against false economy—have demanded an open door for the hearing today. And they have said, "any other form of hearing would be a mockery, and would serve only to set a rubber stamp of approval on the action already taken . . ."

Federal Employes Union No. 262 will hold its regular meeting at 8 o'clock Monday evening in Room 604, 710 Fourteenth street northwest. Delegates to the national convention will be elected. There will be entertainment features, the recording secretary, Virginia Schaefer, writes in.

A new record total of 154,632 fingerprint cards was received and handled by the Identification Division of the F. B. I. during the month of April. These arrived at the rate of 6,443 per day. The total fingerprints on file passed the 7,000,000 mark during that month, and on April 30 stood at 7,126,644. A significant component of the total fingerprints received during April were the 55,207 noncriminal personal identification prints received, and retained at the Bureau. The figure is a record for one month.

Auto Club Men Debate Inspection

Senate Committee Gets Varying Statistics on Accident Cut.

Conflicting testimony for and against two bills to require periodical motor vehicle inspection in Washington was presented to a sub-committee of the Senate District Committee yesterday.

A spokesman for the Keystone Automobile Club assailed the proposal as futile and an unnecessary burden on motorists, while a representative of the District Motor Club stoutly defended it as a means of reducing traffic accidents.

Following the hearing Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the sub-committee and the only member to sit throughout the hearing, stated that he favored the plan, but he explained that he could not speak for the committee.

Senator Lonergan (Democrat), of Connecticut, appeared before the sub-committee and explained his bill, which proposes annual inspections at a cost of 50 cents each to motorists.

The commissioners' bill, introduced by Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, was explained by M. O. Eldridge, assistant traffic director, who at the same time indorsed features of the Lonergan measure.

The King bill proposes semi-annual inspections with the first year's bill to be $1 and the annual charge thereafter 50 cents.

Statistics Filed.

A mass of statistics designed to show that such inspections do or do not reduce traffic accidents were inserted in the record.

George E. Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, asserted that an analysis of traffic accidents in the District from 1929 through 1934 showed that but 2.5 per cent of the cars involved in collisions were defective. In 1936 this percentage was reduced to 1.6 per cent.

"Less than half the States have enacted legislation requiring compulsory inspection of motor vehicles," he said, "and in those States no appreciable reduction in the number of accidents or fatalities has been observed as a result of this system."

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District Motor Club, cited reports from six States to prove a different thesis.

Reductions Cited.

From 1930 to 1935, he said, fatalities decreased in Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, although they increased in New Hampshire and New Mexico.

"While there was an increase of 2.2 per cent in fatalaties throughout the country during this period," he said, "in the six States where compulsory inspection was operating there was an average reduction of 8 1-3 per cent."

Eldridge strongly indorsed the proposal and explained the plan to build three inspection stations. He advocated semi-annual inspections, but suggested that Lonergan's provision for check-ups after accidents was good.

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the traffic committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Col. Lawrence C. Crawford, of the Board of Trade, and Richard C. Murphy, of the Washintgon Automotive Trade Association, also indorsed the bills.

Death Sends D. C. Traffic Toll to 50

Traffic fatalities in the District soared to 50 for the year last night when Frazier Duncan, 28, colored, of the 300 block of Third street southwest, died in Emergency Hospital of injuries suffered Wednesday when a truck in which he was riding collided with another truck.

The vehicle, a refuse collector, was driven by Otto S. McKay, of the 700 block of Seventh street southeast, was struck, police stid, by a truck driven by Lawrence Banks, colored, of the 1300 block of Delaware avenue southwest.

This time in 1936 the death toll of traffic was 34.

Bandit Gets $128 In Liquor Store

A suave, well-dressed hold-up man last night robbed the Peoples Liquor Store at 1112 G street northwest, of $128 after he had forced a clerk, Harry Fleischman, 21, to lie on the floor in a rear room.

In another holdup Dave Freedman, 18, attendant at a City Service gas station at Nineteenth and L streets northwest, was robbed of $36 by two armed white men. They escaped on foot.

While thousands of Washingtonians walk hot streets beneath a blistering sun, Alan Leighton and his staff of research assistants barricade themselves from the world of high temperatures to delve into the cool mysteries of ice cream.

Their experiments, which comprise one branch of the Bureau of Dairy Industry's activities, take place in a basement room of the Agricultural Building. Whenever Leighton misses one of his workers on a particularly sweltering day, he knows where to look—in a storage room adjoining the main laboratory which is kept at a temperature of 5 degrees below zero.

The subject of their research is the "theory of ice cream." By applying the laws of physical chemistry, they hope to establish formulae for different grades of ice cream.

Despite the atmosphere of scientific austerity in which the experiments take place, there remains in the laboratory something of the congeniality of an ice cream parlor. When visitors drop in, Leighton, the perfect host, produces from some unofficial cubbyhole paper plates and spoons and serves his guests directly from the freezer.

He does not always partake himself, probably because he realizes all the time that the substance lacks the proper degree of viscosity, elasticity and tensile strength.

Plumbers Ran to Aid.

Time was when ice cream left over from the experiments could be disposed of at the discretion of the laboratory workers. It was convenient to be able to pay out 50 cents and take home to the family a quart of fresh ice cream without stopping off at a drug store.

Besides, the laboratory used to get perfect service from the building employes. Plumbers came running when they heard that a pipeline in the "ice cream department" needed repair, hoping that their efforts would be rewarded.

Lately, however, every ounce of the 300 gallons produced weekly—with the exception of that served to visitors—must be turned over to hospitals.

The laboratory works on the principle there is no such thing as one good ice cream. Tastes differ according to persons and geographical regions. In the South, an 8 per cent fat content is popular, while in New Hampshire, the chemist's native State, a minimum of 14 per cent is prescribed by law.

Tests Extensive.

So three times a week the laboratory produces some 100 gallons of ice cream, each time varying fat content, length of freezing period, freezing temperature and other complex factors which must be considered.

When the liquid mix has been margenized (or subjected to a pressure of about 2,000 pounds to break up the fat particles), pasteurized, cooled, whipped and frozen, samples of the results are taken. They are weighed, sliced, struck with a pendulum. They are tested for surface tension with an instrument known as a tensimeter, and analyzed for chemical composition through devious means understandable only to a chemist.

The results of the tests are transferred to graphs and Leighton and his colleagues are ready to draw their conclusion. These are summed up at intervals and published in pamphlets bearing such titles as "The Apparent Viscosity of Ice Cream" and "The Solubility-Freezing Point Relationships of Water Solutions Saturated With Respect to Sucrose and Dextrose in Relation to the Storage of Sherbet and Water Ice."

Prominent among the contributions the laboratory has made to the ice cream industry in the 20 years of its existence is the isolation of the cause of "sandy" ice cream.

John W. Kidwell, Veteran Traffic Policeman, Dead

A quarter-century ago Frank A. Waters, then a young policeman, notified John W. Kidwell of his appointment to the police force.

Last night Waters, now an Eleventh Precinct private, answered the station telephone when word came in that Private John W. Kidwell had died at his home, 1520 W street northeast.

Kidwell had been ill a month with a chest ailment. He was well known in downtown Washington, having for many years been on traffic duty at Ninth and F streets northwest. After his transfer to the Eleventh Precinct, he became equally well known to Anacostia school children, whom he used to guide through traffic daily.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Flora Kidwell and five children. Funeral arrangements have not been made, but all precinct station flags will be at half-staff today.

D.C. Priests Transferred To Maryland

New Assignments Are Made by Archbishop Curley.

Rev. R. A. McGowan Will Leave Capital for Brunswick.

The Catholic Review at Baltimore yesterday announced a list of changes in the assignments of Catholic priests in the District and Maryland.

The changes were made by Archbishop Michael J. Curley. They will become effective June 25.

The Rev. R. A. McGowan will be transferred from the National Catholic Welfare Conference here to Brunswick, Md., as pastor.

Father McGowan is noted for his welfare work in the District, and distinguished as a syndicated writer for the newspapers. A native of Missouri, he has been active here for more than a decade.

From fashionable St. Mathew's Church here the Rev. Edward H. Roach will be transferred to Thurmont.

The Rev. Joseph F. Denges will be transferred from Holy Comforter Church here, where he directed the Holy Comforter Boys Band, to the chaplaincy of Gallinger Hospital, with residence at Providence Hospital.

The Rev. Francis J. Flanagan, of St. Ann's, will be transferred to St. Katherine's, Baltimore (effective as of January, 1937).

The retirement of the Rev. Charles O. Rosensteel, of Forest Glen, also was announced.

The Rev. William E. Kelly, from Brunswick, to Westminster, as administrator, with full pastoral rights, pending the complete recovery of the Rev. Martin P. J. Egan.

The Rev. Joseph J. Leary, from Benedict, to Clarksville, as pastor and archdiocesan director of the League of the Little Flower.

The Rev. J. Gilbert Hann, from Baltimore to Hagerstown as assistant.

The Rev. John Czyz, from Baltimore to Silver Spring as assistant.

The Rev. William J. McVeigh, returning from sick leave, to St. Cyprian's, Washington, as assistant.

Goes to Baltimore.

The Rev. Donald J. Fannon, from Baltimore to Sacred Heart, Washington, as assistant.

The Rev. John A. Dunn, from Sacred Heart, Washington, to Baltimore, as assistant.

The Rev. Joseph Lansinger, from Holy Name, Washington, to Westernport as assistant.

The Rev. Louis F. Miltenberger, from Our Lady of Victory, Washington, to St. Martin's, Washington, as assistant.

Citizens of Northwest Seek $450,000 for New School

To Fight for Restoration of $100,000 Cut From Appropriation by Senate Committee for Structure at Fifth and Sheridan.

Residents of Northwest Washington, headed by E. H. Pullman, president of the Manor Park Citizens Association, last night laid plans to get a $450,000 appropriation for a proposed new senior high school at Fifth and Sheridan streets northwest.

The citizens went into action after the $450,000 item, approved by a House Committee, has been cut to $350,000 by the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations.

Their purpose is to gain restoration of the slashed $100,000 and to prevent diversion of the money to a new junior high school on the site of the Baneker Recreation Center.

The section which the new high school—to be known as Northern High School—would serve includes the area from Petworth north to the District Line and east of Rock Creek Park.

Supporting Groups Listed.

Among the organized groups backing the proposed legislation are the citizens' associations of Petworth, Takoma Park, Manor Park, Chillum Heights, Brightwood and Sixteenth street; the Marietta Park Women's Club, the Fort Stevens Post of the American Legion and the Albright Memorial Evangelical Church. Besides Pullman, the citizens' representatives working on the matter include Mrs. B. G. McIlwee, chairman of the Manor Park Citizens Association legislative committee; Wallace C. Magathan, president of the Citizens Association of Takoma, D. C.; H. A. Craver, of Petworth; Mrs. H. M. Lowry, president of the Roosevelt High School Parent-Teachers Association; the Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor of the Albright Church; Mrs. Sam Stewart, of the Marietta Park Women's Club; Mrs. W. H. Seaquist and Mrs. F. Arthur Oehm, of the Whittier Parent-Teachers Association, and Arthur E. Cook, E. C. Snyder and Peter Snyder, of the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association.

Fight 15 Years Old.

Pullman pointed out that citizens in the section have been agitating for a Northern High School for the past 15 years. A site at Fifth and Sheridan streets northwest was bought in 1931, he said.

The Manor Park spokesman declared that there are now approximately 2,000 children of high school age who live in that area. Many of these, he said, are now nearly two miles from the nearest high school. He also asserted that construction of a Northern High School would relieve congestion at Roosevelt and other high schools.

Pullman believes that the Banneker Recreation Center is a bad site for a school. He said that the National Capital Park and Planning Commission had disapproved the site unless money was appropriated to buy adjoining "compensatory land."

As the citizen forces planned to press the fight for the school it was learned on Capitol Hill that Ross Collins, head of the House subcommittee on District appropriations, will attempt to restore the $450,000 figure.

New Gonorrhea Cure Dangerous, Ruhland Warns

A warning that a new cure for gonorrhea which has recently received much publicity is sometimes dangerous to the patient was issued yesterday by Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer.

While the curative powers of the drug are remarkable, Dr. Ruhland said, nevertheless some types of patients suffer violent reactions, and dangerous impairment of the respiratory glands.

The drug is sold under several trade names. Local druggists have reported a heavy business in the chemical since it was reported it would cure gonorrhea in four days.

Wanderbirds to Hike.

The Wanderbirds Hiking Club will hike along Patuxent River tomorrow. Starting at Columbia Road Bridge, near Burtonsville, they will follow the river to Flatrock Branch. Here there will be a stop for lunch and swimming. Then to Columbia Road and Brians Corner, the stopping point. Dr. Stokes will lead the 8-mile woodland hike. Meeting place will be Fourteenth and Buchanan streets bus barn at 9:30 a. m.

Trolley Car Elimination Urged in D.C.

District Experts Will Urge Adoption of Plan Used in Metropolis.

A Staff Correspondent.

New York, June 11.—Elimination of street-car transportation facilities in Washington as a traffic safety measure was proposed here tonight by a group of District highway officials completing a two-day survey of Manhattan's traffic problem.

After touring New York's system of elevated highways and cross-town speedways, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, accompanied by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highways director, prepared to recommend Washington's adoption of traffic safety methods which have made this city the Nation's safest.

Manhattan proper, it was learned today, has discarded surface or street-car transportation on all but two midtown streets. According to Col. Harold G. Fowler, deputy police commissioner in charge of traffic, this has resulted in less congestion and a decrease in highway accidents.

Public sentiment and support, the Washington officials were told, has aided New York in its drive against traffic recklessness.

"Without the support of our citizens," Col. Fowler said, "we would have accomplished little toward making the busiest streets in the world safe for motorists and pedestrians. Removal of downtown street-car tracks and other safety improvements during recent years may be traced directly to demands from New York residents."

Conduct Concerted Drive.

The Washington delegation was to have met Mayor LaGuardia today, but the city's executive was called from the city. Col. Fowler acted in his place.

Safety in traffic, Col. Fowler told the visiting officials, cannot be attained by "campaigns" and "drives." The safety program, he said, must be continuous, "every hour of every day."

New York's 18,000 policemen, Col. Fowler added, are constantly conducting a concerted drive against highway lawlessness. The city is literally "plastered" with safety slogans and warning signs.

Convinced that Washington will eventually have a system of elevated highways, Van Duzer and Whitehurst today visited the mammoth tri-borough bridge to study its plan.

Later, they journeyed out to the recently completed system of improved highways along the shoreline of Long Island. For many miles at a stretch, there are no intersections or danger of collisions. At one point, six roads meet at the same location.

Grades Separated.

The grades are separated, however, and drivers are not forced to cross hazardous and congested points.

New York, Col. Fowler declared, has now formed a traffic safety committee similar to the one now being organized in Washington. It is known as the Greater New York safety committee and is composed of civic as well as official leaders.

New York policemen are awarded merits for traffic safety work. They receive 40 credits for outstanding work in accident reduction, 40 credits for enforcement, 10 credits for safety educational work and 10 credits for accurate accident reporting.

There hasn't been a traffic ticket "fixed" without reason in New York for more than two years, Col. Fowler declared.

Nats Routed by Chicago White Sox, 14-8, as Bonura Goes on Batting Rampage

Tops 17-Hit Attack With Four Bingles

Homer Included; Weaver Pounded; Boston Men Get Into Action.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, June 11.—Those hapless wights known as the Nats continued the evil tenor of their ways this afternoon and collected another sound thrashing on their woeful whirl through the West. It was their third straight licking—a 14-8 affair in which the White Sox were only one of their oppressors.

The other was a blinding sun that converted two routine pop flies into two juicy hits for the White Sox and figured in six of the Chicago runs, but what's the use—you can't alibi for a team that gets beat 14-8.

New Men Play.

Especially when its pitchers give up 17 hits and let the enemy romp away to a 12-1 lead before the fifth inning has run its course. More interesting is the fact that all of the Nats' new talent from Boston—the brothers Ferrell and Mel Almada—made their debuts in Washington uniforms.

The Ferrell brothers were in there only briefly—Wes as a futile pinch hitter, Rick as the catcher during the last three innings—but Almada labored through it all. And it was an impressive debut for the young Mexican, who collected two crisp singles in four official times at bat and covered centerfield like the morning dew.

The Sox piled into Monte Weaver for 4 runs in the first inning, picked up a couple more in the third, and made it 12 to 1 in the fifth, but the Nats, for all of Weaver's seeming failure, were an unlucky crew.

Run Untainted.

Because 3 of those 4 runs in the first inning were as unearned as an innocent bystander's fate. Johnny Stone had the third out in the inning virtually in his paws, but he lost Jackie Hayes' high pop fly in the sun in short center, and 2 runs scored on the lucky blow as the 10,000 Ladies Day fans shrieked their glee.

Weaver, who should have been out of the inning with only 1 run scored against him, then committed a doubtful balk and the fourth run of the session was waved home from third base by Umpire Ormsby.

There wasn't anything tainted about the Sox's fifth run of the game—it was a homer into the left-field seats by Zeke Bonura, who only made four straight hits today. But the Sox's sixth run was the pure gift of Buddy Lewis, who made an unpardonable muff of Jackie Hayes' meek grounder.

And Weaver had the third out of the fourth inning virtually staring him in the face with no damage done as yet by the White Sox, but in some manner he succeeded in avoiding picking up Walker's meek tap toward the pitching box and it went for a cheap single, filling the bases. Whereupon Bonura and Appling drove 4 more runs home with a pair of doubles.

And the two runs that Syd Cohen gave up in the fifth were also tainted because Joe Kuhel, who was waiting for half a minute for Jackie Hayes' pop fly over first base to descend into his mitt, finally gave up in self-defense when he lost the ball in the glare of the sun and had to shield his head with his hands, while the pellet dropped safely. Two more runs crossed the plate almost immediately.

Sad Ending.

That's the way it went, the Sox getting the breaks and the Nats getting nowhere with the pitching of big Johnny Whitehead, who was recording his fourth straight win of the season. They had only one run to show for their first five innings, but they managed to pick up three more on five singles in the sixth. When they collected two more in the seventh on singles by Lewis and Sington, the White Sox began to warm up another pitcher, but Whitehead called a halt.

They got two more in the ninth because Buddy Lewis walloped a pitch into the rightfield seats with Mel Almada on base. But that ninth-inning rally fell six runs short when Freddie Sington eventually hit into a double play. It was very sad, folks.

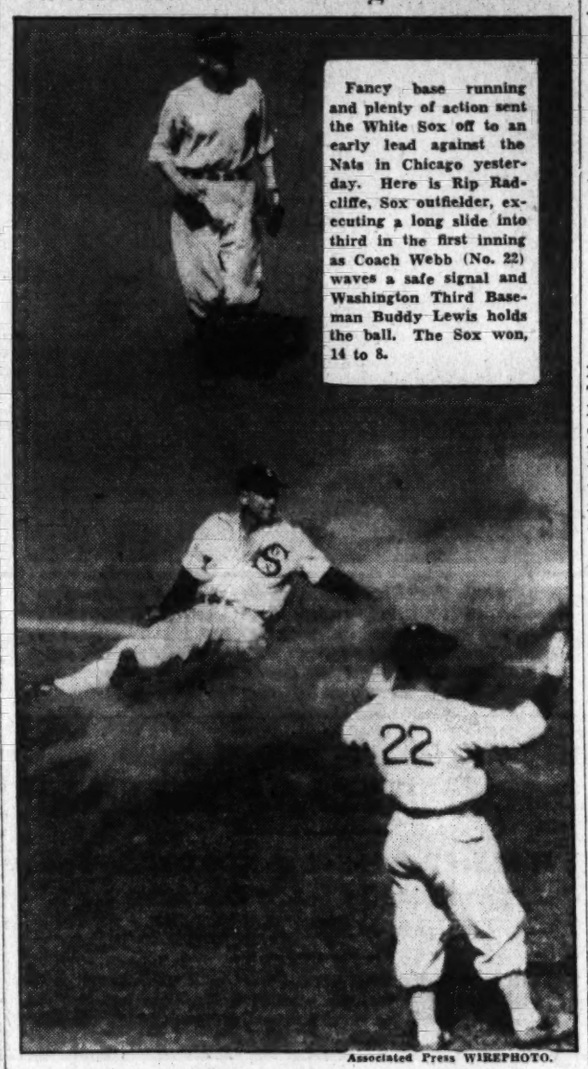
White Sox in Action Against Nats



Fancy base running and plenty of action sent the White Sox off to an early lead against the Nats in Chicago yesterday. Here is Rip Radcliffe, Sox outfielder, executing a long slide into third in the first inning as Coach Webb (No. 22) waves a safe signal and Washington Third Baseman Buddy Lewis holds the ball. The Sox won, 14 to 8.

State Doubles Net Crown to Capital Team

Mrs. Robinson and Edith Clark Are Victors by 6—1, 9—7 Scores.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 11.—Mrs. Stanley Robinson and Edith Clark defeated another Washington team, Mrs. Dorette Miller and Sarah Moore, 6—1, 9—7, for the Maryland Women's Doubles tennis championship today at the Baltimore Country Club.

The last Baltimore pair, Anne Williams and Eleanor Colston, was eliminated in the semifinals earlier in the day by the new champions, 6—0, 6—2. Mrs. Marion Prichard and Anne Ellis, also from the Capital, succumbed to Mrs. Miller and Miss Moore, 6—3, 6—1, in the other semifinal encounter.

The initial set of the doubles finals was rather tame, but the eventual losers' stubborn resistance in the second and deciding cluster provided a thrilling finish to the match. Miss Moore was outstanding for the losers, while Mrs. Robinson's play at both the net and the base-line was commendable.

Mrs. Miller was the target for a majority of the new champions' shots, but she recovered for some neat cross-court placements, while Miss Moore caused Mrs. Robinson to err repeatedly by her effective lobs. Both couples repeatedly broke through the opposition's service.

Sports in Brief

MOTORCYCLE RACER INJURED.

DODGE HORSES WIN.

Chicago (AP).—Entries of Miss Frances M. Dodge, Rochester, Mich., took five ribbons—two firsts, a second and two fourths—in afternoon events today at the Chicago Charter Jubilee Horse Show.

SHUTE TO PLAY COTTON.

New York (AP).—Henry Cotton, crack British professional golfer, and Denny Shute, American Professional Golfers Association champion, will meet in a world championship match over the 72-hole route after the Ryder Cup matches in England late this month.

SENTENCES SUSPENDED.

GET TWO COLLEGE PLAYERS.

East Lansing, Mich. (AP).—Scouts for the Detroit Tigers today ordered two Michigan State College baseball stars to report to the Beaumont Club of the Texas League Sunday. They are Milton Lehnhardt, slugging outfielder, and Steve Sebo, catcher.

WILL HIRE COMMISSIONER.

Los Angeles (AP).—The Pacific Coast Conference voted today to hire a commissioner of athletics to investigate possible reports of subsidization of athletes.

CASEY BEATS JUDSON.

HUNT AND RIGGS WIN.

Nashville, Tenn. (AP).—Two California boys, Joe Hunt and Bobby Riggs, eliminated Dixie's last representatives in the Southern amateur tennis tournament today and will meet tomorrow for the men's singles championship.

Imhoff Plays Welsh Today In Net Finals

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 11.—Douglas Imhoff, the 19-year-old sophomore from the University of California, and Barney Welsh, of Rockville, Md., sixteenth player on the national list, will battle for the Maryland State tennis singles championship tomorrow at the Baltimore Country Club at 2 p. m.

Imhoff, a gangling youth, always at ease, has been the surprise of the tournament. He has advanced through six matches without losing a set, and though not seeded, has eliminated the second, third and eight selected players en route. Lindsay Franklin was his victim today, and after the first set, a 7—5 battle, the Texan had no chance and was beaten 6—0.

Welsh, taking up where his match with Eddie Jacobs in the quarter-finals had halted the day before, with the latter leading 2—0, 15-all, dropped the first set to Eddie, but won the next two. It was an interesting battle. Welsh then eliminated Paul Newton, of the University of California in two hard sets, 9—7, 7—5.

Newton and Dick Bennett, intercollegiate doubles champions and top seeded pair, were eliminated through an injury to the former in a second-round match.

Western Beats Central.

Western defeated Central, 6-2, yesterday at Bannockbourn in the final match of the interhigh golf series. Western finished in second place behind Roosevelt.

Ann Duvall Wins Horse Show Honor

Upperville Event Opens Auspiciously With Many Entries.

By Grace Brooks.
A Staff Correspondent.

Upperville, Va., June 11.—Ann Duvall, a classy brown mare by Tom Tiger, won for her owners, the Peach Brothers, of Upperville, a leg on the Challenge Bowl, given for the best 3-year-old half-bred registered in the half-bred stud book at the opening of the eighty-fourth annual Upperville colt and horse show at Grafton Farms today.

This bowl was substituted for the Jockey Club Cup, which was discontinued 3 years ago when the Peach Brothers captured it permanently. Ann Duvall won the blue over a strong class, two of these contenders being E. L. Redman's Fauquier and Hopeful, which placed second and third, respectively.

The Peach Brothers also captured the Founder's Cup, another feature class of the afternoon, with their good mare, Dorothy M. This class was especially for horses bred and owned in Fauquier and Loudoun Counties, and the cup is a replica of cups given when the show was started. Dorothy M also won in the half-bred road hack class, an event in which she always makes a good showing. Ann Duvall captured third in this class, with Mrs. Turner Wiltshire's Pass On taking second place.

The shaded grove, cooled by an all-night rain, was an excellent setting for the large number of outstanding horses seen on the grounds today. The weather was ideal. Performances were excellent and one of the largest first-day crowds ever seen here was on hand throughout the day. The show will continue tomorrow, with thoroughbreds, ponies and hunters on the program.

Mrs. Josephine G. Libby, of Darien, Conn., who maintains a farm in Fauquier near her brother, State Senator Thomas B. Glascock, was the largest winner in the heavy draft classes that featured the morning classes. C. E. Norman, of Purcellville, was also a large heavy-draft winner.

Ray S. Shoemaker, of Pennsylvania, had a big string of horses at the show today. Outstanding among these was Hi-Glo, a bay gelding by Congo out of My Gloria, which walked off with three blues, gaining 15 points on the championship, which will be awarded tomorrow.

E. L. Redman, Middleburg horseman, who always brings to the shows a string of young horses, was true to form today and was a big winner in the breeding classes. His big winners were Report, a 2-year-old, and His Way, a yearling.

The judges today were Frank owditch, Wilmington, Del., and James utler, New York, hunters; Col. W. W. Whiteside, Front Royal, remount class, and Thomas I. Marshall and Harry K. Russell, heavy drafts.

The show will open at 10 a. m. tomorrow with the showing of the thoroughbred brood mares. Other thoroughbred classes will follow, also pony and hunter events.

Scott to Fight Red Lewis Here

Russell ("Buddy") Scott, the transplanted Oklahoma light-heavyweight, will wage war with Red Lewis, the heavy hitting Richmonder, in a ten-round co-feature to the Lou Gevinson-Joey Archibald featherweight bout at Griffith Stadium next Wednesday night.

Scott, who campaigns in the 175-pound division, is undefeated in 32 professional starts. The nearest he has come to a setback was in two draw bouts against Charles ("Hobo") Williams, the 160-pounder who will tangle with Middleweight Champion Freddie Steele here July 20. Scott also holds one decision over Williams, but many thought the Hobo had earned a decision victory the last time they clashed, so that about evens matters.

Giants Trade Fitzsimmons To Brooklyn

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—Bill Terry, manager of the pace-setting Giants of the National League, traded a 35-year-old pitcher for a promising 22-year-old hurler today when he sent fat Freddy Fitzsimmons and cash to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Tommy Baker.

Although neither pitcher has shown much this year, the deal figures to benefit both clubs. Fitzsimmons, a consistent right hander since starting his major league career with the Giants in 1925, should fill a big gap in the Dodgers' mound staff in that he will give Manager Burleigh Grimes another starting hurler. Baker, less than two years out the minors, has failed to live up to expectations in the matter of games won and lost, but Terry believes he has a comer in the young Texan.

Fitzsimmons has pitched only one complete game this season, holding the Dodgers to five hits in that encounter, and the record books show two defeats as compared to as many triumphs. In his 12 previous campaigns with the Giants, he finished below the .500 mark only once and that was in 1935 when he won four and lost eight. Last year he received credit for ten victories while being charged with seven defeats.

His best years were 1928, when he had a record of 20-9, and 1930, when he led the league with a mark of 19-7. During his service with the Giants he won 168 games ind dropped 112, but never was victorious in a World Series, losing once to the Senators in 1933 and twice to the Yankees last year.

Baker came to the Dodgers from Alletntown of the New York-Penn League late in the 1935 season. He won only one game of the 11 in which he appeared, but showed so much promise that he was counted on as a starting hurler last year. He failed to come through, however, winning only one while dropping eight. This year Grimes used him largely as a relief hurler with the result his record shows one setback and no victories.

Blond Pro Burns Up Oakland Hills Links

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Birmingham, Mich., June 11.—Cracking the Oakland Hills competitive record with a 66, 6 under par and equaling the all-time low mark for a single round in the United States Open golf championship, blond Jimmy Thomson, the siege gun from Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., climaxed an epic day by entering a four-way tie for the lead at the halfway stage of the tournament.

Thomson's dazzling round, marked by six birdies and one eagle, gave him a 36-hole total of 140 and completed the pace-making deadlock with three professional rivals, Ralph Guldahl and Frank Walsh, of Chicago, and Big Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia.

Guldahl, who was on the verge of a record-smashing round himself before Thomson provided the day's crowning shot-making thrills, added a three-under-par 69 to his previous 71. Walsh and Dudley, playing together, duplicated their first round 70's.

Missed Short Putts.

After wielding a red-hot putter for 15 holes, during which he dropped half a dozen putts of 6 to 20 feet for birdies, in addition to sinking a 60-yard chip shot for an eagle three on the 555-yard twelfth, Thomson lost his touch on the greens. With it went his chances of hanging up a new world scoring record for major open championship competition. He missed putts of 6 and 3 feet on two of the closing holes.

Thomson's round tied the best on record in 41 years of United States title play, including 66's for Gene Sarazen in 1932, Johnny Goodman and Walter Hagen in 1933 and Tom Creavy in 1934.

The Scottish-born pro clipped three shots off the Oakland Hills competitive mark, which had stood at 69 during nearly two complete days of the wildest scoring this tournament ever has witnessed, including the par-cracking spree that the field enjoyed last year at Baltusrol.

With the pace-making quartet out in front by two strokes and a total of 14 shot makers, including three amateurs, bunched within five shots of each other at the halfway stage, it was still a wide open scramble for the title slipping from the grasp of dapper Tony Manero.

Champion 9 Strokes Back.

The defending champion not only was trailing by 9 full shots with 76-73—149 for his two days' work, but his record of 282 appeared in considerable jeopardy. A year ago 140 was tops for the first 36 holes and the current pace forecasts plenty of fireworks for the decisive 36 holes scheduled tomorrow.

Out of the original starting field of 166 players, 65 made the qualifying grade at 152 or better. Only the low 60 and ties for sixtieth place were permitted to enter the last half of the 72-hole grind.

Chief among the casualties were Tommy Armour, Chicago's "Silver Scot," who tallied a 79 today for a total of 157, and W. Lawson Little, the former amateur king from San Francisco, who blew himself out of the tournament with an 83 for 158. Last year, his first as a pro, Little failed even to qualify for the first half of the championship.

Cooper, Sawyer Move Up.

Cooper and Sawyer moved up with 70's for the second round, while Strafaci posted a par-equaling 72 and Snead slipped from his opening round 69 to a 73. Slammin' Sam didn't take as much as a tumble, however, as Denny Shute, of Boston, the P. G. A. champion, who shared the lead yesterday, but skidded to a 76 for a total of 145, five shots off the pace.

Burnett Beats Pitt 5 and 4; Overton Also Wins in Maryland Title Golf

Indian Spring Ace Streaks Into Finals

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

The sensational scoring streak of Medalist Volney Burnett suffered no letdown at Manor yesterday. The Indian Spring ace marched to the finals of the Maryland State amateur without passing the sixteenth hole, while Spencer Overton, defending champion, came through with a similar performance.

Harry Pitt, host club favorite, looked at 12 pars and a pair of birdies in his morning match with Burnett, bowing 5 and 4, while youthful Bobby Brownell was unable to combat three straight birdies in the semifinals, and lost by that margin.

Overton, whose putting touch is comparable to a seamstress threading a needle, thwarted the efforts of a fellow townsman, Harry Parr, in the third round, 3 and 2, and buried Louis Fuchs in the afternoon with a dazzling display of work around the greens by the same margin.

Fuchs and Brownell had gained the round of four with little difficulty. The Indian Spring star won over Charles Beeler, 5 and 4, after holding a 6-up lead at the turn and Bobby ousting E. G. Barnes, of Hillendale, 6 and 5, 3 over par for the route including a 7 on a par 4 hole.

Against Pitt, Burnett continued his remarkable play, the Manor Moose playing the first 9 in 36 strokes and was 2 down, losing the tenth and eleventh to pars for the verdict.

In the afternoon match against Brownell, Volney topped his tee shot on the fifth to lose his lead garnered on the first 2, but finished the 9 with 3 straight birdies, holing a 25-footer on the seventh, 30 footer on the eighth and a 4 footer on the par 5 ninth hole.

Bob rallied on the thirteenth and fourteenth holes, winning both with pars, but Volney dormied the match with his fourth birdie, on the fifteenth hole, and closed the issue by halving the next in par fours.

Fuchs lost the second and third holes to Overton, the latter to a birdie three. They halved through the tenth in regulation figures, and Louis got one back by laying his tee shot stony on the eleventh for a birdie but missed a golden opportunity to win the next by three-putting and followed with a similar performance on the thirteenth hole.

Overton ended the match on the sixteenth with a birdie for his 4 and 2 margin of victory. Spencer was exactly even par for the 32 holes he traveled in the two matches. Burnett was 2 under for 30 holes, including a stymie laid by Brownell on the tenth, preventing the ultimate winner from making a 3-foot putt.

The finalists will meet over the 36-hole route today, the first match starting at 10 a. m. and the afternoon play commencing at 2. For the three days' play, 36 holes each, Volney is now 2 under par, while Overton, including a 146 in the qualifying round, is approximately 6 over. Burnett will have a decided edge off the tee but will be met on even terms by the Baltimorean around the greens. Volney was outdistancing Brownell by 35 to 50 yards off every tee yesterday, and the latter is a longer hitter than Overton.

Crack Field Awaits Start Of Marathon

More Than 75 Runners Entered; First Three Will Go to Dallas.

The real amateurs of sportsdom, those stout-hearted men who trot for only fleeting fame and blistered feet, will race today in the championship marathon of the National Amateur Athletic Union.

The picturesque course starts at Mount Vernon and stretches along the Potomac River, past the Capitol and finally circles around the Washington Monument to the finish line just south of the White House. Some 75 or more runners will participate. The race begins at 2 p. m. (Eastern standard time).

The field will include ambitious youngsters of 18 and enthusiastic oldsters past 50. They'll come from all over the Nation and some from abroad. They're the most scraggly group of athletes sport knows. Size doesn't mean much, and the scrawny little guys have as much chance as the bigger, robust chaps, if they have the courage and the strength to carry on.

128 Netters Ready to Vie In Grand National Tourney

By Jack Munhall.

The largest field to participate in a local tournament swings into play in the opening round of the Grand National Amateur tennis tournament today on the Potomac Park courts.

Dooley Mitchell, the local choice, and Frank Goeltz, seeded No. 1 among the visitors, head 128 aspirants. Mitchell bowed only after a gruelling struggle to Barney Welsh, in the recent City of Washington play, while Goeltz is recognized here as well as in Wilkesbarre, as a top-notch performer.

Sharing the favorites' spotlight also are Yelverton Garnett, Hugh Lynch, Frank Shore and Tony Latona, rated in that order among the locals, and Frank Thompson, Lieut. W. R. Robertson and R. M. Johnson, the other visitors who are ranked respectively.

Conspicuous by their absences will be Welsh, the Rockville Rambler and generally rated the best player in this immediate vicinity, and Gil Hunt, who had previous engagements.

Pairings for tomorrow follow:

Maryland Loses To Vermont, 8-6

Burlington, Vt., June 11.—In spite of six errors and eight bases on balls issued by Ted Budzyna, Vermont repelled the University of Maryland here today, 6 to 4, before a commencement week crowd of 1,000. It was the first game of a northern trip for the Old Liners who will meet Dartmouth tomorrow.

Budzyna, although wild, pitched effectively with men on bases, allowing only four hits, one a scratch.

Jess Anderson Takes English Women Crown

They battled doggedly through the morning round and went to lunch all square. Miss Parks started off the afternoon round by winning the nineteenth but Miss Anderson squared the match at the twentieth and then won the twenty-second, twenty-third and twenty-fourth in succession to take a lead she never thereafter relinquished.

Miss Anderson was steadiness personified as she played each nine of the first 27 holes of the match in 40 strokes. Miss Parks, weakening under the hot sun in the afternoon, brought about her own downfall when she lost control of her woods. She played almost every one of her second shots either from rough or a bunker.

Trixie Lass WinsFeature; Pays $18.40

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 11.—Trixie Lass, owned by Col. A. E. Pierce, ran off with a seven-lengths victory in the Cabell Purse here this afternoon over a muddy course. The chestnut filly, ridden by Sammy Palumbo, was the longest priced member of the field of five in the 6½-furlong sprint and paid $18.40. Closest to the winner at the end of the sprint, which was run in 1:22 4-5, was Claude Feltner's Small Change. Third money went to J. B. Belk's Wise Sister, four lengths in back of Small Change. Broadway Maid finished fourth and Tody West wound up a badly beaten last after setting the pace of a half-mile.

The 4,000 fans were treated to another favored double pay-off when Betty A. McDonall's Petee Lad won the second race and Claude Feltner's Crushed Ice sped home the victor in the third. The 6 and 3 combine paid but $8.60.

Thanks to one of Sammy Palumbo's ground-saving rides, Petee Lad slipped through an opening at the top of the stretch and won the sprint by a half-length to reward the favorite players. Petee Lad paid $4.40. Mrs. J. E. Keyser's Wise Money finished second three lengths in front of R. V. Parrish's Wise Revue, which set the pace only to tire.

Crushed Ice drove to a two-length victory over seven others in the four and a half furlong third to give Machado his second winner of the afternoon. Mrs. G. Hutchins' White Sweets finished second and Mrs. R. L. Green's Miss Wrack wound up a distant third.

Machado's first victory came on Mrs. E. L. Bull's Tuleyries Lin. The juvenile filly just did last to beat Mrs. H. Horst's Scoutallow which under one of Palumbo's typical rides slipped through on the rail and almost stole the race. S. B. Berry's Hydrangea ran an even race to be third.

Whiskora raced to his second straight triumph in the fourth. The black gelding, owned by L. Rodriguez led all the way in the sprint over the Charles Town course, and paid $5. Mrs. H. E. Jenkins' Lady Dunlin was second after trailing the entire trip and easily beat B. Huyett's Tell It for second money.

Palumbo turned in his third win of the afternoon and his twenty-third of the meeting on Mrs. M. Richardson's Reigh Tetrarch in the seven furlong sixth. The colt was the choice and paid $6.40. O. S. Bloom's Gagne wound up second two lengths back and three lengths in front of L. W. Marks' Carnival.

Sammy Palumbo, leading rider at the meeting, rode his fourth winner of the day when he brought home Mrs. H. W. Wagley's Canteret in the seventh race, at one mile and a sixteenth, paying $7.60. W. A. Cowell's Dash In finished second a length in front of C. F. Bock's Foggy Dawn, which took down the short end.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, MUDDY.

FIRST RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:34½. Off at 2:38½. Winner, Mrs. E. L. Bull's b. f. (2), by Dunlin—Black Wand. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:55 2-5.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	Start	¼	Stretch	Finish	Straight

MISS BONES.....	(Wisner)	114½	5	1	5½	4nk	7	26.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TULEYRIES LIN, $5.40, $4.00, $2.80; SCOUTALLOW, $6.40, $3.60; HYDRANGEA, $3.20.

TULEYRIES LIN, hard ridden from the break, took command leaving the backstretch and barely lasted to beat SCOUTALLOW. Latter was slow to find racing stride, came to the inside and closed with a belated rush. HYDRANGEA was rushed into contention, was caught in tight quarters leaving the backstretch when winner moved over, came to the outside and held on well. GLORIOSKY moved up entering the stretch, but faltered. LADY B. showed early speed, but quit.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:08. Off at 3:10½. Winner, Miss B. A. McDonnell's b. g. (4), by Petee Wrack—Lady Stimulus. Trained by H. Clark. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:21 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PETEE WRACK, $4.40, $3.00, $2.80; WISE MONEY, $3.40, $3.40; WISE REVUE, $7.00.

PETEE LAD, slow to get started, saved ground on the rail, came through an opening at the top of the stretch and was up in the final strides under a hard drive. WISE MONEY, hard ridden from the start, passed WISE REVUE a few yards from home, only to be overhauled in the last few strides. WISE REVUE set a fast pace, but weakened at the finish. CHAUMONT saved ground and ran an even race. JUNE G. saved ground and had no excuses.

THIRD RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:43. Off at 3:43. Winner, Claude Feltner's br. f. (3), by Prince of Umbria—Princess Julep. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:53 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRUSHED ICE, $3.80, $2.40, $2.20; WHITE SWEETS, $2.60, $2.40. MISS WRACK, $2.60.

CRUSHED ICE, first out of the gates, alternated in setting and forcing the pace, drew clear coming into the stretch, and won under a drive. WHITE SWEETS ran with the winner all the way, but was not good enough. MISS WRACK, off badly, was sent to the leaders, but could not menace them. BAHS CHOICE ran an even race. SUN ANGEL was outrun all the way. SALLY QUICK lost rider soon after the break.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $8.60.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:12. Winner, L. Rodriguez's blk. g. (6), by Whiskalons—Miss Dora. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:21 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHISKORA, $5.00, $3.00, $2.60; LADY DUNLIN, $3.80, $2.80; TELL IT, $3.00.

WHISKORA, sent to the front at the break, opened a nice lead when called upon, but was forced to a drive through the stretch. LADY DUNLIN was closest to the pace of the winner, but never threatened. TELL IT could not better his position. LA MARQUISE ran an even race. FLYING CARPET was never a factor. MONOCACY pulled up very sore.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:40½. Off at 4:41. Winner, A. E. Pierce's ch. f. (4), by Petee Wrack—Morning Sunshine. Trained by G. Russell. Value to winner, $450; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:22 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRIXIE LASS, $18.40, $6.40, $3.60; SMALL CHANGE, $3.60, $2.60; WISE SISTER, $3.00.

TRIXIE LASS followed the pace of TODY WEST under restraint, took the lead when ready and won as her rider pleased. SMALL CHANGE, hard ridden from the start, proved no match for the winner. WISE SISTER ran an even race. BROADWAY MAID broke slowly and showed a dull effort. TODY WEST went on the rail in the heavy going.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:10. Off at 5:11. Winner, Mrs. M. Richardson's br. c. (4), by Reigh Count—Tetrarch's Captive. Trained by P. Simms. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:32 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REIGH TETRARCH, $6.40, $3.80, $3.40; GAGNE, $8.80, $6.80; CARNIVAL, $7.60.

REIGH TETRARCH, showing liking for the going, took command at half, but was under pressure at end. GAGNE raced up fast on back lane, but wasn't good enough. CARNIVAL, for back for half, closed fastest of all. WARNED OFF raced into contending position leaving backstretch and then tired. SURRY quit after showing early foot. BONNIE DHU, under pressure for half, was eased up at end.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:43. Off at 5:43½. Winner, Mrs. H. W. Wageley's ch. m. (7), by Canter—Racket. Trained by W. Right. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:55 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANTERET, $7.60, $4.80, $3.80; DASH IN, $8.00, $5.60; FOGGY DAWN, $12.20.

CANTERET took the lead at the start, set the pace under restraint and won with speed in reserve. DASH IN, well up from the start, continued gamely, but wasn't good enough. FOGGY DAWN, slow to settle in best stride, saved ground on the inside and closed in game fashion. HUPPY had no excuses. NEVER IDOL raced in spots and quit. ROSEMARIE B. was timidly ridden and steered wide.

Washington Race To Teddy Green

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Teddy Green carried the Tranquility Farm silks of H. H. Cross, to victory in the feaure Widemere Purse at Washington Park today.

Teddy Green, a dark horse candidate for the ancient American Derby to be renewed here a week from tomorrow, ran 7 furlongs over a good track in 1:24 3-5, only a second off the track record, to lead home Coronium, Moon Harvest and three others. Basil James was in the saddle.

Baseball in Olympics.

Warsaw, Poland, June 11 (U.P.).—Baseball will be played at the 1940 Olympic games in Tokyo, but it will not be a part of the official program, Avery Brundage, American delegate to the international Oympic committee, said today.

Socony Floats $75,000,000 Private Loan

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—An issue of $75,000,000 of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., 3¼ per cent debentures will be sold directly to five life insurance comanies, directors of Socony-Vacuum announced today.

The issue, believed to be the largest amount of new financing, exclusive of refunding, undertaken by a private corporation in a number of years, will be priced at 98, the announcement said. Maturity is in 18 years.

The companies arranging to take the debentures directly are the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Prudential Insurance Co. of America, New York Life Insurance Co., Equitable Life Assurance Society, and Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York.

In some quarters surprise was expressed that the usual practice of floating debentures through an underwriting syndicate had not been followed. Such a trend has been noticeable in the sale of railroad equipment trust certificates recently, but Wall Street circles attached particular significance to the present instance because of the magnitude of the sum involved.

"While the new issue has been sold direct to five mutual insurance companies," said John A. Brown, president of Socony-Vacuum, the fact that these companies have an estimated 40,000,000 policy holders, not including duplications, indicates that the transaction has widespread public interest."

He said the proceeds would be added to the company's working capital and would be used to meet bank loans and the company's prospective capital requirements over the next three years.

American Maize Omits Dividend on Common

New York, June 11 (AP).—Directors of American Maize Products Co. today omitted action on the common dividend, due at this time, but declared the regular quarterly preferred payment. Donald K. David, president, in a letter to stockholders stated "operations of the company for the first five months of this year have been at a loss. The abnormally high price of corn, which has been rising steadily in recent months, together with the failure of selling prices to advance in line with material costs were responsible for the loss."

The previous dividend on the common was 25 cents quarterly paid March 31, last.

Auto Output Rises.

Detroit, June 11 (AP)—Ward's Automotive reports estimated today that the current week's production of automotive plants in the United States and Canada would total 118,798 cars and trucks compared to a revised figure of 104,136 units for last week, and 98,560 in this week a year ago.

5 Chicago Brokers Lose Licenses

The Commodity Exchange Administration announced today that Secretary Wallace had revoked registrations of five Chicago futures commission merchants and floor brokers under provisions of the commodity exchange act. Those listed in the order were Daniel A. DeLattre, Henry J. Novotny, Fred J. Holzapfel, Le Mark Lewis and Abraham Arthur Bank.

The Commodity Exchange Administration, which administers Federal law supervising speculative markets and traders, said DeLattre and Novotny were expelled from the Chicago open board of trade on March 16, and the other three were suspended on March 24.

"Each of the five respondents," he said, "had violated the rules and regulations under the act by not reporting the respective expulsions and suspensions to the Commodity Exchange Administration within 10 days."

The Commerce Department reported yesterday that gold imports totaled $51,813,163 during the week ended June 4, an increase of $11,000,000 over the previous week. Silver imports stood at $801,761, and $936,971 for the respective weeks.

Wheat Prices Decline With Rain Prospects

Relief Expected in Canadian Areas Where Conditions Are Critical.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 11.—Largely on account of prospective moisture relief for drought districts in Canada, where crop conditions are critical, wheat prices turned decidedly downward late today.

Reactions from the day's top level of wheat values amounted to about 3 cents a bushel, and were accelerated by estimates that export business in Canadian wheat totaled only 250,000 bushels.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅛@1⅝ cents under yesterday's finish; July, $1.08⅛@$1.08¾; September, $1.08⅜@$1.08½; December, $1.10¼@$1.10⅜. Corn, ¾ off to ⅞ up; July, $1.14¼@$1.14¼; September, $1.02@$1.02⅛; December, 75⅜@75½. Oats, ⅛@1⅛ down; July, 39@39¼, and rye showing 1 cent to 3⅛ drop; July, 83½. Provisions closed unchanged to 7 cents lower.

U. S. Foreign Trade Ahead of Last Year

The Commerce Department reported yesterday that United States foreign trade with all major geographical divisions increased during the first four months of this year.

Exports aggregated $980,897,000, compared with $768,496,000 in the same period last year. At $1,112,949,000, imports this year compared with $781,736,000 in the first four months of 1936.

Exports to Europe increased from $337,600,000 last year to $381,474,000, and imports from Europe rose from $214,688,000 to $295,716,000.

Stocks Decline in Dull Trading With Industrial Uncertainty; Wheat Has Setback.

New York, June 11.—Stocks weakened to close at the worst with losses of 2 points numerous in another dull trading session. Government bonds were a slight shade easier, but commodities were steady, in spite of weakness in wheat. September wheat closed 1½ cents lower at 108⅜ cents a bushel.

The dullest week of the summer to date ended with little sign of improvement in any direction. Turnover in stocks, bonds and commodities continued small and price changes were inconclusive or indicative of greater desire to liquidate than to buy. That a great deal of money is about, asking for employment, is apparent on every side. It is a little timid about going into stocks, but took a little heart on further reassurance this week on the gold price. The good offer of the Treasury on its lates loans, which incidentally will raise money to be used primarily for the purpose of sterilizing gold, brought an oversubscription of about six times, but the allotments were nevertheless held down. Government bonds were fairly steady today.

Money Rates.

If business slides much this summer the demand for bank credit also will decline and the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board are determined, it seems, to maintain money rates as low as possible. Brokers' loans this week, as reported last night by the Federal Reserve Board, jumped $28,000,000, but since the rise came in a period of slack stock dealings, the increase probably was connected with bond dealers' requirements rather than with speculative accounts. Commercial loans in the New York district expanded moderately, but for the country the total of Federal Reserve Bank credit in use was unchanged. Member bank balances climbed and excess reserves jumped $70,000,000, along with the enormous addition of $91,000,000 to the monetary gold stock and the seasonal drop of $52,000,000 in money in circulation.

It was just as well that the gold price rumors have been buried a little deeper this week; otherwise the current rise in gold exports would have created an orgy of anxiety. Most of the latest gold shipments have come from London, out of dishoarded gold and from Russian sales, but the slide in the franc suggests that the Bank of France also is beginning to lose gold again.

U. S. Gold Stock.

The country now has monetary gold stock of the record high dollar value of $12,118,000,000 and excess member bank reserves of nearly $1,000,000,000, in spite of the recent increase in reserve requirements and the "sterilization" of nearly $1,000,000,000 of gold. Surely the prospect for easy money and another advance in prices is better than that for a decline, barring, of course, a bad slump in business induced from other causes, such as labor troubles, higher taxation or other restrictive and punitive measures.

After wigging and wagging around for an hour or so the stock market developed a weakness which carried prices of leading stocks down 1 to 2 points, but without any considerable increase in trading volume, which was around 700,000 shares, the largest in a week. Steel, motor, rail and metal shares offered the least resistance to the moderate offerings. General Motors touched a new low and Chrysler sold down into unfamiliar ground. Steel dipped under 98.

Rails were the hardest hit, largely because of the drop of 102,000 cars loaded last week, as compared with the previous week, and a decline of 3,704 from the corresponding week of last year, the first time loadings have fallen below the same week of last year. Southern Pacific and Southern Railway gave up 2 points each. Pennsylvania, Central and D. & H. lost a point. New Haven preferred sold at a new low price for the year.

Anaconda, Smelters, Howe Sound and U. S. Smelting were the soft spots in the metal division. Motor, chemical, mail order and tobacco stocks were reduced 1 to 2 points, as were rail equipments and motor accessories. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic and Inland were the principal sufferers in that group.

Dull Times.

Thirteen Stock Exchange memberships are on the market, it is reported after a sale of one today at $85,000, a drop of $6,000. This was the lowest price paid in over two years. Some members think a solution for dull business in the market lies in a sharp contraction of member firms, which they think desirable even though stock volume later increases considerably. One suggestion is made that the large houses absorb many of the smaller ones, and that members of the smaller houses continue to act as business solicitors on a profit sharing basis, something after the manner of the London jobber. Meanwhile, the contraction in employment and wages among Wall street clerks continues.

Merger.

No plan is imminent, it is said, for a merger of the former Van Sweringen holdings companies, although work is going toward absorption of Alleghany by Chesapeake Corporation. Once the holding companies are satisfactorily arranged, the way will be clear for merging the railroads controlled by them. A successful consolidation of Chesapeake & Ohio, Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette and Erie and probably C. & E. I., might revive other railroad merger plans, to the good of all concerned.

Meetings.

Next Tuesday the annual meeting of Paramount will take place, at which stockholders will vote on an increase in authorized common stock and a reduction in the number of shares of first and second preferreds. On the same day Pittsburgh Steel and Liquid Carbonic stockholders will meet to vote on capitalization changes. Baldwin Locomotive has a special meeting set for Tuesday. Annual meetings of Utilities Power & Light and Bulova Watch also will be held. Next Friday the duPont stockholders will act on the creation of 500,000 shares of no par $4.50 cumulative preferred stock, the stock to be offered for sale.

Why Not?

Now that further progress has been made in making daily reports on odd-lot trading, instead of the former S. E. C. practice of publishing them weekly, it ought not to require much more labor to prepare the figures up to date. As it is, they are coming along two days late, figures being available each morning for the transactions of two days before. Odd-lot dealers and specialists keep their accounts up to the minute, and probably a tabulation could be marshaled in time for publication on the day of trading. Now that the matter is hot, the Stock Exchange itself could well run the totals on the ticker at hourly intervals along with the full-lot totals, and waiting for an S. E. C. report would be unnecessary.

U. S. Steel.

Warming up for the game of estimating the United States Steel Corporation's earnings for second quarter is taking place. Estimates appearing so far place the profit at around $3 a share for the common. That was about what was earned in first quarter, and the increased rate of operations and shipments since then suggest that earnings would run nearer $5 a share than $3. The recent action on the preferred dividend arrears also suggests the higher figures.

Stock Seat $85,000, Decline of $6,000

New York, June 11 (AP).—Sale of a membership at $85,000, off $6,000 from the previous sale and the lowest since April, 1935, was announced today by the New York Stock Exchange. The price of seats has fallen sharply since trading slumped in wake of the spring market decline. Turnover on the "big board" lately has been running from about 500,000 to 750,000 shares daily, less than half the average before the break in stocks.

The peak for a membership this year was $134,000. In 1935, before the market started on a two-year advance, checked by the recent selling wave, the record fell as low as $85,000.

Breuninger Is Chairman of R. E. Mortgage

Ralph D. Quinter, General Counsel, Succeeds Him as President.

At the fourteenth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Real Estate Mortgage and Guaranty Corporation, Lewis E. Breuninger announced his retirement as president of the corporation, but consented, for the time being, to remain as chairman of the board of directors and a member of the executive committee.

At a meeting of the board of directors following the stockholders' meeting, Mr. Breuninger was elected chairman of the board; Ralph D. Quinter was elected president and Wilmer F. Stickle executive vice president. The remaining officers, consisting of Thomas Somerville 3d, and Horace G. Smithy, vice presidents; Robert E. Hazell, secretary; R. E. Babermeyer, assistant secretary, and L. Harold Sothorn, general counsel, were reelected, as were all members of the board of directors.

Mr. Breuninger was one of the organizers of the corporation and has served as either chairman of the board or president from its beginning, during which time the corporation has paid in dividends to stockholders almost the amount of its capital stock. Mr. Breuinger has been practically a life-long resident of the District of Columbia and prominently identified with financial institutions.

Mr. Quinter is a member of the firm of Quinter & Sothorn, who for many years have been general counsel for the corporation. He is a former vice president of the District of Columbia Bar Association and a member of the Lawyers Club, Chevy Chase Club, and the Society of the Sons of the Revolution.

Wilmer F. Stickle will be in active charge of the affairs of the corporation as executive vice president, having formerly served as vice president and treasurer.

The directors declared a dividend of 3 per cent on the preferred stock, payable June 24, to stockholders of record June 14.

Cost Conference.

Dr. Willard L. Thorp, of Dun & Bradstreet, will be opening speaker at the eighteenth international cost conference of the National Association of Cost Accountants, to be held at Hot Springs, Va., the week of June 21. "Accounting for the Patman Act" has been announced as the subject of Dr. Thorp's address.

Ten delegates of the Washington chapter of the association will attend. They are: C. Milton Clark, treasurer of the Central Bank of Cooperatives; Walter F. Raymond, president-elect of the chapter and chief accountant for the Griffith-Consumers Company; John L. Mitchell, secretary of the chapter and auditor of Shannon & Luchs; William H. Churchill, comptroller of Peoples Drug Stores; A. B. Gunnarson, of the United States Chamber of Commerce; William L. Slattery, comptroller of the Postoffice Department; William M. Deviny, of the Catholic University; O'Neal M. Johnston, of the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers; George D. Lane, Felt & Tarrant Manufacturing Company, and Lloyd V. Williams, Western Electric Company. C. Milton Clark, Lanston Dividend.

Lanston Monotype Machine Company has declared a dividend of $1 per share payable Aug. 31, to stockholders of record as of Aug. 19.

Steel Corp. Shipments Are Lower for May

New York, June 11 (AP).—A decline of 39,605 tons in shipments of finished steel products last month compared with April was reported today by the United States Steel Corporation. However, the May total, at 1,304,039, was the highest for the month since 1929. The figure compared with a total of 984,097 for the same month last year.

Shipments for the first five months were placed at 6,345,724 tons, an increase of 53 per cent over the 4,145,285 in the corresponding period of 1936.

Swedish Match Profit $3,890,000 in 1936

New York, June 11 (AP).—Net profit of 15,260,583 Swedish kroner, or $3,890,000 for 1936, was reported by Swedish Match Co. in its annual pamphlet report issued today.

The statement included for the first time the foreign match properties acquired from the bankruptcy estate of International Match Corporation, in which the late Ivar Kreuger had a dominant interest.

Chain Store Sales At High for Year

New York, June 11.—Notwithstanding the difficulties encountered in retail trade by weather and strikes, chain store sales last month reached the largest volume for the current year, according to the monthly survey released yesterday by Childs, Jeffries & Thorndike. The total volume of the first 25 chains to report was $261,671,265, an increase of $34,909,357 or 15.4 per cent larger than the same month a year ago.

This compared with $251,018,035 for March, in which month the Easter spurt in business was recorded, and which had been expected to be the largest month in volume in retail trade circles until the fall.

Cigarette Sales At Record Level

New York, June 11.—Sales in the cigarette branch of the tobacco industry continue at a record-breaking pace. Current estimates place the 1937 demand 10 to 15 per cent above the 153,166,000,000 smoked last year, according to Poor's Stock Reports today. The pressure of higher tobacco costs on profit margins has been greatly diminished by the wholesale price on popular brands.

The January advance of 13 cents per thousand net should yield more than $20,000,000 additional, more than enough to cover higher costs and permit wider profit margins than were enjoyed in 1936.

Bituminous Production.

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended June 5, as approximately 6,450,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1936, 6,430,000 tons; 1935, 8,718,000 tons.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 11.—The stock market closed with a steadier tone as supporting orders became more noticeable. Gilt-edged securities held steady with the exception of the new defense issue, that selling being attributed to liquidation by government departments. Transatlantic shares and German bonds remained quiet. The industrial group was generally lower and dull.

Paris—Government bonds were in better demand and rentes finished with net gains of 15 to 65 centimes. Sues Canal moved 475 francs higher and gains were also established in Royal Dutch and Banque of France issues.

Liverpool—Wheat futures, after selling more than two pence higher, eased on reports of good rains in parts of Western Canada, finishing ¼d to ⅝d net higher. Cotton futures closed generally steady, unchanged to 2 lower. There was some Bombay and other scattered buying following earlier reactions in sympathy with the decline in the Egyptian market.

Gas Light Co. Abandons Plan For Bond Issue

Abandoning for the present a proposed $11,500,000 bond issue, the Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday requested permission to change its plan for revamping the entire financial structure of the company. Its original plan was announced March 10.

The company proposes to the Public Utilities Commission that it now be allowed to issue 20,000 shares of preferred stock at not less than $95 a share, to be sold to the public through local securities dealers. It will bear 4½ per cent interest.

Robert C. Owers, vice president and secretary of the company, explained that because of the "unfavorable condition" of the bond market, the bond proposal would be abandoned in favor of a stock sale.

A second amendment to the original proposal was requested yesterday. This amendment proposed that the redemption price of the stock be lowered from $107.50 to $105.

Purpose of the stock sale is to raise $1,900,000 with which to pay off $450,000 in current obligations incurred during the expansion program the company has undertaken, Owers said. The balance will be used to further that expansion.

The company yesterday asked that its elaborate refinancing program be for the most part stricken from its application of March 10.

Yesterday's request for permission to issue $1,900,000 in stock replaces a previous proposal to issue $3,500,000 in stock.

Owers said that by placing the proposed stock in the hands of local securities dealers for sale, the company was attempting to foster home ownership of the utility.

Squad Car Chase Of Stolen Vehicle Ends With Wreck

A police chase in which a suspected stolen car was riddled with bullets ended abruptly on River road, near Overhead Bridge, in Alexandria, yesterday morning when the pursuing car was demolished in an accident.

Taking up the chase when they saw an automobile bearing the license plates of a reported stolen car, Policemen Myril Clark and Lawrence Halstead, of the Fourth Precinct, opened fire when the driver refused to stop.

Crossing the Highway Bridge, the fleeing man outdistanced the police. Near Alexandria's city limits the police gained, but on a slippery turn the police car collided with a truck and was thrown against an embankment. The police escaped injury. The truck did not stop.

513 Utility Drivers Get Safety Award

Safe driver pins were awarded to 513 employes of the Washington Gas Light Co. at a meeting in the company's garage, Twenty-ninth and M streets northwest, last night. The 513 drivers went through 1936 without accidents or traffic troubles of any kind.

In making the awards, H. L. Leonard, safety engineer, pointed out that the safe drivers had traveled nearly 2,500,000 miles last year without accident. In the past six years, he added, Washington Gas Light drivers have totaled almost 13,000,000 miles without any kind of traffic trouble.

Inspector W. A. Holmes and F. L. Binswanger, of the Traffic Bureau, attended the presentation and spoke briefly, complimenting the drivers and the company on their records.

Roosevelt Asks Co-operation of Tokyo Mission

Greets Economists, Urges Value of Round-Table Conferences.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt told members of a Japanese economic mission yesterday he hoped the United States would have their understanding and co-operation in its efforts to solve its economic problems.

The President received members of the mission, headed by Chokyuro Kadono, executive director of the Japan Economic Federation, at his office in the White House.

Greeting them cordially, he expressed pleasure over results obtained by what he said Americans called "sitting around the table." He told the group of a similar mission to Japan by Cameron Forbes, his cousin, and Cason Calloway, a Warm Springs, Ga., neighbor last summer.

Secretary Roper earlier said Japan and the United States, "have all to gain through peace and good will" and urged the two nations "resolve now and forever to outlaw war."

He spoke at a luncheon given by the Commerce Department's business advisory council for the mission.

The Commerce Secretary, calling attention to the recent Japanese-American agreement restricting cotton imports from Japan, said this accord "is a splendid example of wise procedure."

Senators Indorse Army Housing Bill

By the Associated Press.

Members of the Senate Military Affairs Committee made public yesterday committee indorsement of a $21,000,000 Army housing bill which they said would be introduced Monday by Chairman Sheppard (Democrat), Texas.

The measure would authorize $2,275,000 for an Air Corps technical school at Denver, and $2,880,000 for improvements at Chanute Field, Ill.

Dr. Hornbaker Funeral Rites Set for Today

Was Physician Many Years at Workhouse, Lorton Reformatory.

Dr. Frank Wandling Hornbaker, 62, for 27 years physician for prisoners at the Occoquan Workhouse, died at Garfield Hospital yesterday. Until five years ago he also treated Lorton Reformatory prisoners. He had been in ill health for two years and had been in a serious condition for two weeks.

Commenting upon Dr. Hornbaker's death, Capt. M. M. Barnard, recently retired general superintendent of the District's penal institutions, said yesterday: "He was a wonderful fellow. His service began when there was nothing but a wire fence and a few wooden buildings at Occoquan, and included caring for all the prisoners at the workhouse and reformatory until a few years ago, when another physician took over the reformatory work."

Despite his poor physical condition, Dr. Hornbaker continued until a month ago work which his superiors said should require the services of at least three physicians.

Dr. Hornbaker received his early education in his native town, Manassas, Va. In 1909 he graduated from the University College of Medicine in Richmond, now the University of Virginia Medical School.

He practised in Fairfax Courthouse, Va., and in Dumfries, Va., before going to Occoquan in July, 1910, three months after the District acquired the site for a workhouse. In 1916, when Lorton Reformatory was opened, his duties were extended to include cases among the reformatory prisoners.

Dr. Hornbaker lived with his wife, Mrs. Clarke Hornbaker, and his family in a house on the prison reservation.

He is survived by his wife, a son, daughter, Mildred, 21; a brother, Maj. J. N. Hornbaker, United States Army, retired, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; a sister, Mrs. James Bradford, of Manassas; a half-sister, Mrs. William Powell, of Alexandria, and two half-brothers, Read Hynson, of Philadelphia, and Fred R. Hynson, of Manassas.

Services will be held at 5 p. m. today at Pohick Church. The Rev. C. A. Langston, rector of the church, and the Rev. Edward W. Millechampe, a former rector, will officiate. Burial will be in Pohick Cemetery.

Ticket-Fixing Case Marked by Clashes

The "ticket fixing" hearing of Policeman Welford E. Winfield before the Police Trial Board was adjourned yesterday until Monday morning following an all day session featured by clashes between opposing counsel.

Exchanges were frequent between Charles E. Ford, Winfield's lawyer, and Edward M. Welliver, assistant corporation counsel. The latter also directed numerous sallies against Inspector Edward J. Kelly, presiding officer, on the ground that he (Welliver) was being "restricted in argument as well as in evidence."

O'Hearne Sails Off Course to District Jail

Ex-Speakeasy Operator Is Marooned After Press Club Fracas.

The District Jail instead of a cabin aboard a liner bound for Germany held Jack E. O'Hearne, better known as Ahearn, one-time Washington speakeasy operator in the prohibition era, last night.

In his cell, the dapper former proprietor of fashionable drinking "spots" rued the impulse which brought him back for a farewell visit before he sailed for Europe.

A warrant sworn out by Harold Brayman, vice president of the National Press Club, led to O'Hearne's arrest Thursday night. Three years ago O'Hearne departed hastily from Washington after the United States Supreme Court ruled he would have to complete a 10-month prison sentence for a violation in connection with the prohibition laws.

Released in 1933.

O'Hearne was released from District Jail in 1933, after he had served four months of a ten-month sentence for violating an injunction which forbade him to dispense liquor anywhere in the District.

Thinking his troubles with the law had ended, he opened a cafe where drinks were sold legally.

District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, however, contended O'Hearne had been illegally released, and the Court of Appeals upheld him.

O'Hearne appealed to the Supreme Court and remained free under bond. He vanished when the Supreme Court refused to review his case.

Detective Sergts. Steve Brodie, Leo Murray and Michael Dowd arrested O'Hearne as he packed to leave for New York, where his steamer was to sail this morning at 11 o'clock. Two steamboat tickets were in his vest pocket. O'Hearne returned to Washington about three weeks ago.

Charged With Attack.

227 Graduated In Ceremonies At Howard U.

Dr. Studebaker, La Follette Speak; Cornerstone of Library Laid.

The sixty-eighth commencement exercises at Howard University were held yesterday on the university campus, fronting Frederick Douglas Memorial Hall. The commencement address was made by Dr. John Ward Studebaker, Commissioner of Education, Department of the Interior. Graduates of the nine schools and colleges comprising the university numbered 227.

Commissions as second lieutenants of Infantry, Officers Reserve Corps, were awarded 16, while 19 were granted interneships in the medical and dental colleges. The exercises followed an academic procession from the library to the campus quadrangle, led by Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, university president. They had been preceded earlier in the day by cornerstone-laying exercises for the new library building by Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

Dr. Studebaker advocated freedom of speech and liberty of discussion throughout the educational process for all classes and all races, to the end that the university diploma might certify that students have prepared to practice peace and to prevent warfare.

Pleads for Peace.

"Practice of peace and prevention of war," he said, "are desired by the vast majority, and, therefore, institutions which are awarding certificates of preparedness ought to certify their students as ready to serve these ends. This problem should be discussed by learners in connection with most subject matter. It must not be sidestepped nor soft-pedaled."

Cornerstone laying of the library, under construction as a PWA project, for which the Government has provided $1,105,711, was featured by addresses by Oscar L. Chapman, Assistant Secretary Department of the Interior, and Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin.

Chapman referred to erection of the library by governmental agencies a san important step "in the march toward equal opportunity." "Freedom of the mind," he said, "more precious than freedom of the body, can be found only in that learning which a library sympolizes."

Freedom of Truth.

Senator LaFollette, in placing the cornerstone, referred to the complex and fundamental economic changes taking place throughout the world. He quoted from a resolution of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin, "that, in all lines of investigation the investigator should be absolutely free to follow the paths of truth wherever they may lead."

Materials deposited in the cornerstone included the university catalogue, President Johnson's report, copies of university publications, Secretary Ickes' charter day address, a similar address by Louis Cramton, names of Government officials interested in erection of the building, copies of current issues of daily newspapers and weekly colored publications.

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Franz Boaz, noted anthropologist of Columbia University; John M. Gandy, president of Virginia State University, Petersburg; David D. Jones, president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C.

Degrees were conferred as follows:

War Department Bill Seeks New Arlington Vault

A new receiving vault at Arlington Cemetery and changes in the administrative system at the United States Soldiers' Home are requested in the War Department civil functions appropriation bill for 1938, favorably reported to the House yesterday by the Appropriations Committee. This is the first time that civil items have been segregated in a separate War appropriation bill.

150 Will Attend Church Pilgrimage

A cavalcade of more than 30 automobiles will leave Washington Cathedral this afternoon for Williamsburg, carrying the laymen and boys of the Diocese of Washington who are participating in the pilgrimage to Jamestown, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

Capt. Dudley N. Carpenter, U. S. N., retired, expects that the local delegation will total 150 men and boys.

Other groups will assemble from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, making the pilgrimage one of the largest attending in recent years.

The Rev. Howard S. Wilkinson, rector of St. Thomas' Church, is to lead the pilgrimage, assisted by the Rev. William A. Goodwin, rector of historic Bruton Parish in Williamsburg.

Through the courtesy of President John Stewart Bryan, of William and Mary College, the men and boys will be housed in the college buildings. Religious services will be held in Bruton Church, and early tomorrow morning the entire assemblage will go to Jamestown Island to make their Communion on the very spot where the Rev. Robert Hunt first celebrated this sacrament for the colonists who had landed with Capt. John Smith.

Italy Lists 175 Casualties.

Rome, June 11 (AP).—A list of 175 more Italian soldiers who died fighting in Spain was published today by the government. It was the third such list. The communique said the Italians died "in a war against Bolshevism and for Fascist civilization in battle on the Madrid front from March 8 to 18."

New Nazi Discipline.

Berlin, June 11 (AP).—German soldiers found guilty of theft, disloyalty and other misconduct hereafter will be transferred to special disciplinary detachments instead of receiving dishonorable discharge from the army, it was announced today.
